Director-General

Explanatory Note 1

1. General presentation of all the Appendices in three languages (English, French, Spanish) as the three official languages of WTO are also official languages of the EC.

2. No substantive change in Appendices II to IV. The publications from Austria, Finland and Sweden, however, have been integrated into the Community Appendices.

3. Appendix I, Annex I

- European Community entities: list unchanged.
- State entities: the changes made are the result of ministerial reorganization in certain member States. This does not extend or diminish the European Community's offer.

Austria: bilingual presentation. Changes due to ministerial reorganization.

Belgium: changes due to ministerial reorganization.

Denmark: changes due to ministerial reorganization.

Germany: bilingual presentation. Changes due to ministerial reorganization.

Spain: changes due to ministerial reorganization.

Finland: no changes.

France: no changes.

Greece: bilingual presentation.¹ Changes due to ministerial reorganization.

4. Appendix I, Annex 2

The definition of a public law body within the meaning of Directive 93/37 of the European Community is included.

The orientation list attached to the previous version of the annexes can be found in Annex I to this Directive. A copy of the Annex to the Directive is attached. Nevertheless, the list is for guidance. What counts is the definition of a public law body.

MODIFICATIONS TO APPENDIX IEuropean Community

If the Annex to this Directive is amended or modified, the Community will notify the changes in due time.

5. Appendix I, Annex 3

Paragraph (e) of the list of entities has been amended in order to clarify coverage. This paragraph only covered urban transport (in reference to Annex VII of EC Directive 93/38), but the former wording could be misleading. The new wording proposed clarifies this point.

The relevant annexes to Directive 93/38 are attached for information. These lists are however only for guidance and the definitions that count are those in Annex 3. If the Annexes to this Directive are amended or modified, the Community will notify the changes in due time.

6. Appendix I, Annex 4

7. Appendix I, Annex 5

NOTE

Offset

1. Having regard to Article XVI and to general policy considerations regarding development, Israel may operate provisions which require the limited incorporation of domestic content, offset procurement or transfer of technology, in the form of objective and clearly defined conditions for participation in procedures for the award of contracts, which do not discriminate between other Parties.

This shall be done under the following terms:

- (a) Israel shall ensure that its entities indicate the existence of such conditions in their tender notices and specify them clearly in the contract documents.
 - (b) Suppliers will not be required to purchase goods that are not offered on competitive terms, including price and quality, or to take any action which is not justified from a commercial standpoint.
 - (c) Offsets in any form may be required up to 35 per cent of the contract going down to 30 per cent after five years and 20 per cent after nine years, beginning from the date Israel implements the Agreement.
 - (a) At the end of each period of five and four years Israel will submit a report concerning the implementation of this Note.
 - (b) When the level of the offset has reached 20 per cent, Israel will consult with the Parties to this Agreement on the level of the use of offset by Israel. The review shall take into consideration inter alia general and economic developments in Israel, its trade balance, the actual performance within the framework of this Agreement and the views of the other Parties.

DONE AT MARRAKESH ON 15 APRIL 1994

NOTIFICATION OF ACCEPTANCES

ENTRY INTO FORCE

I have the honour to inform you that on 15 April 1994 the above-mentioned Agreement was accepted by the Government of Luxembourg.

I also have the honour to inform you that I received, on the dates indicated, instruments of ratification or acceptance of the above-mentioned Agreement from the following Governments, thereby recognizing as fully binding the signatures affixed by their plenipotentiaries on 15 April 1994:

Belgium 30 December 1994

European Community 30 December 1994

Canada 22 December 1995

"In endorsing this Agreement vis-a-vis the United States for

Annex 1 (Federal departments and agencies), Canada's commitments are made on the basis of our understanding of (1) the value of the U.S. offer at the time of signing of the Agreement in Marrakesh and (2) the value of 'small and minority business set-asides' discussed with the United States in reference to the exception taken for these programs in their offer. Canada would further note that its commitments are put forward on the understanding that the value of U.S. contracts, otherwise subject to WTO-AGP, to which preferences for U.S. small and minority businesses are applied, is consistent with statistics recently tabled by the United States in accordance with the requirements of Chapter 10 of the NAFTA. These statistics indicate that the total value of small and minority business set-asides for U.S. departments and agencies is US$3.0 billion. With appropriate adjustments for the higher threshold values of the WTO-AGP, that value would be approximately US$2.4 billion."

Committee on Government Procurement

DECISIONS ON PROCEDURAL MATTERS UNDER THE AGREEMENT
ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994)

Addendum

CIRCULATION AND DERESTRICTION OF DOCUMENTS OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT¹

Decision of 24 February 1997^{2,3}

The Committee on Government Procurement decides to adopt the following procedures with respect to the circulation⁴ and derestriction of documents:

- 1) Formal documents shall be circulated to members of the Committee, to observers and to other Members of the WTO. In certain cases, the circulation of sensitive documents shall be determined on an ad hoc basis. The formal documents shall also be made available to Members of the WTO through the WTO Document Dissemination Facility via the Internet.
- 2) Documents circulated after the entry into force of the Agreement on Government Procurement in any GPA/- document series shall be circulated as unrestricted with the exception of documents specified in the attached Appendix, which shall be circulated as restricted and subject to derestriction, or consideration thereof, as provided. Notwithstanding the exceptions specified in the Appendix, any document that contains only information that is publicly available or information that is required to be published under the Agreement on Government Procurement shall be circulated on an unrestricted basis.

²The Decision replaces the Decisions on interim procedures, dated 27 February 1996, on the circulation and derestriction of documents contained in GPA/1, Annexes 4 and 5 respectively.

- 3) Notwithstanding the exceptions to paragraph 2 set forth in the Appendix,
- (a) any Party may, at the time it submits any document for circulation, indicate to the Secretariat that the document be issued as unrestricted, and
- (b) any restricted document circulated after the date of entry into force of the Agreement may be considered for derestriction at any time by the Committee or may be considered for derestriction at the request of any Party.
- 4) Requests for consideration for derestriction shall be made in writing and shall be directed to the Chairman of the Committee. Such requests shall be circulated to all Parties and placed on the agenda of a forthcoming meeting of the Committee for consideration. However, in order to preserve the efficiency of the work of the Committee, the Party concerned may indicate to the Secretariat that it circulate to Parties a notice advising them of the documents proposed for derestriction and the date proposed for derestriction, which shall normally be sixty days after the date the notice is circulated. These documents shall be derestricted on the date set forth in the notice unless, prior to that date, a Party notifies the Secretariat in writing of its objection to the derestriction of a document, or any portion of a document.
- 5) The Secretariat shall prepare and circulate a list of documents eligible for consideration for derestriction, indicating the proposed date of derestriction, which shall normally be sixty days after the circulation of the list. These documents shall be derestricted on the date set forth in the notice unless, prior to that date, a Party notifies the Secretariat in writing of its objection to the derestriction of a document, or any portion of a document.
- 6) If a document⁵ considered for derestriction is not derestricted because of an objection by any Party, and remains restricted at the end of the first year following the year in which an objection was raised, the document shall be considered for derestriction at that time.
- 7) The Secretariat will circulate periodically (e.g. every six months) a list of newly derestricted documents, as well as a list of all documents remaining restricted.
- 8) In the light of the experience gained from the operation of these procedures and changes in any other relevant procedures under the WTO, the Committee will review, and if necessary modify, the procedures two years after their adoption.

⁵These procedures shall apply mutatis mutandis to the consideration for derestriction of a portion of a document that remains restricted as a result of an objection made pursuant to paragraph 4.

APPENDIX

(a) Working documents in all GPA/- document series (i.e. draft documents such as agendas, decisions, proposals, applications for accession, Secretariat background notes as well as other working papers issued as •GPA/W/-• documents), including documents in the GPA/SPEC/- series.

Such documents shall be derestricted upon the adoption of the report or of the decision pertaining to their subject matter, or considered for derestriction six months after the date of their circulation⁶, whichever is earlier. All background notes by the Secretariat, however, shall be considered for derestriction six months after the date of their circulation.

(b) Documents relating to rectifications or modifications of Appendices to the Agreement pursuant to Article XXIV: 6 of the Agreement.

Such documents shall be derestricted upon completion of the Article XXIV:6 process through the certification of the changes.

(c) Minutes of meetings of the Committee and its subsidiary bodies.

Such documents shall be considered for derestriction six months after the date of their circulation.

(d) Documents relating to working parties or other subsidiary bodies established by the Committee including working parties on accessions.

Such documents shall be derestricted upon the adoption of the report of the working party. Prior to the adoption of the report, any such documents shall be considered for derestriction at the end of the first year following the year in which they were circulated.

(e) Documents submitted to the Secretariat by a Party for circulation if, at the time the Party submits the document, the Party indicates to the Secretariat that the document should be issued as restricted.

Such documents shall be considered for derestriction at the end of each six-month period.⁷

⁶The •date of circulation• means the date printed on the front page of a document indicating when it has been made available to Parties• delegations.

⁷Documents circulated during the period January through June would be considered for derestriction directly after the end of that period. Documents circulated during the period July through December would be considered for derestriction directly after the end of that period.

(f) Reports of panels which are circulated in accordance with the provisions of the Understanding on Rules and Procedures Governing the Settlement of Disputes.⁸

Such reports shall be circulated to all Parties to the Agreement on Government Procurement and other WTO Members as restricted documents and derestricted no later than the tenth day thereafter if, prior to the date of circulation, a party to the dispute that forms the basis of a report submits to the Chairman of the Dispute Settlement Body a written request for delayed derestriction. A report circulated as a restricted document shall indicate the date upon which it will be derestricted.⁹

⁸This provision will be subject to review at the time of review of the Dispute Settlement Understanding, and will be discontinued if there is no consensus on the matter.

PROCEDURES FOR THE NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Decision of the Committee of 4 June 1996

1. Parties shall submit the complete texts of their basic legislation (laws and regulations) on government procurement in the original language to the Secretariat where these texts will be open for inspection by Parties. These would include the basic legal instruments pursuant to which effect is given to the provisions of the Agreement. Each Party shall provide a summary of that legislation in a WTO language.
2. In addition, each Party shall describe in a WTO language what other legislation giving effect to the Agreement on Government Procurement exists. This need not take the form of a listing of individual texts but should include sufficient information on the nature of legislation relevant to each category of entities to facilitate another Party requesting a text of interest to it.
3. Each Party shall supply, in response to a request from another Party, a copy of any law, regulation, final judicial decision, administrative ruling or other measure relevant to the Agreement. Each Party shall notify the Committee of the coordinates of a contact point established for that purpose. Through its contact point, a Party from which a text has been requested, shall use its best endeavours to assist the requesting Party with any translation into a WTO language necessary.
4. Each Party shall provide responses to the attached checklist of issues.
5. The notifications shall be made as soon as possible, but in no case later than 31 December 1996.

ANNEX 3

MODALITIES FOR NOTIFYING THRESHOLD FIGURES IN NATIONAL CURRENCIES

Decision

General

Each Party will calculate and convert for itself the value of the thresholds contained in its Appendix I into its own national currency, it being understood that these calculations will be based on the conversion rates published by the IMF in its monthly •International Financial Statistics• (for the EC, the Member States• currency equivalents of the ECU for determining the value of public contracts are calculated and published by the EC Commission). Parties will notify without delay to the Committee the method and result of their calculation, for possible examination and challenge in the Committee.

Basis for calculation¹

The conversion rates will be the average of the daily values of the respective national currency in terms of the SDR over the two-year period preceding 1 October or 1 November of the year prior to the thresholds in national currency becoming effective which will be from 1 January. For Israel and Japan the conversion rate will be established in the same way as above but the relevant date for the calculation will be 1 January (rather than 1 October or 1 November) and the newly-established conversion rate will take effect on 1 April.

Period of validity of national thresholds

Thresholds expressed in national currencies will be fixed for two years, i.e. calendar years for all Parties except Israel and Japan, where the fiscal year (1 April-31 March) will be used.

Safeguard mechanism

If a major change in a national currency vis-à-vis the SDR during a year were to create a significant problem with regard to the application of the Agreement, the matter will be considered in the Committee.

¹It is understood that the EC calculates its thresholds based on a unilateral reduction of 13 per cent in the thresholds applicable to the EC (pursuant to the relevant decision by the Committee under the Tokyo Code of 20 May 1987, in furtherance of the panel decision on Value-Added Tax and Threshold (GPR/21, GPA/IC/W/2, pages 3 and 4).

ANNEX 4

INTERIM PROCEDURE ON THE CIRCULATION OF DOCUMENTS OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994), PENDING A DEFINITIVE PROCEDURE

Decision

Formal documents shall be circulated to members of the Committee and to observers and shall be available, on request, to Members of the WTO. In certain cases, the circulation of sensitive documents shall be determined on an ad hoc basis.

ANNEX 5

INTERIM PROCEDURE ON THE DERESTRICTION OF DOCUMENTS OF
THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994), PENDING A DEFINITIVE PROCEDURE

Decision

The Committee decides that documents pertaining to its work and that of its subsidiary bodies shall be derestricted in accordance with the following procedure:

- (a) the Secretariat will prepare a list of such documents proposed for derestriction, which will include decisions, Secretariat background notes, and working papers that do not include details of individual country positions or proposals;
- (b) this list will be circulated to all participants;
- (c) documents on the list will be derestricted 60 days after their circulation unless a participant has requested that a document remain restricted;
- (d) the Secretariat will issue a list after the date fixed for derestriction, specifying the documents derestricted.

Committee on Government Procurement

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Canada

The attached communication has been received from Canada in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

1. Basic Legislation Giving Effect to the Agreement

Bill C-57, An Act to Implement the Agreement establishing the World Trade Organization (the WTO Implementation Act), entered into force on 1 January 1995. The WTO Implementation Act accomplished all that was necessary, by way of legislation, to ensure that Canada's obligations under the Agreement on Government Procurement (AGP) can be met. Section 3 provides that the purpose of the WTO Implementation Act is to implement the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization, including the agreements set out in Annexes 1A, 1B, 1C, 2 and 3 thereof and the agreements set out in Annex 4 thereof that have been accepted by Canada (collectively, the WTO Agreement). Section 4 provides that the WTO Implementation Act is binding on the Government of Canada.

Part I of the WTO Implementation Act contains general provisions applicable to implementation of the WTO Agreement. Section 8 provides that the WTO Agreement is approved. Sections 9 to 13 empower the Federal Cabinet to take various kinds of action in furtherance of administering Canada's activities under the WTO Agreement.

2. Additional Legislation Giving Effect to the Agreement

Part II of the WTO Implementation Act also provides for related and consequential amendments to other federal legislation required to give effect to the WTO Agreements, including the AGP.

Section 116 of the WTO Implementation Act provides for amendments to the Financial Administration Act that permit the Federal Cabinet to give a directive to any parent crown corporation for the purpose of implementing the WTO Agreement. This enables the Federal Cabinet to require the government enterprises listed in Canada's Annex 3 of Appendix I of the AGP to comply with the requirements of the AGP.

Sections 40 to 42 and 44 to 46 of the WTO Act provide for a number of minor amendments to the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act. More extensive amendments of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations were undertaken in order to empower the Canadian International Trade Tribunal (the •Tribunal•) to conduct an inquiry into a complaint regarding any aspect of the procurement process in respect of a contract for the procurement of goods or services, or any combination of goods and services, described in Article I of the AGP. Prior to these amendments, the Tribunal had jurisdiction to conduct an inquiry for any such contract described in Article 1001 of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) or in Article 502 of the Agreement on Internal Trade (AIT).

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal Rules govern the proceedings, practice and procedures of the Tribunal in dealing with procurement complaints. The rules already provided for procurement complaints under the NAFTA and the AIT when the AGP entered into force and did not require amendment.

3. Effect of the Legislative Changes

The combined effect of the WTO Implementation Act and the amendments to the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations is:

- (i) to require all government entities and enterprises listed in Canada's Annex 1 and Annex 3 of Appendix I of the AGP to abide by the provisions of the AGP; and
- (ii) to empower the Tribunal to conduct an inquiry into any complaint that a covered government entity or enterprise has failed to abide by the provisions of the AGP and to recommend a remedy for any complaint that it finds to be valid, including awarding a contract or payment of compensation, as appropriate.

Government entities that are subject to the AGP are expected to carry out their procurement activities in accordance with the provisions of the AGP, as well as the NAFTA and the AIT. Accordingly, the Government of Canada uses the Open Bidding Service (OBS), an internationally accessible electronic database, and publishes a bulletin called Government Business Opportunities which contains most of the opportunities listed on the OBS. Each notice contains a field for Agreement Type which identifies all applicable trade agreements. Tendering procedures and awarding of contracts are also carried out in accordance with the requirements of any applicable trade agreements. Domestic suppliers and foreign suppliers alike may file a complaint with the Tribunal if they believe that a government entity has failed to comply with the requirements of any applicable trade agreement.

4. Copies of Relevant Legislation

Copies have been provided to the WTO Secretariat of:¹

- (i) the preamble, sections 1 to 13, and sections 40 to 45 of the World Trade Organization Implementation Act, S.C. 1994, C. 57;
- (ii) sections 1 to 3, 13, 16, 17, 30.1, 30.11 to 30.19, 31 to 37, 39, 40 and 43 to 48 of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act, R.S.C. 1985, C. 47;
- (iii) Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations (unofficial consolidation); and
- (iv) sections 1 to 29 and 93 to 108 of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Rules, SOR/91-409, SOR/93-601.

¹Available for consultation in office no. 3012.

CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1) Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

Bill C-57, An Act to Implement the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization, brought the AGP into force for Canada on 1 January 1996. Certain amendments to the Financial Administration Act, the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act and the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations were required to implement the AGP into Canadian law.

2) In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

3) In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

n.a.

4) Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

n.a.

5) To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

The Government of Canada uses the Open Bidding Service (OBS), an internationally accessible electronic database. The Government also publishes a bulletin called Government Business Opportunities (GBO) which contains most of the opportunities listed on the OBS. Most bidding opportunities for goods and services valued at over CAN $25,000 are advertised on the OBS, as well as construction, maintenance, architecture, engineering and leasing opportunities over CAN $60,000, communications professional services valued at over CAN $50,000 and printing requirements valued at over CAN $10,000. All procurement covered by the WTO Agreement is advertised on the OBS and in the GBO. Each notice contains a field for •Agreement Type• which identifies all applicable trade agreements, including the AGP, for that requirement. Canada has submitted a full explanation of the use of information technology in procurement to the WTO.²

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6) Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

The WTO Implementation Act does not contain specific provisions that reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III. Rather, it approves the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization, including the agreements set out in Annexes 1A, 1B, 1C, 2 and 3 thereof and the agreements set out in Annex 4 thereof that have been accepted by Canada (i.e., the AGP, among others). It also provides for related and consequential amendments to other federal legislation required to give effect to the various agreements, including the AGP.

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act (CITT Act) and the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations (CITT Regulations) were amended to empower the Canadian International Trade Tribunal (Tribunal) to conduct an inquiry into a complaint into any aspect of the procurement process in respect of a contract for the procurement of goods or services, or any combination of goods and services, described in Article I of the AGP. Prior to these amendments, the Tribunal had jurisdiction to conduct an inquiry for any such contract described in Article 1001 of the NAFTA or in Article 502 of the AIT.

Section 30.14 (2) of the CITT Act provides:

(2) At the conclusion of an inquiry, the Tribunal shall determine whether the complaint is valid on the basis of whether the procedures and other requirements prescribed in respect of the designated contract, or the class of contracts to which it belongs, have been or are being observed.

Section 11 of the CITT Regulations provides:

11. Where the Tribunal conducts an inquiry into a complaint, it shall determine whether the procurement was conducted in accordance with the requirements set out in whichever one of the NAFTA, the Agreement on Internal Trade or the Agreement on Government Procurement applies.

Thus, alleged failure to accord national treatment or non-discrimination as required by Article III of the Agreement would be a matter for the Tribunal to consider in determining whether a complaint is valid.

7) Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

In accordance with Article IX:2 of the Agreement, all of the entities covered by the Agreement are permitted to publish an invitation to participate in the form of a notice of proposed procurement.

8) Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

n.a.

9) In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

In the case of selective tendering procedures, the procuring entity decides whether to use open or selective tendering procedures depending on the nature of the requirement.

10) Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

All of the entities covered by the Agreement are permitted to conduct negotiations on procurements that are covered by the Agreement. The negotiations must be carried out according to the provisions set out in Article XIV of the Agreement.

11) Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be •not less than X days•. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

Consistent with our international agreements, the period for the receipt of tenders varies from 7 to 40 days from the date of publication, depending upon the relevant legislation or policy.

Time limits for delivery are established based on the requirement and must be consistent with the provisions set out in Article XI of the Agreement.

12) To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

Tenders for AGP-covered procurement may be submitted in English or French, Canada's two official languages.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13) Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

A copy of the publication Procurement Review Process - A Descriptive Guide, January 1996, has been provided to the WTO. This guide describes Canada's challenge procedures.

14) To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is •not less than 10 days•. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

A complaint must be filed within 10 working days after the day on which the basis of the complaint became known or reasonably should have become known to the potential supplier. A potential supplier who has made an objection regarding a procurement to the relevant government institution, and is denied relief by that government institution, may file a complaint with the Tribunal within 10 working days after the day on which the potential supplier has actual or constructive knowledge of the denial of relief, provided that the objection was made within 10 working days after the day that the basis for the objection became known or reasonably should have become known.

The Tribunal can extend the time limit to a maximum of 30 days if it determines that the failure to file the complaint in time was attributable to a cause beyond the control of the potential supplier or that the complaint concerns an aspect of the procurement process of a systemic nature.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a •court• or an •impartial and independent review body•? If the latter:

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal is responsible for determining the validity of procurement complaints. It is a quasi-judicial tribunal and, as regards certain matters, including the attendance and examination of witnesses, the production of documents and the enforcement of its orders, has the powers of a superior court of record. The Tribunal is an impartial and independent review body for the purpose of determining the validity of procurement complaints.

- How are its members selected?

The Tribunal is comprised of a Chairman, two Vice-Chairmen, up to six other permanent members and up to five temporary members, all of whom are appointed by the Federal Cabinet. Permanent appointments are for a five-year term. The Chairman may assign one member of the Tribunal to deal with a procurement complaint. A member so assigned has all of the Tribunal's powers, duties and functions in relation to the complaint.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

Yes.

-If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

n.a.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Tribunal determines the validity of procurement complaints by reference to the standards set out in the AGP, the NAFTA and the AIT. See section 11 of the Regulations, reproduced as part of Canada's response to question 6.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

Any party to a procurement complaint proceeding may request that the Tribunal consider the feasibility of using the •express option• procedure which is designed to bring about the resolution of a complaint within 45 days instead of the usual 90-day time-frame.

*-Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process?
On what conditions?*

The Tribunal may order the government institution responsible for the procurement to postpone the awarding of the contract until the Tribunal determines the validity of the complaint. The Tribunal shall rescind such an order if, within seven working days of the making of the order, the government institution certifies in writing that the procurement is urgent or that a delay in awarding the contract would be contrary to the public interest. The Tribunal has no power to suspend a contract that has already been awarded.

(v)How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

Where the Tribunal determines that a complaint is valid, it may recommend such remedy as it considers appropriate, including any one or more of the following:

- (a)that a new solicitation for the contract be issued;
- (b)that the bids be re-evaluated;
- (c)that the contract be terminated;
- (d)that the contract be awarded to the complainant; or
- (e)that the complainant be compensated by an amount specified by the Tribunal.

The government institution involved in the procurement would be required to implement the Tribunal's recommendations to the greatest extent possible. If the government institution does not intend to fully implement the Tribunal's recommendations, it must notify the Tribunal of the reasons for not doing so.

There is no prescribed limitation on the kinds of losses or the total amount that the Tribunal can recommend as compensation. The Tribunal tends to rely on common law principles applicable to assessment of damages. The Tribunal may award the complainant the reasonable costs of responding to a bid solicitation, independently of any amount that it recommends as compensation.

(vi)Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

See Appendix 1 and Appendix 2 of the publication Procurement Review Process - A Descriptive Guide.

(vii)What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

There is no fee for filing a complaint with the Tribunal and parties may file materials and appear before the Tribunal without being represented by a lawyer. The complainant would have to bear any legal expenses that it does incur which it may recover (in whole or in part) under an award of costs granted in the discretion of the Tribunal. Similarly, a complainant may be liable to pay an award of costs in favour of the relevant government institution and any intervening party if the Tribunal dismisses the complaint during the course of the proceedings or ultimately determines that the complaint is invalid.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

CANADA

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of Canada and the responses given and comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meeting of 5 October 1999.¹ Canada's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee's Decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in document GPA/13, dated 27 March 1997.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY; HONG KONG, CHINA; SWITZERLAND AND THE UNITED STATES

I. GENERAL

Question from the United States

1. Are the requirements of the GPA simply incorporated by reference rather than being specifically implemented through separate Canadian legislation, regulations or other policy instruments?

Bill C-57, An Act to Implement the Agreement establishing the World Trade Organization (the WTO Implementation Act), entered into force on 1 January 1995. The WTO Implementation Act accomplished all that was necessary, by way of legislation, to ensure that Canada's obligations under the Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) can be met. Section 3 provides that the purpose of the WTO Implementation Act is to implement the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization, including the agreements set out in Annexes 1A, 1B, 1C, 2 and 3 thereof and the agreements set out in Annex 4 thereof that have been accepted by Canada (collectively, the WTO Agreement). Section 4 provides that the WTO Implementation Act is binding on the Government of Canada.

Part I of the WTO Implementation Act contains general provisions applicable to implementation of the WTO Agreement. Section 8 provides that the WTO Agreement is approved. Sections 9 to 13 empower the Federal Cabinet to take various kinds of action in furtherance of administering Canada's activities under the WTO Agreement.

Part II of the WTO Implementation Act also provides for related and consequential amendments to other federal legislation required to give effect to the WTO Agreements, including the GPA.

Section 116 of the WTO Implementation Act provides for amendments to the Financial Administration Act that permit the Federal Cabinet to give a directive to any parent crown corporation for the purpose of implementing the WTO Agreement. This enables the Federal Cabinet to require the government enterprises listed in Canada's Annex 3 of Appendix I of the GPA to comply with the requirements of the GPA.

Sections 40 to 42 and 44 to 46 of the WTO Act provide for a number of minor amendments to the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act. More extensive amendments of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations were undertaken in order to empower the Canadian International Trade Tribunal (the "Tribunal") to conduct an inquiry into a complaint regarding any aspect of the procurement process in respect of a contract for the procurement of goods or services, or any combination of goods and services, described in Article I of the GPA. Prior to these amendments, the Tribunal had jurisdiction to conduct an inquiry for any such contract described in Article 1001 of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) or in Article 502 of the Agreement on Internal Trade (AIT).

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal Rules govern the proceedings, practice and procedures of the Tribunal in dealing with procurement complaints. The rules already provided for procurement complaints under the NAFTA and the AIT when the GPA entered into force and did not require amendment.

Question from the European Community

2. As regards the very qualification of government procurement in Canada, public service contracts are not subject to any well-defined set of rules and the terms of access for foreigners are not specified either. The awarding of public service contracts by means of concession, leasing, state-owned concern, etc. is neither very developed nor very formalized. Apart from the so-called BOT formula (the nearest to the concession formula), there are no model contracts nor is there any differentiation from government procurement proper or from administrative contracts of other kinds. Ad hoc rules normally prevail (enabling, in the case in question, foreign candidates to have access to the tendering procedures). Despite the likely prospect of a proliferation of public service contracts at the federal, provincial and local levels, Canada has no rules regarding non-discrimination against foreigners nor regarding transparency and publicity when it comes to the implementation of procedures. What are its intentions, therefore, at both the internal and international levels?

We are unable to discern from the above a question related to Canada's implementing legislation for the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement. As stated in the Checklist of Issues at paragraph 1:

"Bill C-57, An Act to Implement the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization, brought the GPA into force for Canada on 1 January 1996. Certain amendments to the Financial Administration Act, the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act and the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations were required to implement the GPA into Canadian law."

In addition as per paragraph 6:

"The WTO Implementation Act does not contain specific provisions that reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III. Rather, it approves the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization, including the agreements set out in Annexes 1A, 1B, 1C, 2 and 3 thereof and the agreements set out in Annex 4 thereof that have been accepted by Canada (i.e. the GPA, among others). It also provides for related and consequential amendments to other federal legislation required to give effect to the various agreements, including the GPA.

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act (CITT Act) and the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations (CITT Regulations) were amended to empower the Canadian International Trade Tribunal (Tribunal) to conduct an inquiry into a complaint into any aspect of the procurement process in respect of a contract for the procurement of goods or services, or any combination of goods and services, described in Article I of the GPA. Prior to these amendments, the Tribunal had no jurisdiction to conduct an inquiry for any such contract described in Article 1001 of the NAFTA or in Article 502 of the AIT."

Section 30.14 (2) of the CITT Act provides:

"At the conclusion of an inquiry, the Tribunal shall determine whether the complaint is valid on the basis of whether the procedures and other requirements prescribed in respect of the designated contract, or the class of contracts to which it belongs, have been or are being observed."

Section 11 of the CITT Regulation provides:

"Where the Tribunal conducts an inquiry into a complaint, it shall determine whether the procurement was conducted in accordance with the requirements set out in whichever one of the NAFTA, the Agreement on Internal Trade or the Agreement on Government Procurement applies.

Thus, alleged failure to accord national treatment or non-discrimination as required by Article III of the Agreement would be a matter for the Tribunal to consider in determining whether a complaint is valid."

Therefore, when a procurement is covered by the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement, procuring authorities follow the law, which in this case means all of the requirements of the Agreement on Government Procurement. We strongly disagree with the unsubstantiated assertions in this question.

II. SCOPE AND COVERAGE

Question from the United States

1. Canada has not responded in substance to questions 2, 3, 4 and 8 of the Checklist of Issues and other questions relating to covered sub-central entities. However, in Annexes 2 and 3 of the GPA, Canada agreed to "cover entities in all ten provinces on the basis of commitments obtained from provincial governments" and to specify "coverage of Sub-central Enterprises for Goods, Services and Construction Services....within eighteen months after the conclusion of the new Government Procurement Agreement." Nine Federal enterprises are specifically covered in Annex 3. In this context, please provide substantive responses to questions 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, 10 and 11 of the Checklist, and to the United States' question 6, below, with respect to covered sub-central entities, including the Federal enterprises listed in Annex 3.

General Note 6 of Canada's offer states the following:

"The offer by Canada, with respect to goods and services (including construction) in Annexes 2 and 3, is subject to negotiation of mutually acceptable commitments (including thresholds) with other Parties, with initial commitments to be specified on or before 15 April 1994 and specific commitments to be confirmed within eighteen months after the conclusion of the new Government Procurement Agreement."

Mutually acceptable commitments were not negotiated with other Parties in the 18-month period between April 1994 and October 1995. As a result, Canada did not confirm any specific commitments in October 1995 (nor have we since that time).

As declared by the Canadian Statement to the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement on 25 October 1995, "Canada is prepared to table an offer at the sub-central level if, and only if, members are prepared: (1) to include sectors of priority to Canadian suppliers, for example, in the steel and transportation areas; and (2) to agree to circumscribe the use of small business and other set asides in a manner that, while not precluding their use, would provide an acceptable security of access to suppliers from all members of this committee."

Therefore, these questions are not applicable.

Question from the European Community

2. Canada has stated that "it is prepared to table an offer at the sub-central level if Members are prepared: (1) to include sectors of priority to Canadian suppliers, for example, in the steel and transportation areas; and (2) to agree to circumscribe the use of small business and other set asides in a manner that, while not precluding their use, would provide an acceptable security of access to suppliers from all Parties." The European Community has opened the transport sector to certain GPA Parties and does not have any preferences for small and medium sized enterprises. Could Canada please explain the apparent inconsistency in its position given that it has refused to enter into negotiations with the European Community with respect to entities at the sub-central level?

Canada's position of linking the tabling of its schedule at the sub-central level to achieving increased market access in sectors of priority interest to Canadian suppliers and improving security of market access through circumscribing the use of small business and other set-aside exceptions under the Agreement, remains unchanged.

The discriminatory and restrictive nature of Small Business Set-Asides and Buy American stem from US procurement policies at the national level. They are applied by States and municipalities in their procurement when federal funding is provided, particularly in the transportation and highways sectors. Therefore, US federal government policies must be addressed to assure market access and non-discriminatory treatment for suppliers to US State and municipal governments.

Question from the European Community

3. The application of non-discrimination rules to the sub-federal levels poses a problem. The Canadian provinces, subject as they are to the Agreement on Internal Trade (AIT), are not aware of (and do not accept) any obligation with regard to NAFTA and a fortiori to the ADP. In particular, national preference rules (allowing a price difference of up to ten per cent to be taken into account) apply in Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia. At the local level, the organization of which (municipalities, health system and educational system) falls exclusively within the competence of the provinces, this ignorance is even greater and localism is even stronger, to the detriment of both the rest of Canada and the rest of the world. At the sub-federal level, therefore, Canada is not complying with the obligations stemming from the AGP. When does it intend to do so?

Please see the response to the Questions from The United States No. 1 on scope and coverage, above.

III. TENDERING PROCEDURES

Question from Hong Kong, China

1. With regard to the reply to question 9 in the Checklist of Issues, in some cases, procuring entities may need to pre-qualify the suppliers before inviting them to participate in a tender. Does Canada consider this as a form of selective tendering?

Canada follows the provisions of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement with regard to the issue of selective tendering. Procuring entities may choose to use selective tendering procedures where they believe a pre-qualification process is required prior to inviting suppliers to participate in a tender.

Question from Switzerland

2. With regard to selective tendering procedures (Question 9 in the Checklist of Issues), it is mentioned that the procuring entity decides whether to use open or selective tendering procedures depending on the nature of the requirement. In the case of selective tendering, is there any rule requiring for minimal number of bidders in the second stage of the procedures? To what extent are entities allowed to use permanent or source lists of suppliers? Do potential suppliers and service providers have, at any time, the possibility to ask for inclusion in the list? Is the decision to refuse acceptance of a supplier contestable?

In the case of selective tendering, there is no specific rule regarding the minimum number of bidders in the second stage of the procedures. The decision to use a permanent list is made by the procurement organization on a case-by-case basis. In accordance with Article VIII(d), potential suppliers have the opportunity to request inclusion in a list of permanent suppliers at any time. Any aspect of the procurement process may be challenged, including the refusal to accept a supplier on a list.

Question from the United States

3. Please explain how Canada determines when the use of limited tendering procedures is permitted. Are there specific laws or regulations that define when such procedures may be used? How does Canada ensure that limited tendering procedures are not used with a view to avoiding maximum possible competition or in a manner which would constitute a means of discrimination among suppliers of other Parties to the GPA?

Limited tendering procedures are used as permitted within the GPA. In accordance with Article VII, limited tendering procedures are allowed only under the conditions specified in Article XV:1 (a) through (j). Canada ensures a high level of transparency for limited tendering by publishing Advance Contract Award Notices. This gives potential suppliers a chance to challenge the government's decision to approach only one source.

Question from the United States

4. Canada's response to question 11 of the Checklist states that the period for the receipt of tenders varies from 7 to 40 days, depending upon the relevant legislation of policy. Please elaborate upon this and specify the legislation, regulations or other policy instruments which set out the conditions for the use of the different time limits. Under what conditions, if any, are entities permitted to establish time periods for bidding that are shorter than those provided for in Article XI:2 of the GPA?

All notice periods for open and selective tendering are established in accordance with the provisions of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement.

Even when limited tendering is used, procurement authorities are encouraged to publish a notice, in the form of a limited tendering notice known as an Advance Contract Award Notice (ACAN), which is advertised on MERX and in the GBO (Government Business Opportunities) Bulletin. The ACAN, which is used only for limited tendering, is posted for seven working days. This gives potential suppliers an additional chance to challenge the government's decision to approach only one source. Potential suppliers have 15 calendar days in which to challenge the award.

Question from the European Community

5. The rules applicable to federal government procurement limit the possibilities of verifying whether there is any discrimination in the contracts awarded by the federal administration. The possibilities of avoiding tendering procedures are many. The European Community would like to have some clarification, in particular, of the utilisation of Chapter 8 of the Government Contracts Regulations of 23 June 1994:

- What is the proportion of non-competitive contracts in federal purchases (the subject of this chapter)?
- What is the actual distribution among the various cases of non-competitive procedures provided for in Article 5002 of these Regulations?
- How frequently are contracts concluded without prior notice of putting out to tender (case of minimum advertising of the public purchase) and what is the actual distribution between the cases provided for in Articles 8007 and 8008 of these Regulations?

We are unable to locate a document titled Government Contracts Regulations of 23 June 1994 with the Chapter and Article system described above.

As stated in response to Question 1 of the European Community, procuring authorities follow the law. Where procurement is covered by the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement, they only use the limited tendering reasons specified in Article XV of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement. Please note that the 1996 statistics that Canada has deposited provide the information required by Article XIX:5 of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement on limited tendering by reason.

Question from the European Community

6. The situation of public corporation contracts is also ambiguous. They are not subject to the government procurement regulations proper but to a much vaguer obligation to have recourse to competitive procedures. The Agreement on Internal Trade (AIT) applies in part only to these corporations (energy, in particular, is excluded although Hydro-Quebec, for instance, is the fifth largest public buyer in North America), while the NAFTA rules, which apply only to federal-level public corporations, fix liberalization thresholds that are even higher than those for procurement proper. In a context in which public services are administered more and more frequently by bodies other than central government entities (e.g. air transport), what status does Canada intend to give to purchases by public corporations at all levels?

Please see the response to Section III "Questions from The United States" No. 1 on scope and coverage, above.

IV. VALUATION OF CONTRACTS

Question from the United States

1. Please explain how Canada ensures, in accordance with Article II:3 of the GPA, that individual procurement requirements are not divided in such a way as to avoid application of the Agreement.

The valuation of contracts is conducted in accordance with the GPA including adherence to Article II:3. As such, the valuation method selected by the entity is not used, nor is any procurement requirement divided, with the intention of avoiding the application of the GPA.

V. TRANSPARENCY PROCEDURES AND APPLICATION OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

Questions from Switzerland

1. Regarding invitation to participate in Question 7 in the Checklist of Issues, it is mentioned that all of the entities covered by the Agreement are permitted to publish an invitation to participate. In the case of publishing an invitation in the form of a notice of proposed procurement, how are the requirements of Article IX:6 relating to the provision of information met? Is it possible to challenge the published note?

Invitations to participate are published in the Government Business Opportunities (GBO) and are also advertised on MERX, which provides Canada's government electronic tendering service. All information requirements of Article IX:6 are contained in the notice of proposed procurement. Any aspect of the procurement process may be challenged, including the published note.

Information concerning MERX, is available at the following website address:
www.merx.cebra.com.

Question from Switzerland

2. Is there any contact point providing information on procurement matters for suppliers and service providers from Parties to the GPA?

Information on procurement matters is accessible through the following Federal government websites:

Contracts Canada

www.contractsCanada.gc.ca

Treasury Board Secretariat

www.tbs-sct.gc.ca

MERX electronic tendering service

www.merx.cebra.com

The Contracts Canada website provides information for suppliers on how to do business or to sell to the Canadian government. The treasury Board Secretariat website provides information on government procurement policy. The MERCX website contains notices on government procurement. The three websites are linked.

Question from Hong Kong, China

3. It is mentioned in the reply to Question 5 in the Checklist of Issues that all procurements covered by the WTO GPA are advertised on the Open Bidding Service and Government Business Opportunities. Does Canada have any plans to receive bids through these two systems or otherwise by electronic means?

Canada does not have a policy on receipt of bids electronically. Canada does receive some bids or portions of bids electronically on a case-by-case basis. Canada has no plans to use the electronic tendering system for this purpose.

The Government Electronic Tendering Service is operated by the MERX system, which provides both the electronic and paper publications (Government Business Opportunities). The Open Bidding Service (OBS), operated by ISM Inc., was formerly used at the government electronic tendering service.

The Internet website of the Government Electronic Tendering Service provided by MERX is: www.merx.cebra.com.

VI. BID CHALLENGE PROCEDURES AND ENFORCEMENT

Question from Hong Kong, China

1. The Canadian International Trade Tribunal is responsible for determining the validity of procurement complaints. Its name, however, suggests that it may cover more than bid challenges under the GPA, but other forms of international trade disputes as well. Could Canada clarify the ambit of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal?

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal (CITT) is an independent quasi-judicial body and is not part of any federal government department or agency. It carries out its responsibilities in an open, fair, and impartial manner.

The Tribunal reports to Parliament through the Minister of Finance. Several acts of Parliament give the Tribunal powers to carry out its mandate. The primary sources of Canadian law governing the work of the Tribunal are as follows:

- the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act (CITT Act) and its Regulations;
- the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Rules;
- the Special Import Measures Act (SIMA) and its regulations;
- the Customs Act and the Customs Tariff; and
- the Excise Act.

The Tribunal's mandate covers both judicial and advisory functions. It:

- conducts inquiries into whether dumped or subsidized imports have caused, or are threatening to cause, material injury to a domestic industry;
- hears and decides appeals of Revenue Canada decisions made under the Customs Act, the Excise Tax Act and SIMA;
- conducts inquiries and provides advice on such economic, trade and tariff issues as are referred to the Tribunal by the Governor in Council or the Minister of Finance;
- investigates requests from Canadian producers for tariff relief on imported textile inputs that they use in their production operations;

- conducts safeguard inquiries into complaints by domestic producers that increased imports are causing, or are threatening to cause, serious injury to domestic producers; and
- conducts inquiries into complaints by potential suppliers concerning procurement by the federal government that is covered by NAFTA, the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) and the Agreement on Internal Trade (AIT).

Information relating to the Canadian International Trade Tribunal is available on the official website of the Tribunal. The CITT site address is: www.citt.gc.ca.

Question from Switzerland

2. In the reply to question 14(v) in the Checklist of Issues, it is mentioned that the government institution required to implement the Tribunal's recommendations, if intending not to fully implement them, must notify the Tribunal of the reasons for not doing so. This wording suggests that the recommendations of the Tribunal are not of a binding character. Could Canada clarify the discretion left to the procuring government entity?

A determination made by the Tribunal may consist of recommendations to the government institution (such as re-tendering, re-evaluation or providing compensation). The Tribunal may also award reasonable costs to a complainant to cover expenses for bid preparation and for the bid challenge. The Tribunal may also award costs incurred in participating in proceedings relating to a complaint. The government institution and all other parties are notified of the Tribunal's decision.

Recommendations made by the Tribunal in its determination are to be implemented to the greatest extent possible. In the event the government institution involved in the procurement cannot implement the recommendations of the Tribunal, it must notify the Tribunal of the reasons for not doing so. A decision not to implement on the part of the government institution can be appealed to the Federal Court. The Federal Court has indicated that the provisions regarding implementation of the recommendations of the Tribunal are intended to make non-compliance "an unusual occurrence".

3. Is there any institution or body (besides the CITT) monitoring the enforcement of the GPA? Could Canada explain the kinds of action the Federal Cabinet is empowered to take in furtherance of administering Canada's activities under the WTO Agreement?

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal (CITT) does not monitor the enforcement of the GPA. The Tribunal receives complaints from potential suppliers regarding the federal government procurement process. Once the Tribunal has received a complaint, it then determines whether the government institution responsible for the procurement under review has met the requirements of international and national trade agreements and Canadian legislation. Decisions of the Tribunal may be appealed to the Federal Court of Canada.

With respect to the Federal Cabinet, the Prime Minister appoints the Cabinet from amongst elected Members of Parliament of his or her party. Each Cabinet Minister is given responsibility for a department of the government. Ministers represent their portfolios in the House of Commons and table legislation affecting their departments as necessary. They are accountable to the House for all actions carried out in their name or by their department because, under Canada's Constitution, this is where elected officials are made responsible to the citizens of Canada.

Further information on the structure of the Canadian government and its executive branch is available at the Parliamentary Internet: www.parl.gc.ca.

Question from the United States

4. Please indicate whether Canada's responses to the questions contained in Section III of the Checklist (Challenge Procedures) apply to covered sub-central entities, including the Federal enterprises listed in Annex 3. If not, please provide responses to those questions, and to the United States' questions 6 and 7 below, with respect to covered sub-central entities.

Please see the response to Questions from The United States" No. 1 on scope and coverage, above.

Question from the United States

5. Canada's response to the availability of challenge procedures as set forth in paragraph 3 of Article XX of the GPA cites the "Procurement Review Process - A Descriptive Guide", January 1996, as being provided to the WTO. Please describe how this guide and other forms of Canada's challenge procedures are disseminated to the public.

The guide titled "Procurement Review Process - A Descriptive Guide" along with other documents outlining the details of Canadian challenge procedures are widely disseminated and are accessible through the Internet at the official website of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal. The CITT site address is: www.citt.gc.ca.

Other documents relating to Government procurement such as "Information of Procurement Review" and "Canadian International Trade Tribunal - Procurement Cost Guidelines" are also available on the CITT website.

Tribunal documents are also available through the CITT's Factsline which is accessed via a telecopier telephone or by contacting the Tribunal directly and requesting the desired publication.

Question from the United States

6. Canada states that rapid interim measures are available to correct breaches of the GPA and that those measures include the possibility of suspension of the procurement process, unless a government entity certifies in writing that "the procurement is urgent or that a delay in awarding the contract would be contrary to the public interest." Please explain how those exceptions ("urgent" and "contrary to the public interest") are defined in Canada's applicable laws, regulations and other policy instruments, and whether the certification (of urgency or need for a delay) is subject to internal review or whether it is a unilateral decision.

The terms "urgent" and "contrary to the public interest" are contained in the Canadian Trade Tribunal Act Article 30.1 (3) subsection 4. In the event that the government procuring entity believes that the "the procurement is urgent or that a delay in awarding the contract would be contrary to the public interest" and makes certification to that effect in writing to the Tribunal, then the Tribunal will accept the certification of the procuring entity.

Question from the United States

7. In response to the question on rapid interim measures available to correct breaches of the Agreement, Canada stated that “[a]ny party to a procurement complaint proceeding may request that the Tribunal consider the feasibility of using the ‘express option’ procedure...” Please explain what factors may be taken into account in considering the feasibility of such rapid interim measures.

As stated in Canada's Checklist of Issues, the accelerated procedure or the 'express option' may be warranted in reviewing possible breaches to the Agreement. Any party may request the use of the express option, provided that the request is made in writing and submitted to the Tribunal no later than three days from the filing of the complaint. The Tribunal will decide within two days of receiving the request whether the case is suitable for the express option, taking into consideration the reasons for the request, the complexity of the case and the workload of the Tribunal.

When the express option is used, the normal time-limits for submission of the various reports and comments and issuance of the Tribunal's determination are compressed. Under the express option, the Government Institution Report must be filed within ten days of the government institution being notified by the Tribunal that the express option will be used. The complainant's and intervener's comments on the Government Institution Report must be filed with the Tribunal within five days of the report being sent to the complainant by the Tribunal, and the Tribunal's determination must be issued within 45 days of the filing of the complaint.

8. Is there any practice establishing a tool for the rapid and informal solution of problems encountered by suppliers and service providers in getting access to public contracts outside judicial review?

With respect to the question of a rapid and informal solutions, a potential supplier or service provider with an objection is encouraged initially to try to resolve the issue with the government institution responsible for the procurement. If this process is not successful or a supplier chooses to deal directly with the Tribunal, the supplier may do so by filing a written complaint in accordance with CITT's regulations. As stated in the Regulations Respecting Canadian International Trade Tribunal Inquiries into Potential Suppliers' Complaints Concerning Government Procurement, Article 6(2):

"A potential supplier who has made an objection regarding a procurement relating to a designated contract to the relevant government institution, and is denied relief by that government institution, may file a complaint with the Tribunal within ten working days after the day on which the potential supplier has actual or constructive knowledge of the denial of relief, if the objection was made within ten working days after the day on which its basis became known or reasonably should have become known to the potential supplier."

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from the European Community

The following communication has been received from the Permanent Delegation of the Commission of the European Community in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

I. SUMMARY OF THE EC LEGISLATION ON PUBLIC PROCUREMENT

I.1 EC Level

(i) At EC level, general public procurement rules stem from the Rome Treaty. These rules have been completed by several Community Directives, specially with respect to procedural requirements.

The main EC Treaty articles having consequences for public procurement are Articles 6 (non-discrimination on grounds of nationality principle), 30 to 36 (the ban on quantitative restrictions on imports and all measures having equivalent effect), 52 & seq. (the right to establishment in the territory of another member State) and 59 & seq. (freedom to provide services).

Secondary legislation applies these general principles to concrete matters. Thus, there is a group of Council Directives laying down certain common rules with respect to Public Procurement. These directives need implementation at national level and their purpose is to coordinate the procedures to be followed in member States whenever a contract is to be awarded whose value exceeds a certain threshold.

The GPA was transposed into EC law by Council Decision N° 94/800/EC of 22 December 1994 (see section 4 below).

To a large extent, EC rules coincide with the GPA rules on public procurement. Some minor amendments are in the process of being adopted to align the EC directives with the GPA rules where differences would create reverse discrimination against EC suppliers.¹

For contracts below the thresholds, national rules are not bound by the EC directives, nor by the GPA, though the general rules of the Treaty still apply. This means that, below thresholds, national rules are not uniform, so that each member State has its own public procurement rules which must only respect the general principles laid down in the Treaty, in particular non-discrimination in respect of goods and services.

The directives fall into two groups, those governing the traditional areas of public procurement (Public Authorities directives or traditional sectors directives), and those dealing with water, energy, transport and telecommunications (Utilities directives or "excluded" sectors directives). Each group is completed by a Remedies directive. Although they differ in a number of respects, both groups apply the following principles: a ban on discrimination; open access to all EC suppliers, transparency of award procedures; a precise indication of which of the permissible award procedures has been chosen; compliance with technical requirements and transparency of the procedures for selecting contractors and awarding contracts, through the use of objective criteria which must be known beforehand.

(ii) The public authorities directives

Contracting authorities in the sense of these directives are the State, Regional or Local authorities, and bodies governed by public law. These authorities are covered in Annexes 1 and 2 of Appendix I of the GPA.

- Council Directive N° 93/36 coordinating procedures for the award of public supply contracts (The Public Supplies Directive).
- Council Directive N° 93/37 concerning the coordination of procedures for the award of public works contracts (the Public Works Directive). This directive covers contracts between a contractor and a contracting authority concerning the execution or both the execution and design of works related to building or civil engineering activities, in addition to ancillary supplies and services contracts necessary for their execution.
- Council Directive N° 92/50 relating to the coordination of procedures for the award of public service contracts (the Public Services Directive). This directive covers all contracts between a contracting authority and a service supplier which are not yet covered by other existing public procurement directives. Services are divided into two categories, priority services for which there is a complete set of rules, and other services for which the requirements are much less (see Articles 8-10). Priority services are listed in Annex IA of the directive. All the services listed in Annex 4 to Appendix I of the GPA are included in this category of priority services.
- Council Directive N° 89/665 on the coordination of the laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the application of review procedures to the award of public supply and public works contracts, and public services (the Remedies Directive). This directive obliges member States to ensure adequate procedures, including the authorization of competent review bodies to take the necessary measures to ensure effective remedies for undertakings lessed by infringements of Community law.

(iii) Utilities directives

- Council directive N° 93/38 coordinating the procurement procedures of the entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors (the Utilities Directive). This directive governs those contracts of authorities and public undertakings operating in the so-called "former excluded sectors" and other contracting entities operating on the basis of special or exclusive rights granted by a competent public authority. Therefore, this directive is relevant for contracts awarded by the contracting entities listed in Annex 3 to Appendix I of the GPA and which operate in the water, electricity, airports, ports and urban transport sectors. Rules applying to those sectors are more flexible than those for the traditional public procurement sectors.

- Council directive 92/13 coordinating the laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the application of Community rules on the procurement procedures of entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors (the Remedies Utilities Directive). This directive also obliges inter alia member States to establish adequate procedures to ensure effective remedies for infringements of Community law in the sectors concerned.

(iv) A booklet describing the EC rules governing the procedure in the award of public procurement contracts is attached.

I.2 Member State Level

At member State level, national legislation has implemented both GPA and EC rules.

(A) Austria. Procurement regulations above the thresholds for Central Government Entities are specified in the Federal Act "Bundesvergabegesetz 1997". Each of Austria's nine states ("Bundesländer") has adopted its own procurement act. The revised Bundesvergabegesetz implements the obligatory use of "ONORM A-2050" below the thresholds.

(B) Belgium. Legislation on public procurement of goods, works and services falls within the competences of the federal authorities, which have enacted an Act and implementing regulations (arrêtés royaux). This legislation applies to any public contract, regardless of its value, if they have a pecuniary interest.

Those texts are:

- Law of 24 December 1993 on public procurement and certain works, services and supplies contracts, including Royal Order of 10 January 1996 amending Title IV of Book I of that Law;
- Royal Order of 8 January 1996 on public procurement of works, supplies and services and on public works concessions;
- Royal Order of 10 January 1996 on public procurement of works, supplies and services in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors.

(D) Germany. The basis of the German procurement law is article 57a to 57c of the Haushaltsgrundsatzgesetz (Budgetary principle law). Article 57a defines the group of contracting authorities. Articles 57b and c are concerned with the review procedures used in cases of violation of procurement provisions. The contract award regulations that German contracting authorities must comply with are the following: Verdingungsordnung für Leistungen, VOL/A (Code for Awarding Public Supplies Contracts including services which are supplied commercially, but excluding public works contracts); Verdingungsordnung für Bauleistungen, VOB/A (Code for awarding public works contracts). Each code is divided into 4 sections. VOL/A: the first section contains provisions for national awards of supplies and services contracts below the EC thresholds; the second section contains provisions which implement the regulations of the EC public supplies Directive 93/36 and the EC public services Directive (92/50) as regards commercial and industrial services. Contracting authorities must comply with this section if the contract exceeds the EC thresholds; the third section contains provisions applicable to public contracting entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecom sector according to the EC Utilities Directive 93/38; the fourth section contains the implementation of the EC Utilities Directive for private contracting authorities. The VOB/A is similarly divided: first section, national regulations for the awards of public works contracts below the EC thresholds; second section, regulations which implement the EC public works Directive 93/37 and therefore are relevant to contracts above the EC threshold; third section, provisions which implement the EC Utilities Directive concerning public contracting authorities; fourth section, implementation of the EC utilities Directive for private contracting authorities. The Verdingungsordnung für freiberufliche Leistungen (VOF) contains the contract award regulations of the EC-Directive 92/50 for services which are provided by free-lancers.

(DK) Denmark. All directives have been implemented in Danish legislation. The basis for so doing is the Ministry of Housing and Building's Consolidation Act N° 600 of 30 June 1992, which enables the competent ministries to implement public procurement directives by ministerial orders. The specific implementing measures are the following: Ministerial order N° 201 of 27 March 1995 on the award of public works contracts in the European Communities (Directive 93/37); Ministerial order N° 510 of 16 June 1994 on coordination of procedures for public supplies (Directive 93/36); Ministerial order N° 415 of 22 June 1993 on the coordination of procedures for the award of contracts for public procurement of services within the European Communities (Directive 92/50); Ministerial order N° 558 of 24 June 1994 on tendering of purchases within water and energy supply as well as transport and telecommunications in the European Community (Directive 93/38 as far as works contracts are concerned, also implements the provisions of Directive 92/13 concerning attestation); Ministerial order N° 557 of 24 June 1994 on tendering of purchases within water and energy supply as well as transport and telecommunications in the European Communities (Directive 93/38 as far as supplies and services are concerned, also implements the provisions of Directive 92/13 concerning attestation); Consolidation Act N° 1166 of 20.12.1995 on the Review Board for Tenders (Tendering of works and supplies in the European Communities) combined with ministerial order N° 26 of 23 January 1996 on the Review Board for Tenders implement both Directive 89/665 and Directive 92/13).

The following regulations apply in Denmark also to contracts of a value inferior to the thresholds: Circular of 14 April 1989 issued by the Housing and Building Agency which prescribes that State construction contracts and construction contracts subsidized by the State shall be subject to a public tender; Circular of 1 March 1994 issued by the Ministry of Finance which imposes an obligation on central government institutions to undertake a market testing on a regular basis with a view to a possible contracting out of a given activity.

(E) Spain. Basic legislation. Law 13/1995 (18 May) of Public Procurement. Its scope covers the State, the Regions, the Local administration, the autonomous bodies and the entities subject to public law which have their own legal personality and are linked to any Public administration which have been created to satisfy the general interest or whose activity is mostly financed by public administrations, or whose direction is controlled by public administrations, or whose direction bodies are composed in their majority by persons appointed by public administrations or other entities of public law. Royal Decree 390/1996 (1 March), implementing the Law 13/1995. Also relevant are: Law 30/1992 (26 November) on the Legal regime of the Public Administrations and on the Common administrative procedure; Law 7/1985 (2 April) on the Local administration. Furthermore, there are some specific regulations enacted by the Regions.

(EL) Greece. As concerns contracts for supplies the value of which is lower than the threshold established by Directive 93/36, Greece applies Law N° 2286/94 and the Regulation of public procurement (Presidential Decree 394/96) implementing the general provisions of the Treaty. In most cases, an open or restricted tendering procedure takes place and in exceptional cases a negotiated procedure. For supplies contracts equal to or exceeding ECU 137_000 in value, for the entities of Annex 1 and ECU 200,000 in value for all the other entities of public sector, Greece applies the treaty and Directive 93/36 as incorporated in the Hellenic Legislation through consecutive presidential Decree 370/95. As concerns contracts for public works the value of which is lower than the threshold established by Directive 93/37, Greece applies Law N° 1418/84 (as modified notably by Law N° 2299/94, Law N° 2308/95, Law N° 2372/96 and by Presidential Decrees) implementing the general provisions of the Treaty. In most cases, an open or restricted tendering procedure takes place and - in exceptional cases - a negotiated procedure. For those public works contracts equal to or exceeding ECU 5 million in value, Greece applies the Treaty and Directive 93/37 as incorporated in the Hellenic legislation through consecutive presidential Decrees (notably 23/93 and 85/95). For all contracts for design and construction of public works, tendering and monitoring is carried out at three levels: central, peripheral and local level. As regards public services contracts, a legislation of a systematic and general nature is presently absent, pending the incorporation of Directive 92/50 into the Hellenic legislation. For the public services contracts with a value lower than the threshold of ECU 200.000, Greece applies Law N° 2362/95 (Arts. 8 & 23) which provides for public tendering. As an exception, the public procurement of services after a simpler procedure or a negotiated procedure is allowed. There also exists a special legislation for public works design contracts, which, however, has to be modified, pending the incorporation of the 92/50 Directive. The processes for public procurement of services for the entities operating in the utilities sectors, will be provided for in the forthcoming legislation incorporating Directive 93/38.

(F) France. Every contract awarded by the State, the territorial subdivisions and the public bodies must follow the rules established by the Code on Public Procurement, which comprises all the texts concerning the award of public contracts. Those rules are similar to those of the EC directives. The Code establishes the general principle of freedom of access for candidates to public contracts, and that of equality of treatment for both candidates and tenders. It sets out that contracts are awarded, in general, after a call for tenders, and limits the cases in which a negotiated procedure can be used.

(I) Italy. The Italian regime in force concerning public procurement has been regulated by four Legislative Decrees, that is to say, laws delegated from Parliament to Government. The first, Legislative Decree of 19 December 1991, N° 406 transposed the Works Directive. In addition, a Law of 11 February 1994, N° 109 (so-called Merloni Act) is also relevant to works. The second, Legislative Decree of 24 July 1992, N° 358 transposed the Supplies Directive. The third, Legislative Decree of 17 March 1995, N° 157 transposed into Italian legislation the Services Directive 92/50. The fourth, Legislative Decree of 17 March 1995, N° 158 transposed the Directives 90/531 and 93/38, concerning the so-called excluded sectors.

Furthermore, as regards remedies, there are some provisions applicable in other laws. Law N° 1034 of 6 December 1971, Law N° 142 of 19 February 1992 and the Civil Code.

(IRL) Ireland. There is no body of law governing public procurement in Ireland law except for that provided for under European Community, WTO and other international obligations. Ireland has implemented into law all EU public procurement Directives by means of secondary legislation, that is by way of "Statutory Instruments" which transpose the Directives directly into Irish law.

With respect to contracts below EU thresholds, there are no legally binding regulations but there are national government guidelines which public authorities are bound to follow. The national guidelines are published by the Department of Finance and were last issued in 1994. The guidelines sets out the requirements for dealing with sub-threshold and above-threshold EU contracts. The Guidelines apply to "Government Departments, local and regional authorities and other bodies dependent on State funding, in the award of public sector contracts (including the acquisition, letting and disposal of public property)". In addition, it is pointed out that commercial and non-commercial State bodies should comply with the broad principles of Government contracts procedures and that tax clearance procedures are obligatory in all cases. Although these guidelines do not have formal force of law, failure to apply them may obviously attract the censure of the Department of Finance, Parliament, auditors and the Media. In addition, purchasers are aware of the argument that failure to comply with the guidelines may be a breach of a representation or contractual obligation, to the effect that the purchaser will apply the proper published guidelines in consideration of the tenderer submitting his tender.

(L) Luxembourg. The main law is the Act concerning public supply and public works contracts (04.04.1974), based on the non-discrimination principles of the Treaty of Rome. EC directives have been implemented by special Regulations: one for the classical sectors (27.01.1994, as amended 31.05.1996), and one for the utilities (02.02.1996). An Act of 21.12.1989 transposed the remedies directive, which will be amended in what refers to the utilities remedies directive.

(NL) Netherlands. The EC directives have been implemented in The Netherlands through the Raamwet EEG-voorschriften aanbestedingen of March 13, 1993 (Staatsblad 1993, 212), entry into force 12 April 1993 (Framework legislation EEC regulation). Under this framework law there are the following two decrees for the relevant sectors:

- Besluit aanbestedingen nutssector (Staatsblad 1993, 305), entry into force 21 April 1993 (Decree on procurement in the sector of utilities). This decree applies to procurement in the sector of utilities.
- Besluit overheidsaanbestedingen (Staatsblad 1993, 305, as amended in 1994, Staatsblad 1994, 379), entry into force 1 July 1993 (Decree on government procurement). This decree applies to procurement of products, services and construction services.

The implementation is effected by a reference in the national legislation to the provisions of the EC directives which have to be applied.

Additionally, the Uniform Aanbestedingsreglement EG 1991 (UAR-EG, Staatscourant 228, 1991, as amended in 1995, Staatscourant 1995, 103) (Harmonised regulation on EC procurement) contains standard conditions and procedures for the central government with respect to construction services.

The two EC directives on remedies (89/665 and 92/13) are covered by existing national legislation (Civil Code). Therefore, no specific national legislation implementing these directives was needed.

(P) Portugal. Rules governing public procurement in Portugal are the Decreto-Lei N° 55/95 as modified by Decreto-Lei N° 80/96. The Decreto-Lei N° 64/94 governs the procurement of computer-related goods and services. The Decreto-Lei N° 405/93 refers to works.

(S) Sweden. Sweden has incorporated all the relevant EC directives in its Law on public procurement (Lagen (1992:1528) om Offentlig Upphandling, LOU), which has been revised accordingly (1993:1468) and reprinted in the register of promulgated laws (Svensk Författningssamling, SFS). The law has been additionally revised through amendments 1994:614, 1995:704 and 1996:433. Further amendments to the LOU and specific detailed regulations will enter into force on 1 January 1998. The LOU applies to the same procuring entities and covers all types of procurement (supplies, public works and services contracts) that are subject to Community legislation.

(SF) Finland. The Public Procurement Act (1505/92, of 23.12.1992, amend. 1523/94 of 29.12.1994) is a general framework-law that applies to almost all purchase, rental or corresponding transactions in respect of goods and services, or for tenders administered by the State authorities, local authorities or other contracting entities referred to in the Act. The contracting entities covered by the Act shall observe the Act in their procurement with the view to promoting competition and ensuring proper and non-discriminatory treatment of those who participate in a tendering procedure. Within all fields other than the utilities sector (water, energy, transport and telecommunications sector) the Act applies to procurements below the threshold values as well as to procurements in excess thereof.

There are also two implementing orders: order on the procurement of supplies, services and works in excess of threshold value (24.02.1995/243) and Order on the procurement in excess of threshold value by entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sector (28.06.1994/567, amended 24.02.1995/244).

(UK) United Kingdom. The UK has implemented all the EC public directives by secondary legislation as follows: for public authorities, for supplies, Statutory Instrument (SI) 1995/201 implements 93/36/EEC, for works, SI 1991/2680 implements 93/37/EEC, for services, SI 1993/3228 implements 92/50/EEC; for utilities, 1996/2911 implements 93/38/EEC.

It should be noted that each of the above Statutory Instruments also implement the relevant enforcement rules. So the three SIs for the public sector (1995/201, 1991/2680 and 1993/3228) also implement 89/665/EEC the Compliance directive and for the utilities 1996/2911 implements 92/13/EEC, the Remedies directive.

In addition to these laws, the basic UK policy approach, which covers below threshold procurement as well, is set out in 'Public Purchasing Policy: Consolidated Guidelines,' (HM Treasury 1988). These provide that government purchasing should be conducted on the basis of achieving value for money through competition, which would not permit discrimination on grounds of nationality.

IV. RESPONSES TO THE CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

IV.1 General Elements

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The Agreement was transposed into EC law by Council Decision N° 94/800/EC of 22 December 1994 concerning the conclusion on behalf of the European Community, as regards matters within its competence, of the agreements reached in the Uruguay Round multilateral negotiations (1986-1994). See OJ L336 pages 1 and 273, of 23.12.1994.

It was completed by Decision N° 95/215/EC of 29 May 1995 concerning the conclusion of an Agreement in the form of an exchange of letters between the European Community and the United States of America. See OJ L134 page 25, of 20.6.1995.

A Communication was also made to explain that art. 36 of Directive 93/38 establishing a Community preference has been waived as a consequence of the entry into force of the GPA for those fields covered by the GPA. See OJ C 332/9, of 9.12.1995.

Under EC law no further legal instruments are required to ensure full application of such agreement. In other words, following Council's Decision, the GPA forms an integral part of the EC law. All covered contracting entities have to comply with the requirements of the GPA, as is the case for the requirements of the Directives.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

National laws need to be adapted to the requirements of the Agreement as incorporated by Council Decision 94/800. This is done either at federal/central level or at sub-central level depending on the internal allocation of powers in each member State.

It must be noted that within the EC, federal/central level includes entities from the EU (Council and Commission) as well as entities at central and federal level of the different member States.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Annex 3 entities apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The so-called Public Authorities Directives (see subchapter I.1, supra) apply both to the central/federal and sub-central levels. Therefore, rules are identical.

As for Annex 3 entities, they follow the rules of the Utilities Directive, which might slightly differ from the traditional Directives in some points. In particular, utilities have a free choice between open, restricted and negotiated procedures provided that a call for competition has been made through publication in the Official Journal. For Annex 1 and 2 entities, the use of the negotiated procedure, even with prior call for competition, is more restricted.

Another important difference is that unlike the traditional directives, the Utilities Directive does not lay down any qualitative selection criteria and thus allows contracting entities some discretion here. However, the criteria adopted must be objective and made available to all interested firms.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Notices above the relevant thresholds set out in the GPA and in the EC Directives must be published in the Official Journal of the European Communities (Supplement "S"). The Official Journal (Supplement "S") is published in paper version and, from January 1997, in CD-Rom. In addition, notices are included in an electronic database: Tenders Electronic Daily, known as TED.

TED is the on-line version of the printed "Supplement S to the Official Journal". Similarly to the Official Journal, TED is updated five times per week. It is produced by the Office for Official Publications of the European Communities, hosted by the European Commission Host Organisation (ECHO) and offered in many countries via Official Gateways. At present, in addition to the former connection procedures, a user-friendly graphical interface allows users to connect to the ECHO databases using a "Windows" environment ("Windows access to Central Host"). Watch-ECHO can be downloaded from the Internet (<http://www2.echo.lu/echo/en/menuecho.html>).

Furthermore, the Commission services are currently working on a pilot project named SIMAP (Information system for public procurement) which intends to create an EU-wide electronic public procurement network aiming to make the process more efficient, more reliable, less time-consuming, and ultimately more cost effective, both for procurers and suppliers. The Internet Homepage can be visited at: <http://simap.eu.int>.

IV.2 Specific Elements

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

There are no discriminatory provisions in the EC law against third country suppliers or products other than those contained in Directive 93/38 (utilities directive). Furthermore, to the extent that the GPA is part of the EC law, pursuant to Decision 94/800, all relations between contracting entities and GPA countries' suppliers are governed by this decision.

Article 36 of the so-called Utilities Directives allows contracting entities to reject a tender if the proportion of non-Community products contained exceeds 50 per cent of the total value of the products constituting the tender. In presence of two equivalent tenders, rejection is compulsory. They are considered to be equivalent if the price difference does not exceed 3 per cent between tenders containing Community or non-Community products as described above.

This article only applies to entities covered by Annex 3 to Appendix I of the Agreement. However, the provisions of this article are automatically disapplied in case that an Agreement ensures comparable and effective access for Community suppliers. This is particularly the case of the GPA. A communication clarifying this issue was published in the Official Journal C332 page 9, of 9.12.1995.

See also Council Decision N° 94/800/EC, of 22.12.1994 referred to in answer to question N° 1.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

EC Directives provide for the publication of notices of proposed procurement. We can distinguish the traditional sectors from the utilities.

For the traditional sectors (entities listed in Annex 1 and 2 of the GPA), Contracting authorities shall make known, by means of a notice, their intention to award a contract. This notice shall be sent to the Office for Official Publications of the European Communities, which shall publish it not later than 12 days after its dispatch (5 days in accelerated procedures). Notices shall be drawn up in accordance with the models given in the Annexes to the relevant directives, and shall specify the information requested in those models. Notices are published in full in the Official Journal of the European Communities (supplement S) and in the TED data base in the original language, which alone is authentic. A summary of the important elements of each notice is published in the other official languages of the Community, the original text alone being authentic. At present, the official languages of the Community are: Danish, Dutch, English, Finnish, French, German, Greek, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish and Swedish.

In the utilities sectors (entities covered under Annex 3), a call for competition is published in full in the original language in the O.J. of the E.C. and in the TED data bank. A summary of the important elements of each notice is published in the other official languages of the Community, the original text alone being authentic. Notices are sent to the Office for Official Publications of the European Communities, which publishes them not later than 12 days after dispatch (5 days in accelerated procedures).

Calls for competition may adopt four different forms: a notice stating the intention to award a particular contract; a periodic indicative notice to which undertakings can express their interest (in that case, it must have been published not more than 12 months prior to the date on which the invitation to confirm the interest is sent, there is no further publication of a notice of a call for competition); a notice on the existence of a qualification system; or a notice of a call for competition in the case of design contests.

Moreover, electronic standard forms are currently being used for transmission of notices to the Office of Publications. However, the use of standard forms is not yet mandatory.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

As regards the traditional sectors (Annexes 1 and 2), in addition to invitation to tender notices, pre-information notices are published. These are however purely for information and cannot be used as a call for competition. In works contracts, contracting authorities publish indicative notices containing the essential characteristics of the works contracts which they intend to award. This notice is published in full in all the official languages of the Community, the original text alone being authentic. In other services and in supplies contracts, contracting authorities shall make known, by means of an indicative notice to be published as soon as possible after the beginning of their budgetary year, the intended total procurement which they envisage awarding during the subsequent 12 months where the total estimated value is not less than ECU 750,000.

As regards utilities, (Annex 3 entities), see the answer to question 7.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

In the case of Annex 3 entities, contracting entities which so wish may establish and operate a system of qualification of suppliers, contractors and service providers. An informative notice is published in the Official Journal of the European Communities. The system operates on the basis of objective criteria and rules. Updating of criteria and rules is possible. Refusal of qualification or bringing the qualification to an end must be reasoned and applicants or services providers should be notified.

Where a qualification system exists and a Qualification Notice is used as the sole "call for competition", the selection of candidates for bidlists for specific contracts must derive from those suppliers or contractors qualified under the system.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

In the case of entities covered by Annexes 1 and 2 of the GPA, Contracting Authorities are entirely free to opt between open or restricted procedures. However, the option of negotiated procedures, with or without prior publication of a contract notice, is limited to particular situations:

- with prior publication of a contract notice:
 - in case of irregular tenders in response to an open or restricted procedure or in the case of tenders which are unacceptable under national provisions insofar as the original terms for the contract are not substantially altered (supplies, works, services);
 - when the works involved are carried out for the purpose of research, experiment, or development (works);
 - in exceptional cases, when the nature of the works/services or the risks attaching thereto do not permit prior overall pricing (works, services);
 - when the nature of the services to be procured is such that contract specifications cannot be established with sufficient precision to permit the award of the contract by using open or restricted procedures (services);
- without prior publication of a contract notice:
 - in the absence of tenders or appropriate tenders in response to an open or restricted procedure insofar as the original terms for the contract are not substantially altered (supplies, works, services);
 - when the products involved are manufactured for the purpose of research, experiment, study or development (supplies);
 - when for technical or artistic reasons, or for reasons connected with protection of exclusive rights, there is only one supplier or contractor (supplies, works, services);
 - when the contract follows a design contest and must be awarded to the successful candidate or one of the successful candidates (services);
 - when it is strictly necessary for reasons of extreme urgency brought about by events unforeseeable (supplies, works, services);
 - in case of additional deliveries by the original supplier, justified by the risk of technical incompatibility or disproportionate technical difficulties (supplies);
 - for additional works/services (up to a limit of 50 per cent of the amount of the main contract) becoming necessary for the carrying out of the work/for the performance of the service through unforeseen circumstances, if the non-separation is justified by technical or economic reasons (works, services);

- for new works/services consisting of the repetition of similar works/services entrusted to the contractor/service provider to which the same contracting authorities awarded an earlier contract, under certain conditions (works, services).

In the case of entities covered by Annex 3, Contracting entities may choose any of the procedures (open, restricted and negotiated) provided that a call for competition has been made (see answer to question 7). This prior call for competition can be avoided under some circumstances:

- in the absence of tenders or suitable tenders in response to procedure with a prior call for competition provided that the original contract conditions have not been substantially changed;
- when the contract is purely for the purpose of research, experiment, study or development, under certain conditions;
- when for technical or artistic reasons, or for reasons connected with protection of exclusive rights, there is only one supplier or contractor;
- when it is strictly necessary for reasons of extreme urgency brought about by events unforeseeable by the contracting entities;
- in case of additional deliveries by the original supplier, justified by the risk of technical incompatibility or disproportionate technical difficulties (supplies);
- for additional works/services becoming necessary for the carrying out of the work/for the performance of the service through unforeseen circumstances, if the non-separation is justified by technical or economic reasons (works, services);
- for new works consisting of the repetition of similar works entrusted to the contractor to which the same contracting authorities awarded an earlier contract, under certain conditions (works);
- for supplies quoted and purchased on a commodity market;
- for contracts to be awarded on the basis of a framework agreement (agreement the purpose of which is to establish the terms governing the contracts to be awarded during a given period);
- for bargain purchases (particularly advantageous opportunity available for a very short space of time at a price considerably lower than normal market prices);
- for purchases of goods under particularly advantageous conditions from either suppliers winding up their business activities or the liquidators for a bankruptcy (or similar);
- when the service contract follows a design contest and must be awarded to the successful candidate or one of the successful candidates (services).

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be “not less than X days”. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time-limits which have been established.

As for the entities covered by Annex 1 and 2 of the GPA, (the traditional sectors) time-limits are as follows:

- In open procedures, the deadline established by the authority for receipt of the tenders cannot be less than 52 calendar days from the date of dispatch of the notice for publication. This time-limit may be reduced (only for works and services) to 36 days if a prior information notice has been published.
- In restricted and negotiated procedures, the bid is preceded by a request from the contractor to be invited to participate in the tender. The time-limit for receipt of requests to participate fixed by the contracting authorities shall be no less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice. The time-limit for receipt of tenders may not be less than 40 days from the date of dispatch of the written invitation in the case of restricted procedures. This time-limit can be reduced to 26 days if a prior information notice has been published. In case of justified urgency, those time-limits may be reduced to not less than 15 days for the receipt of request, and not less than 10 days for the receipt of tenders.

As for the entities covered by Annex 3 of the GPA (utilities operating in some sectors) time-limits are as follows:

- In open procedures, the time-limit for the receipt of tenders is the same as for the traditional sectors: 52 days (36 if pre-information).
- In restricted and negotiated procedures, timing is different. The time-limit for receipt of requests to participate shall, as a general rule, be at least 5 weeks from the date of dispatch of the notice or invitation and shall in any case not be less 22 days (or 15 under certain conditions). The time-limit for receipt of tenders may be fixed by mutual agreement between the contracting entity and the selected candidates, provided that all tenderers are given equal time to prepare and submit tenders. If that kind of agreement is not reached, the contracting entity shall fix a time-limit which shall, as a general rule, be at least 3 weeks and shall in any case not be less than 10 days from the date of invitation to tender.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1 to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The language to be used in public procurement procedures is a matter to be decided by each member State. It must be highlighted that six member States have a WTO language as an official language (Belgium, France, Ireland, Luxembourg, Spain and the United Kingdom).

IV.3 Challenge Procedures - Article XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The rule is that any potential contractor who considers that he has been injured by an unlawful decision on the part of a contracting authority may seek review. There are two levels of remedies available: national procedures and EC level control.

(i) Regarding national remedies, the Community has adopted two directives (the so-called Remedies Directives, see supra chapter I.1) aiming to coordinate the laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the application of Community rules on the procurement procedures. According to the general aim of these directives, member States shall take the measures necessary to ensure that decisions taken by contracting entities may be reviewed effectively on the ground that such decisions have infringed Community law in the field of procurement or national rules implementing that law as regards contract award procedures falling within the scope of the Public Authorities Directives or the Utilities Directive. The objective is to ensure that everyone everywhere has the same rights concerning the review procedures.

These directives provide for the establishment in every member State of courts or other legally authorised bodies with real powers to settle the conflicts which might arise between contracting entities and firms, suppliers of services or individuals. This means that in every member State there is some legally authorised body able to resolve conflicts in the field of public procurement. Nevertheless, the nature of the jurisdiction may differ from one member State to another, as well as the remedies available. Review bodies of first instance might not be necessarily judicial in character, although their decision should always be reasoned. However, in such a case, their decision must be subject to judicial review or review by another body which is a court or tribunal within the meaning of article 177 of the Treaty, and independent of both the contracting entity and the review body. This independent body shall take its decisions following a procedure in which both sides are heard, and these decisions shall, by means determined by each member State, be legally binding.

Review procedures are available at least to any person having or having had an interest in obtaining a particular contract and who has been or risks being harmed by an alleged infringement.

Member States must ensure that the review bodies have a minimum number of powers.

- Review of contracting entities' action

In the case of the conflicts arising under the Public Authorities Directive (i.e. entities covered by Annexes 1 and 2 of the Agreement), member States shall ensure that the review bodies have the power to intervene directly in the contracting entities' procurement procedures. Those powers include, firstly, power to take, at the earliest opportunity and by way of interlocutory procedure, interim measures, including measures to suspend or to ensure the suspension of the procedure for the award of a contract or the implementation of any decision taken by the contracting entity. Secondly, power to set aside decisions taken unlawfully (see art. 2.1.a) and b) of the Public Remedies Directive).

In the case of conflicts arising under the Utilities Directive (i.e. entities covered by Annex 3 of the Agreement), member States are authorised to choose between the introduction of different powers for the review bodies which have equivalent effect (taking into account differences in the nature of member States' legal orders).

The first option includes the power to intervene directly in the contracting entities' procurement procedures such as by suspending them, or by setting aside decisions or discriminatory clauses in documents or publications (see art.2.1. a) and b) of the Remedies Utilities Directive).

The second option provides for the power to exert effective indirect pressure on the contracting entities in order to make them correct any infringement, and to prevent injury from occurring. In particular those measures can consist in making an order for the payment of a particular sum, like for instance periodic (or even daily) penalty payments (see art. 2.1.c) of the Remedies Utilities Directive).

Hence, in the case of the Utilities, member States can choose between the first solution or the second one. This choice can be made either for all contracting entities or for categories of entities defined on the basis of objective criteria. In any event, the choice must preserve the effectiveness of the measures laid down in order to prevent injury being caused to the interest concerned.

- Compensation of losses: claims for damages

According to article 2.1.c) of the Public Remedies Directive and article 2.2.d) of the Remedies Utilities Directive, the award of damages to persons injured by the infringement must always be possible. Therefore, third parties injured can seek damages as a consequence of the breach of the public procurement rules.

Directives oblige member States to provide for at least negative damages (damnum emergens), that is to say, the cost of preparing a bid or of participating in an award procedure. Where a claim is made for damages representing those negative costs, the person making such claim shall be required to prove an infringement of Community law in the field of procurement or national rules implementing that law and that he would have a real chance of winning the contract and that, as a consequence of that infringement, that chance was adversely affected. This does not mean that the person making the claim must prove that the contract would have been awarded to him in the absence of such infringement.

That is to say, one needs proof of an infringement, evidence of the damages and it has to be proved that a link of causality exists.

Damages can be claimed directly before the competent courts. However, where damages are claimed on the grounds that a decision has been taken unlawfully, member States may provide that the contested decision must be first set aside or declared illegal, if their system of internal law so requires.

As regards positive damages, i.e. lucrum cessans, the directives do not oblige member States to provide for the compensation of lost profits to the injured persons. However, nothing in the directives prevents member States from including such a possibility in their national rules. In that case, compensation for lost profits will be awarded according to the requirements set up in the national legislation.

As regards punitive damages being awarded to third parties and which would therefore have a deterrent effect, they are unknown in the European legal system. The directive does not contain any provision requiring member States to oblige contracting entities to grant punitive damages to injured persons.

The Utilities Remedies Directive provides for a special procedure known as attestation. Contracting entities are given the possibility of having recourse to an attestation system in which contract award procedures are periodically examined by independent bodies with a view of obtaining an attestation that, at that time, those procedures and practices are in conformity with Community law concerning the award of contracts and the national rules implementing the law.

If the Remedies directives have not been duly implemented, parties may bring a case against the member State in question before a national court of that State, invoking the ECJ case law which states that the member State could be liable for failure to implement directives, provided that some requirements are met (see ECJ judgments in cases Francovitch and Brasserie du Pecheur).

There is also a mixed procedure. Any national court can raise a preliminary question before the European Court of Justice in Luxembourg in order to obtain a judgment interpreting the E.C. law provision which might be applicable to the case. During the procedure before the ECJ, the Commission is allowed to intervene and express its views. After the ruling of the European Court of Justice, the national court "a quo" must rule in the case in question according to the interpretation given. See article 177 of the E.C. Treaty.

(ii) In what concerns EC review procedures, parties can lodge complaints with the EC Commission, possibly at the same time as a domestic legal action, with the latter not being a necessary preliminary to the lodging of such a complaint. A complaint can be treated in confidence and does not involve any expense.

The Commission examines those complaints, and when it considers that an infringement of Community provisions in the field of procurement has been committed, it can open the procedure established in articles 169 and 170 of the Treaty, which, after prior consultations between the Commission and the member State, can lead to the adoption of a decision by the European Court of Justice. There is a special procedure under article 3 of the Remedies Directive and article 8 of the Remedies Utilities directive in the case that the Commission considers that an infringement has been committed prior to a contract being concluded.

The Commission can also, under articles 186 of the E.C. Treaty and 83 of the Procedure Regulation of the Court, seek, in an interlocutory procedure before the Court of Justice, to obtain the suspension of the award procedure.

(iii) These directives are implemented at member State level. See infra for detailed information.

IV.3.A Challenge procedures - Article XX: Austria

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The challenge procedure is exercised by:

- (1) the "Bundesvergabekontrollkommission" (hereinafter "Control Commission"); and
- (2) the "Bundesvergabeamt" (hereinafter "Federal Procurement Agency") in first and final instance.

The actual challenge procedure before the Federal Procurement Agency is initiated by an undertaking, which claims to have an interest in obtaining a particular public contract, subject to the Federal Procurement Act, and which seeks review of an unlawful decision of a contracting authority in the procurement procedure, provided that it has been or risks being harmed by the alleged infringement.

The Federal Procurement Agency is responsible for the execution of the challenge procedure which aims at setting aside unlawful decisions. Before the award of the contract, the Federal Procurement Agency has the competence:

- (1) to issue interim measures (see also point 14. (iv) below); and
- (2) to annul unlawful decisions of the contracting authority.

Following the award of the contract or the award procedure, the Federal Procurement Agency is responsible for stating if the contract has not been awarded to the economically most advantageous bidder in an unlawful manner.

The complaint to the Federal Procurement Agency is normally subject to the precondition that the claimant first attempted to reach an amicable settlement before the Control Commission, where the case has not already been settled amicably, and also that the claimant appeals within two weeks after the Control Commission has made a recommendation on the case.

Following the conclusion of the contract or the completion of the award procedure, the time-limit is six weeks commencing from the day the claimant learns of the award.

As regards a claim for damages on behalf of the neglected bidder, please refer to point 14(v) below.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

As regards the time-limit for a complaint before the Federal Procurement Agency, please refer to question 13 above. The following paragraphs provide information on the procedure before the Control Commission.

Before the award is made, the Control Commission is responsible for the settlement of disputes between candidates or tenderers and the contracting entity in relation to the award procedure upon request. After the dispute has become known, the request has to be filed expeditiously. There is no official time-limit.

The conciliation body of the Control Commission shall hear both parties of the dispute and shall investigate the facts of the case. Within a time-limit of two weeks, it must try to reach an amicable settlement. If this is not possible, the conciliation body has to make a recommendation on the application of the provision which gave cause to the dispute.

During the procedure before the Control Commission the contracting authority must not award the contract.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? In the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Federal Procurement Agency is a public body granted with sovereign rights. It has the competence to deliver enforceable acts. Its members are free in their decisions and not bound by any directives or orders. Appeals are not allowed from the Federal Procurement Agency to any other administrative agency or the Administrative Court. The only recourse against a decision of the Federal Procurement Agency is a complaint to the Constitutional Court.

The Federal Procurement Agency consists of a chairman, a sufficient number of deputy chairmen and other members. The chairman and the deputy chairmen must hold positions as judges. The President of the Republic appoints them all upon the recommendation of the Federal Government for a period of five years.

The Federal Procurement Agency therefore fulfils the criteria of a tribunal within the meaning of Article six of the Human Rights Convention as well as the criteria of a court within the meaning of Article 177 Treaty of Rome.

The Control Commission, in contrast, is a mere arbitration body which has no competence to deliver enforceable acts. It is restricted to mediation and negotiation only. As regards its composition and the legal position of its members, the same rules apply for the Federal Procurement Agency.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Federal Procurement Act of 1997 and the regulations enacted upon it are applicable to the challenge procedures on federal level. Claims for damages have to be brought before civil courts and are governed by Civil Law.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

After the initiation of the challenge procedure before the Federal Procurement Agency, this body may, upon request, grant necessary and appropriate interim measures by way of an interlocutory procedure, to prevent the complainant against further injury of its interests. The body has to take into account the probable consequences for all interests likely to be affected, especially the public interest in continuing such a procedure.

The interim measures may include:

- (1) the interim suspension of the whole award procedure; or
 - (2) the interim suspension of decisions of the contracting authority as long the Agency has not decided on the merits.
- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

If the contracting authority has breached the provisions of the Federal Procurement Act culpably, a neglected tenderer or candidate may claim damages, provided that it could have a real chance of winning the contract, had the contracting authority complied with the law. A neglected tenderer may demand lost profit, bid preparation costs as well as all other costs caused by the participation in the award procedure. The claim for damages has to be filed at the ordinary civil courts.

Austrian Procurement Law does not provide any means for rescinding a concluded contract. However, the annulment of a concluded contract is possible in certain restricted circumstances under Austrian Civil Law.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The Federal Procurement Agency has to decide on an application for an interim measure within five days, at the latest. On an application for the annulment of decisions of the contracting authority, the time-limit is two months, provided that the contract has not been awarded. Furthermore, the Austrian Code on Administrative Procedure is applicable to the administrative procedure before the Federal Procurement Agency.

- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The complainant may be required to pay the expenses of the procedure before the Federal Procurement Agency according to the Austrian Code on Administrative Procedure. There is no fee for the complainant before the Control Commission.

IV.3.B Challenge procedures - Article XX: Belgium

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The Council of State (Conseil d'Etat) is the judicial body responsible for ruling, by means of orders, with respect to annulment proceedings against acts of the various administrative authorities.

As regards government contracts in particular, the Council of State may annul any unilateral and detachable acts associated with their conclusion and execution.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than ten days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

To lodge an appeal for annulment of an administrative act with the Council of State, the applicant must provide evidence of damage or legitimate interest. The application to intervene must be submitted within a maximum time-limit of 60 days following the date on which the applicant learned of the administrative act in question.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"?

The Council of State is an administrative tribunal.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The coordinated laws of 12 January 1973 on the Council of State.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Requests for the suspension of an administrative act may be referred to the Council of State, which may order suspension of execution to safeguard the interests of the parties (summary administrative jurisdiction procedure).

Suspension of execution may only be ordered if serious grounds are put forward to justify the annulment of the challenged act and provided the immediate execution of the act could cause an applicant serious damage which is difficult to repair.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

When a complaint has been lodged of violation of the Agreement in the course of public procurement procedures coming within the scope of application of the Agreement, the Council of State annuls the challenged decision.

Requests for compensation of loss come under civil law and fall within the jurisdiction of the civil courts.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The decision to suspend execution as described in point (iv) above is an emergency decision and taken as rapidly as possible. The final decision is taken within the time-limit required to examine each case with due respect for the rights of the Parties.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The costs of initiating a challenge procedure with the Council of State are minimal, amounting to 7,000 Belgian francs in 1997. Lawyers' fees are charged to the complainant.

IV.3.D Challenge procedures - Article XX: Germany

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

In the Federal Republic of Germany there are two separate bodies which are responsible for challenge procedures:

(a) The challenge procedure before the initial review bodies - "die Vergabeprüfstellen" - (Procurement Inspection Agencies) may be initiated ex officio or ex parte by a bidder. There is no time-limit to launch a complaint. There is no restriction of access to the challenge procedure for the participants. The proceedings can take place in public. Participants can be heard by the review body before a decision is reached. Participants can be represented by a lawyer. Opinions or decisions are given in writing with a statement describing the basis for the opinion or decision. A presentation of witnesses is possible. Documents have to be disclosed to the review body if requested.

The "Vergabeprüfstelle" may force the awarding authority to set aside unlawful actions or decisions or to set lawful actions or decisions. In particular, the "Vergabeprüfstelle" is authorised to suspend awarding procedures. In its consideration the body has to take into account the probable consequences for all interests likely to be affected, especially the public interest in continuing such a procedure. There is no fee for the complainant before this body.

(b) The secondary review bodies responsible for challenge procedures are the "Vergabeüberwachungsausschüsse" (Procurement Monitoring Commissions) which are courts in accordance with EC law. On a federal level they are attached to the "Bundeskartellamt" (Federal Antitrust Authority), on the state level as a rule to the "Landeskartellämter" (Regional Antitrust Authorities).

The function of the "Vergabeüberwachungsausschüsse" is to review the decisions of the "Vergabeprüfstellen". This review procedure can be initiated by the complainant of the procedure before the “Vergabepflichtstelle” within four weeks after a decision has been taken. All participants of the first procedure must be heard by the review body. The body can either legitimize the decision of the “Vergabepflichtstelle” or declare it unlawful. In the latter case, the “Vergabepflichtstelle” is instructed by the “Vergabeüberwachungsausschuß” to re-examine the case and decide upon it according to its own interpretation of law.

The complainant may be required to pay the expenses of the procedure.

The president of the “Bundeskartellamt” is responsible for the appointment of the members of the “Vergabeüberwachungsausschuß” on the federal level who are independent and only subject to the law. The chairman and one of the assessors must be officials, the chairman and one of the assessors must hold position as judges.

If the “Vergabeüberwachungsausschuß” considers that a decision on the interpretation of Community law is necessary to enable it to give judgement, it must bring the matter before the European Court of Justice.

The legal basis for the establishment of the “Vergabepflichtstellen” and the “Vergabeüberwachungsausschüsse” is Art. 57 b and Art. 57 c of the “Haushaltsgrundsätze-gesetz” (Budgetary Principles Law) and the “Nachprüfungsverordnung” (review directive).

Independently of the review decision, bidders may claim damages before ordinary courts; this is not subject to a time-limit.

In order to improve the rights of aggrieved bidders, the Federal Government of Germany has decided to give them access to ordinary courts. The legal framework is currently being amended.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

Please refer to answer to question 13.

IV.3.DK Challenge procedures - Article XX: Denmark

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

For answer, refer to the enclosed article on the challenge procedures in Denmark, published in the EU Public Contract Law N° 1/1996.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is “not less than 10 days”. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

There are not time-limits.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a “court” or an “impartial and independent review body”?

The Danish Appeal Board for Public Procurement is, at the least, ‘an impartial and independent review body’. It is not clear, however whether the review body possesses all the characteristics required to be considered as a ‘court’ in the sense of Article 177 of the Treaty.

The Composition of the appeal Board is the following: A High Court judge acts as chairman, assisted by two deputy chairmen also holding position as judges. A number of experts serve as ‘specialist members’ of the Board in addition to the judges. Chairman, deputy chairmen and experts are all appointed by the Minister for Industry and Trade and serve for 4 years. They may be re-appointed upon expiration of their 4-year term.

The decisions of the Appeal Board are subject to judicial review. Within a period of 8 weeks from the date on which the decision of the Board has been communicated to the parties of a dispute, this decision can be brought before the ordinary courts.

To bring a complaint before the board is, according to Danish law, an option. Alternatively, a complaint can be brought before an ordinary court in the first instance. Also in such cases, a decision can be brought before a higher court.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

‘Applicable law’ is EC law on public procurement or Danish regulations implementing EC law in that field (which amounts to the same) plus relevant EC Treaty provisions (in cases where a public contract, e.g. because of minor value, is not subject to the provisions of the EC procurement directives).

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The review body has the powers to suspend contract award procedures or require the contracting authority/entity to comply with applicable law (in other words to legalise its actions).

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The review body can annul unlawful decisions on which the award of a contract is based or impose the latter of the two sanctions mentioned under (iv) above.

Compensation falls outside the competence of the Board and has to be claimed separately from a bid challenge before an ordinary court (except, probably, in cases where decisions taken by a contracting authority/entity are challenged directly before an ordinary court_-and not the review body)..

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

There are no legally fixed time periods for the stages of the challenge process. These are fixed by the chairman of the review body, taking into account the need for a rapid settlement of disputes in accordance with the objectives of the 'remedies' directive and the GPA and, of course, the need for a particularly rapid reaction from the Appeal Board in cases where imposition of interim measures is requested.

- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

It is formally required that a fee of DKK 4000 is paid together with the submission of a complaint before the Appeal Board. This fee will be paid back to the complainant in cases where the Board, in whole or in part, rules in his favour. There is no requirement as to representation before the Board through an expert, e.g. a solicitor. However, in cases where the Board rules in favour of a complainant, the is entitled to claim the expenses (in addition to the fee) he might have had to cover legal or other expert assistance in connection with the complaint.

IV.3.E Challenge procedures - Article XX: Spain

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The notification of the agreements must contain a precise reference to the challenge procedures including: the type of remedy available, the body responsible and the deadline for filing complaints, with the warning that the deadline runs from the day on which the notification is received.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than ten days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

Thirty days or two months according to the type of remedy.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"?

According to the type of remedy, the administrative body hierarchically above the body responsible for the challenged act, or a jurisdictional court.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

Law 30/1992 of 16 November on the legal regime of the public administrations and on the common administrative procedure, and the Law on Administrative Jurisdiction of 27 December 1956.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The body responsible for settling the complaint is authorized to act ex officio or at the request of a party to suspend the challenged act.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The ruling must cover all of the questions raised during the challenge procedure, declaring them either admissible or inadmissible, and if admissible, accepting or rejecting them.

Compensation for loss or damages suffered may be decided during the same proceedings or in separate proceedings where there are good grounds.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

In the case of administrative challenges (Law on the legal regime of the public administrations and on the common administrative procedures) a ruling must be pronounced within a period of three months. If an explicit decision is not made during that time-period, the challenge is to be understood to have been rejected, without prejudice to the administration's obligation to reach a settlement.

The time-limits for judicial proceedings are governed by the Law on Administrative Challenge, and the settlement of challenges depends on the issues under consideration.

- (vii) What is the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Administrative challenges are free of charge. Judicial challenges are also free of charge except in cases where the challenge is considered to have been made in bad faith.

IV.3.EL Challenge procedures - Article XX: Greece

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Greek law provides for challenge proceedings in public procurement cases. The proceedings are indeed in writing and are open to all aggrieved parties. Very recently Greece has also adopted legislation to implement the Remedies Directive, i.e., directive 89/665/EEC. No implementing measures for Directive 92/13/EEC (the Remedies Utilities Directive) have been adopted. Greece have to implement the latter by 1.1.1998.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is “not less than 10 days”. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

A complaint is subject to the jurisdiction of the administrative or civil courts, depending on the nature of the awarding authority. If the complainant seeks the annulment of an administrative act, such as an award decision, the action should be filed to the Supreme administrative court of Greece within a time-limit of sixty days from the date on which the contested act is published or notified.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a “court” or an “impartial and independent review body”?

The bodies responsible for challenge proceedings are courts.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

Greek law and Community law.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

A complainant may apply to court for an interim order, which may result in the suspension of the procurement process, the conservation of documents etc. If successful, the complainant will have to introduce a full court action within thirty days from the order.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The awarding decision might be annulled. Damages may also be awarded.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

Under the new law, which I understand will enter into force in November this year, the complainant has to introduce an objection with the awarding authority within 5 days from taking notice of the contested act. The decision on the objection must be rendered within 10 days. Interim proceedings to a court will have to be introduced within 10 days from the decision of the awarding authority. If successful, the complainant will have to introduce a full court action within thirty days from the order.

- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The costs will depend on the procedure and the value of the project. In both administrative and civil proceedings, the judge will usually order the losing party to pay the legal costs of the successful party. However the amount covered is very low and does not cover the actual costs of a procedure.

IV.3.F Challenge procedures - Article XX: France

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Directive 89/665 has been transposed into French law through Articles L22 and R241-24 of the Code of Administrative Tribunals and Administrative Appeal Courts (copy attached) as regards procurement contracts considered public both under Community law and under the French Code on Public Procurement.

In the event of any failure to comply with an agreement, a claim may be filed by the contracting service or the party to whom the contract was awarded.

Procedure:

According to rules of the Code of Civil Procedure (Rv); ordinary civil proceedings (on the merits of the case) or, in urgent cases, interim injunction proceedings (Article 289 et seq. of the Rv).

IV.3.P Challenge procedures - Article XX: Portugal

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Public procurement challenges are governed by the Law on the Procedure of Administrative Tribunals (Lei de Processo dos Tribunais Administrativos) approved by Decree Law (Decreto-Lei) N° 267/85 of 16 July 1985 with the amendments introduced by Law N° 12/86 of 21 May 1986.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to lodge a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than ten days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

The first paragraph of Article 64 of Decree Law N° 55/95 of 29 March provides for a special time-limit of five days for the submission of a hierarchical remedy with respect to the discussion of a claim. Apart from this special time-limit, the usual time-limit for a hierarchical remedy challenging the legality of administrative acts is 30 days.

As regards contentious remedies in respect of administrative acts, the complainant has two months (four months for Macau residents or residents abroad) and the Government Procurator one year to initiate the procedure (Article 28 of Decree Law 267/85 of 16 July), and administrative law establishes the rule concerning the possibility of challenging at all times acts that are void or non-existent.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"?

While the body responsible for challenge procedures is above all the body hierarchically above the one responsible for the act, contentious remedies are examined by the Administrative Tribunals.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenged body will examine complaints?

The applicable law is the Law on the Procedure of the Administrative Tribunals (Ley de Processo dos Tribunais Administrativos).

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

There are no special rapid interim measures beyond those set forth in Article 84 of the Code of Administrative Procedure regarding the competence of the body responsible for the final decision. The interested parties may request suspension of execution of the administrative act during the contentious stage (Articles 76 and 55 of the Law on the Procedure of Administrative Tribunals and Decree Law N° 267/85 of 16 July). If the cumulative conditions of Article 76, paragraphs 1(a) and 1(c) are met, the result is a suspension of the procurement proceedings pending a decision by the tribunal.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenged body order?

In general, breaches of the Agreement can be corrected by cancelling the administrative act awarding the contract and repeating the proceedings, or by granting compensation for the damage sustained in accordance with Decree N° 48051 of 21 November 1967 governing the tortious liability of the State with respect to public management acts.

- vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

It is impossible to give any precise reply concerning the overall time-period for the contentious stage. However, challenge procedures are often efficient.

- vii) What is the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Common operational costs of the tribunals, which vary according to the value of the remedy.

IV.3.S Challenge procedures - Article XX: Sweden

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The remedies provided for in Chapter 7 of the Swedish Law on Public Procurement (LOU) in its current form are provisional measures and annulment proceedings as well as actions for damages. A supplier in the broad sense of the term claiming to have suffered injury or to be threatened with injury due to a violation of the provisions of the LOU may file a complaint with the Administrative Tribunal (Länsrätt), which determines whether the challenged public procurement procedure has been conducted in accordance with the said Law. The Administrative Tribunal may either take provisional measures or annul the procedure at any time until the public procurement contract has been concluded.

Once the contract has been concluded, the supplier may still submit a claim for damages to an ordinary court (allmän domstol). Indeed, the LOU stipulates that a contracting authority that has violated the rules established by the LOU must provide the supplier in question with compensation for the damage sustained.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than ten days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

As regards provisional measures and annulment proceedings, the supplier may file a complaint with the Administrative Tribunal until the contract has been awarded.

A claim for damages may be filed with an ordinary court within a period of one year following the date on which the contract was concluded.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"?

The Administrative Tribunal has jurisdiction over provisional measures and annulment proceedings. The common courts have jurisdiction for awarding damages to parties injured through a violation of the law.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

Law on Public Procurement (1992:1528), amended and republished as Law (1993:1468) which entered into force on 1 January 1994, and further amended by Law (1994:614) which entered into force on 1 July 1994, Law (1995:704) of 8 June 1995 which entered into force on 1 July 1995, and by Law (1996:433). A further amendment is expected to enter into force on 1 January 1998.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The administrative tribunal may order the immediate suspension of the public procurement procedure pending a definitive decision on the substance of the case. It may, however, refrain from taking such a decision if the damage or inconvenience deriving from such decision can be considered to exceed the damage suffered by the supplier.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?
- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.
- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

(v)-(vii) The Swedish Public Procurement Office refers to the document attached hereto which deals, inter alia, with the question of remedies in Sweden.

IV.3.SF Challenge procedures - Article XX: Finland

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Award of damages. A claim for damages in case of an award procedure contrary to the Agreement or the implementing legislation shall be made in the court of law according the normal procedural rules of civil process law. One who has occasioned harm to a contractor by a procedure contrary to the Agreement or the implementing legislation shall be obliged to pay damages for the harm caused. Where a claim is made for damages representing the costs of participating in an award procedure, the candidate or tenderer shall, in order to be awarded damages, be required only to prove an incorrect procedure and that he would have had a real chance of winning the contract if the procedure had been correct.

Other remedies. The Competition Council may, at the request of the person to whom the proceedings apply:

- wholly or partly set aside a decision of a contracting party
- forbid the contracting entity to apply a point in a document relating to the procurement or otherwise to pursue an incorrect procedure, or
- require the contracting entity to correct its incorrect procedure.

The request shall be made in writing. A request concerning which proceedings have been instituted after the contract has been concluded shall not be accepted for consideration. The claimant shall, before submitting a claim to the Competition Council, inform the contracting entity in writing of his intention to bring the matter before the Competition Council. The Competition Council may, in order to emphasize the importance of complying with the prohibition mentioned above at point 2) or with the obligation referred to above at point 3, impose a fine on the contracting entity.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is “not less than 10 days”. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

There is no time-limit to launch a complaint in the Competition Council. It must be noted, however, that the Competition Council does not accept a complaint for consideration after the conclusion of the contract in question. In cases where the contract has already been concluded, the only remedy available is a claim for the award of damages before a court of law.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a “court” or an “impartial and independent review body”?

The body responsible for the challenge procedures is the Competition Council, which is an impartial and independent review body. It has a chairman, a vice-chairman and seven members. The matter concerning the composition of the Council is prepared for discussion by the cabinet and referred for decision to the President of the Republic of Finland. The chairman and the vice-chairman of the Council shall have a degree in law and they shall have a good knowledge of the responsibilities of a judge. The members shall be persons who have a good knowledge of different aspects of economic life.

The decisions of the Competition Council are subject to judicial review before the Supreme Administrative Court.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Competition Council will examine the complaints by reference to the Public Procurement Act (1502/92, amend. 1523/94), Order on the Procurement of Supplies, Services and Works in excess of the Threshold Value (243/95) or Order on the Procurement of Supplies, Services and Works by Entities Operating in the Water, Energy, Transport and Telecommunications Sectors (567/94, amend. 244/95). The Council may also apply directly the applicable provisions of the EC Treaty, applicable EC directives or the Agreement.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

After a claim has been brought before it, the Competition Council may, as an interim measure, forbid or suspend the implementation of a decision or otherwise order the procurement procedure to be suspended for the period during which the matter is being dealt with in the Competition Council. The prohibition to apply a point in a document relating to the procurement or otherwise to pursue an incorrect procedure (mentioned above in question 13) and the obligation to correct incorrect procedure (referred to above in question 13) may also be imposed as an interim measure.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The remedies for correction of the Agreement provided by the Competition Council are referred to under question 13.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

In urgent cases, the order for interim measures can be obtained from the Competition Council already on the same day when the proceedings have been instituted.

The time periods needed for adoption of the final decision depend on the various aspects of an individual case. In general, the Competition Council has given its final decisions within approximately 2-6 months from the initiation of the proceedings.

- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

There is no information available on the usual costs of a challenge procedure. The Competition Council does not charge any fee of the challenge procedure, but there may be some other costs such as the fee charged by the lawyers the parties to a dispute may want to use etc. There is, however, no legal obligation to use a member of bar or any other type of a legal counsellor in the proceedings.

It is also possible that the Competition Council orders the losing side of the dispute to pay the process costs of the winning side. This may naturally lead to situations where the total costs of the proceeding may be considerably high.

IV.3.UK Challenge procedures - Article XX: United Kingdom

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

See EC answer.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is “not less than 10 days”. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

Complaints are required to be brought to the attention of the contracting authority/entity. Proceedings have to be initiated as rapidly as possible and, unless the courts grant leave, within three months of the grounds arising;

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a “court” or an “impartial and independent review body”?

The UK review bodies are the High Courts in England, Wales and Northern Ireland and the Court of Session in Scotland.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The applicable law by reference to which the Courts will examine complaints is likely to be the UK Regulations which implement the EC_rules and the proposed Regulations for clarifying the rights of GPA_providers where the GPA applies. In the meantime the courts can be expected to rely on their inherent jurisdiction to provide remedies for breach of the GPA, by reference to the GPA itself and the existing remedies for EC providers.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The UK courts have the necessary powers to award interim measures to correct breaches of the GPA, including suspension of an incomplete contract award procedure.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The UK courts have powers to correct breaches by ordering the setting aside of a decision or action, or amendment of a document, by awarding damages or by both of these except that under the UK_non-implementation of the EC Compliance and Remedies Directives damages are to be the only remedy once a contract has been entered into.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

It is unlikely that there would be any significant delay in an application for interim measures but a final decision may take somewhat longer to obtain, depending on the facts of the case.

(vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The costs are those of legal representation.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

European Community

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of the European Community and the responses given and comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of 7 October 1998 and 5 October 1999.¹ The European Community's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee's Decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in document GPA/20, dated 28 January 1998.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM KOREA AND THE UNITED STATES

I. IMPLEMENTATION OF THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY LEGISLATION BY THE MEMBER STATES

Question from Korea

1. Korea thinks that at the EC level, legislation on public procurement is generally in conformity with the rules of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement.

However, Korea has concerns about the implementation of that legislation by EC member States. The important aspect is not EC legislation per se but rather its full compliance by member States. According to "Single Market Scoreboard", which is issued by the EC Commission every six months to assess the degree of implementation of Directives for the single market, government procurement was reported to be the most poorly implemented area (only 55 per cent of the Directives are implemented by member States). Furthermore, as far as Korea knows, infringement procedures were initiated this year by the EC Commission against Greece, Spain and Italy due to their non-implementation of EC Directives.

Regarding these concerns, Korea would appreciate knowing what actions the EC is, and will be taking, to better comply with the GPA.

Through the decision of the Council of the European Communities of December 1994, ratifying the entire Uruguay Round package, the GPA has become a part of the domestic law of the European Community, in its entirety, from 1 January 1996, and is fully in force within the Community from that date. The EC Directives, which were the internal legislation of the European Community at the time of entry into force of the GPA was, to a large extent, in line with the GPA. The limited number of areas where this legislation was not entirely in line with the GPA related to the issues of threshold, the statistical reporting requirements and a very limited number of other issues.

¹ The minutes of these meetings have been circulated in documents GPA/M/10 and 12.

These areas were subsequently brought in line with the requirements in the GPA through two Directives which were adopted on 10 October 1996.

The Community acts in the procurement area through Directives which the relationship between deal with the suppliers and purchasers within the Community, giving suppliers certain rights and creating obligations for purchasers. The EC Directives do not deal directly with the relationship between suppliers from the GPA Parties (other than the EU member States) and purchasers within EU. With regard to the issue of whether domestic legislation of EC member States are in conformity with the requirements of the GPA on national treatment, relationship between the suppliers in GPA Parties members and purchasers within the Community is fully governed by the GPA which in its entirety has been made part of the EU Law since December 1994. In the context of GPA rules, it is important to ensure that non-European Community suppliers are governed by exactly the same procurement regime as suppliers from the Community. Any problems with the implementation of the Directives relates to relationship between the Community suppliers and purchasers and does not mean that any rights arising from the GPA for suppliers in the GPA countries, other than EU, has been affected in any way. The Commission and the member States consider it important that the Directives should be fully and correctly implemented within the deadlines laid down. Any problems with the implementation of the EC Directives does not affect the obligations of the member States under the GPA.

The reference to 55 per cent of the Directives in the Korean question relates to the cases in which the member States have not adopted all measures necessary to implement those Directives as far as they relate to purchases by EC contracting entities of products, services and works supplied by suppliers from the Community and is, therefore, outside the GPA context.

The European Commission, as the institution charged with the enforcement of the rules within the EC is fully committed to the implementation of the Single Market legislation. An Action Plan for the Single Market was approved by the Commission in 1997. One of its targets is to ensure that rules are effectively applied. Under this plan, each member State will be called upon to submit its detailed timetable and to demonstrate political commitment to eliminate urgently all delays in transposition. The Single Market Scoreboard, issued by the Commission every six months, is used to keep track of the progress in the implementation of the Directives for Single Market. Meanwhile, the Commission will continue to pursue infringement procedures vigorously and swiftly against member States which fail in these obligations, using sanctions against them where necessary.

In addition, as far as public procurement is specifically concerned, the Commission has approved this year a Communication on its future policy in this field in which a specific subchapter on improving the implementation of public procurement policy was included. The text of the Communication is available in the SIMAP website (<http://simap.eu.int>).

II. IMPLEMENTATION OF THE EC UTILITIES DIRECTIVE 93/38

Question from the United States

2. Section I.1(i), Section I.1(iii) and Section IV.2(6) of the EC Notification of National Implementing Legislation make reference to the EC Utilities Directive 93/38. Section IV.2(6) refers specifically to Article 36 of the Utilities Directive. Is Article 36 of the Utilities Directive currently being implemented and enforced by Greece, Portugal and Spain?

Directive 93/38 is applicable in its entirety in Spain as from 1 January 1997 and Directive 93/38 is applicable in its entirety in Greece and Portugal as from 1 January 1998 (Cfr. Article 45 §2 of Directive 93/38).

The preference granted to EC member States under Article 36 of the Utilities Directive continues to apply to the purchases not covered by the GPA.

III. PRIOR INFORMATION NOTICE

Question from the United States

3. The EC response in Section IV.2(11) of GPA/20 on "Time Limits for Tendering and Delivery" indicates that deadlines for receipt of tenders can be reduced in instances where a "prior information notice" has been published. Please describe what information is required to be included in a prior information notice, and whether a prior information notice is equivalent to a "pre-information notice" as described in Section IV.2(8).

The information to be included in the "prior information notices" is specified in Annexes IV of Directive 93/36, IV of Directive 93/37, III of Directive 92/50 and XIV of Directive 93/38.

The information required is:

- Name, address, etc. of the contracting authority, and, if different, of the service from which additional information may be obtained.
- Nature and quantity or value of the procurement. This information depends on whether the procurement concerns goods, services or works.
- Estimated date for initiating the award procedures.
- Other information (including for instance terms of financing of the works in the case of construction services).
- Date of dispatch of the notice.
- Date of receipt of the notices by the Office for Official Publications of the European Communities.
- Indication whether the procurement is covered by the GPA.

"Prior Information Notices" (also known as PINs) are also referred to as "indicative notices" in the directives. In document GPA/20, the expression "pre-information notice" used in Section IV.2.(8), though not technically accurate, is used as a synonym of "Prior Information Notice".

IV. FRAMEWORK AGREEMENTS

Question from the United States

4. Section IV.2(10) states that Annex 3 entities are permitted to choose between open and restricted procedures without a call for competition, "for contracts to be awarded on the basis of a framework agreement ...". Please provide details on the legal definition of a "framework agreement" as well as information regarding when such agreements are permitted to be used and how they operate.

Framework agreements in the European Community legislation are specifically dealt with only in the Utilities Directive, that is only for Appendix 3 entities. It is not mentioned at all in the Directive relating to public entities that is Appendix 1 and Appendix 2 entities.

According to Directive 93/38, the Utilities Directive, "framework agreement" shall mean an agreement between one of the contracting entities and one or more suppliers, contractors or service providers the purpose of which is to establish the terms, in particular with regard to the prices and, where appropriate, the quantity envisaged, governing the contracts to be awarded during a given period.

Annex 3 entities may regard a framework agreement as a contract and award it in accordance with Directive 93/38: i.e. using the open, restricted or negotiated (with publication) procedure, as appropriate. When contracting entities have awarded a framework agreement in accordance with Directive 93/38, a call for competition is not compulsory when awarding contracts based on that agreement.

According to Article 5 of Directive 93/38, contracting entities may not misuse framework agreements in order to hinder, limit or distort competition.

V. ENFORCEMENT

Question from the United States

5. Please provide details on infringement actions currently undertaken by the European Commission against member States for violations of EC procurement laws outlined in GPA/20. Please also explain the impact of EC member State infringement of Community law in the field of procurement or national rules implementing that law on the EC's international obligations under the WTO GPA.

Details of the infringement procedures undertaken by the European Commission against member States are not considered to be public, unless cases are brought before the European Court of Justice. However, the spokesman's service of the European Commission regularly issues press releases concerning public procurement infringements at earlier stages of the procedure. These press releases are publicly available and can be accessed through the RAPID database via the EUROPA server (<http://europa.eu.int>).

As for the impact of member State infringement of Community Law, it must be recalled that Article 189 of the EC Treaty provides that the form of Community legislation known as the "directive" is binding as to the result to be achieved but leaves the national authorities the choice of form and methods. Member States are therefore under an obligation to take all appropriate measures to make sure that the provisions of the directive are complied with. These measures have to be taken within the deadlines laid down.

It can happen that a member State fails to take all necessary measures to implement the directive by the date laid down, and it might be thought that the directive would then be inapplicable. But the same Article 189 provides the basis for what is known as "direct effect". The Court of Justice has interpreted Article 189 to mean that "when the conditions under which the Court has held that individuals may rely on the provisions of a directive before the national courts are met, all organs of the administration, including decentralized authorities such as municipalities, are obliged to apply those provisions" (ECJ, case Costanzo).

The impact of this judgment is not confined to the application of a provision in a particular directive; it also establishes the principle that national measures may not prevent the application of a provision in a particular directive if it can be applied directly.

The Commission has powers to ensure the full compliance with the directives includes the power to bring a member State before the Court of Justice. The same power exists when infringement of the obligations of the GPA is committed by any of the contracting entities covered under the GPA in any of the member States. An infringement of the obligations under the Directives would relate to the relationship between Community suppliers and entities and not to the relationship between the suppliers from the GPA countries and Community entities. As regards the Remedies Directive, if and when bid challenge rights are not granted in EU legislation because the Remedies Directive may not have been entirely implemented by a member State, there is a safety net in the community referred to as the "Francovitch Case Law" which provides suppliers from the GPA Parties other than those from the EC member States, with the possibility of taking a matter up in the European Court of Justice and having rapid and effective remedies available as required by the GPA would be able to use the safety net provided by the Frankovitch Case Law. The "Francovitch" case the Court accepted the principle that a member State must make good damage suffered by individuals as a result of an infringement of Community law, e.g. through its failure to transpose a directive into national law or to transpose it properly. This has been further developed in the "Brasserie du Pêcheur" case. Thus, this safety net allows any supplier from any GPA country with the possibility to go to court and to have rapid and effective remedies available to it, as required in the GPA Agreement, therefore, a non-implementation of the Remedies Directive by a member State does not effect the right of GPA suppliers as they will be able to use the safety net provided by the "Francovitch Case Law".

Question from the United States

6. Section IV.3 of GPA/20 states that member States are authorized to choose between two "options" relating to the power of review bodies. Please describe what rapid interim measures, as required by GPA Article XX:7(a), are provided for in the second option, "indirect pressure".

As stated in Section IV.3 of GPA/20 such "two options" possibility only concerns the legal regime applicable to Annex 3 entities (contracting entities subject to Directive 93/38). At the time when Directive 92/13 (the so-called Remedies Utilities Directive) was enacted, it was felt necessary to take account of the specific nature of certain legal orders in the EC by authorizing the member States to choose between the introduction of different powers for the review bodies which have equivalent effects. It is to be noted that claims for damages are always possible.

One of the options includes the power to intervene directly in the contracting entities' procurement procedures such as by suspending them or by setting aside decisions or discriminatory clauses in documents or publications. Thus, this option is based on traditional litigation.

However, in some legal orders, review bodies cannot, because of the legal nature of the some contracting entities, annul or suspend award decisions made by this kind of entities. This is why there is a second option, referred to in this question, which provide for the power to exert effective indirect pressure on the contracting entities in order to make them correct any infringements or prevent them from committing infringements, and to prevent injury from occurring. The kind of measures adopted are generally making orders for the payment of a particular sum, unless the infringement is corrected or prevented. This sum must be set at a level high enough to dissuade the contracting entity from committing or persisting in an infringements. These measures are to be taken at the earliest opportunity, if possible by way of interlocutory procedures and if necessary by a final procedure on the substance.

The distinction between the two options concerns the powers exerted by the review bodies rather than the actual procedure used. In both cases, there is a provision ensuring that measures are taken at the earliest opportunity.

One option is a judicial and the other is administrative procedure. In choosing either option the member State has to satisfy the over all conditions in terms of rapidity and having adequate remedies, in line with the GPA procedures.

The requirements in Article XX of GPA are more broadly worded than that in the Remedies Directive. It was decided to be more specific than the terms laid down in Article XX. Under both options there are sufficient guarantees that the remedies are offered rapidly and that they cover all the requirements of Article XX of GPA.

Question from the United States

7. Section IV.3(13)(ii) describes EC review procedures. Please provide information concerning the length of time it ordinarily takes for the completion of Commission infringement determinations, decisions to be rendered by the European Court of Justice, and for member State compliance with these decisions and determinations.

The length of time will depend on the of the complexity and the nature of the case in question. Formal procedure start by the Commission sending out a "letter of formal notice" to the member State in question. In general, member States have two months to present their considerations unless the urgency requires faster responses. Then the Commission can send a "reasoned opinion" in which it states why the member State in question has infringed Community Law and requests that appropriate measures are taken to correct the situation. If the member State does not comply with this "reasoned opinion" within the period stated (usually two months), the Commission may submit the case to the European Court of Justice. However, if the case justifies a more rapid intervention, time-limits are shortened.

The procedure before the European Court of Justice may last between one year and a half and two years, on average. But again, procedures can be quicker if there is a justified reason. Commission may (and normally does) ask for interim measures when this is needed.

Almost all cases are settled before reaching the Court of Justice, and most of them are settled even before the "reasoned opinion" is delivered, so length is variable and can be substantially more reduced than the figures above may suggest.

The Commission has the powers to overview the way in which the member States comply with their obligations under the EC laws. If the Commission comes to the conclusion that there is a violation either, on its own initiative or on the basis of a formal, informal or anonymous complaint. This may involve the violation of the Community laws implementing Community's international obligations per se. In that event, the Commission can start a procedure which in the final instance may lead to a Court of Justice decision. The actual cases which go for a decision of the Court decision are very few. In fact only one or two cases are decided by the Court of Justice, per year. In the majority of cases the complaints are resolved before reaching that stage.

V. QUESTIONS SPECIFIC TO MEMBER STATES

A. AUSTRIA

Question from the United States (Section IV.3.A of GPA/20)

8. The response to question 14(i) of the Checklist in GPA/20 notes that after potential disputes become known, complaints must be filed with the Control Commission expeditiously. Would a complaint filed within ten days after a potential dispute became known generally be considered to have been filed expeditiously?

The Austrian Bundesvergabegesetz (Federal Law on Public Procurement) determines no official time-limits for filing complaints. However, a complaint filed within ten days after a potential dispute became known would be considered to have been filed expeditiously.

B. GERMANY

Question from the United States (Section IV.3.D of GPA/20)

9. Please provide additional information regarding Germany's amended legal framework for public procurement. Specifically, please provide information outlining the differences between the existing legal framework and the amended framework, and detailing the provisions of the amended framework which ensure fair and open competition to bidders.

The rules on public procurement have been incorporated into the Law against Restraint of Competition (GWB) by insertion of a new 4th part of the Law, see BdGBI. 1998 Teil I, 2568, Nr. 59 dated 2 September 1988. The basic principles of public procurement (competition, transparency and non-discrimination) have been summarised in § 97 GWB. Admissible requirements not related to the public procurement – like environmentally advantageous producing methods, special social goals, affirmative action - have been restricted; they can be imposed on the bidders only where there is a legal basis for doing so. § 97 GWB spells out that the bidder is entitled to rely on the contracting entity observing the public procurement procedure.

An effective judicial review has been introduced and laid down in a comprehensive way, §§ 102 – 124 GWB. A newly created "Vergabekammer" (first instance for public procurement reviews) reviews public procurement procedures upon request. Upon appeal the Court of Appeal can review decisions of the first instance. The launching of a review procedure automatically triggers an interruption of the awarding procedure according to the new rules. The action for damages brought by either a bidder or a contracting entity has been laid down in the law, §§ 125 – 126 GWB.

C. SPAIN

Question from the United States (Section IV.3.E of GPA/20)

10. Please provide clarification to the response under Section 13, particularly with regard to the reference to "[t]he notification of the agreements".

The "Notification of the agreements" should be understood as the notification of the results of the tender. Under Spanish administrative law, public authorities have the obligation not only to notify bidders of the result of each tender but also to inform them of the legal remedies and procedures at their disposal in case they wish to challenge the result of the tender.

D. GREECE

Question from the United States (Section IV.3.EL of GPA/20)

11. Does the response to question 14(vi) indicate that, under the new law, a complainant will have five days to launch a complaint after having learned of a contested act by an awarding authority?

We should distinguish between: (a) proceedings for interim relief; and (b) the main action. The time-limits imposed by the new legislation relate mainly to interim relief proceedings. Thus, a plaintiff is obliged to submit an "administrative redress petition" with the awarding authority within five days after having learned of the contested act. If the petition is rejected, the plaintiff will be entitled to seek interim relief by an order of the competent court. The submission should be made within ten days from the rejection of the petition. The law provides however that in cases an interim relief order is granted, the plaintiff will have to initiate proceedings on the main action within 30 days from the order; failure to do so will automatically make the interim relief order void.

On the other hand, as regards the main action (e.g., action for the annulment of an administrative act, etc.) the normal time-limits continue to apply. For example, the time-limit for the introduction of an action for the annulment of a administrative act, will generally be of 60 days.

E. FRANCE

Question from the United States (Section IV.3.F of GPA/20)

12. Do the documents referred to in question 14 respond to questions 14(i) through 14(vii); if so, are the documents available for GPA Party review?

The documents referred to are reproduced in the attachment² to this paper.

F. IRELAND

Question from the United States (Section IV.3.IRL of GPA/20)

13. Are there any time-limits to launching complaints, as mentioned in question 14(i)?

The EU Remedies directives are transposed directly into Irish Law by Statutory Instruments. There is no time-limit to launching complaints in the Directives; similarly there is no time-limit in Irish law.

² French only

G. PORTUGAL

Question from the United States (Section IV.3.P of GPA/20)

14. As mentioned in the response to question 14(i), what is the difference between a hierarchical remedy with respect to the discussion of a claim, to which a five-day time-limit would apply, and a hierarchical remedy challenging the legality of administrative acts, to which a 30-day time-limit is applied?

The question refers to two different situations: an administrative claim ("reclamação") and a judicial claim ("recurso contencioso").

In the first case, suppliers have a five-day delay to ask the contracting entity to revoke its award decision.

If the decision is not revoked, the plaintiff has then a 30-day delay to introduce a law suit before the competent court ("Tribunal Administrativo").

Article L.22

Le président du tribunal administratif, ou son délégué, peut être saisi en cas de manquement aux obligations de publicité et de mise en concurrence auxquelles est soumise la passation des marchés publics et des conventions de délégation de service public.

Les personnes habilitées à agir sont celles qui ont un intérêt à conclure le contrat et qui sont susceptibles d'être lésées par ce manquement, ainsi que le représentant de l'Etat dans le département dans le cas où le contrat est conclu ou doit être conclu par une collectivité territoriale ou un établissement public local.

Le président du tribunal administratif peut être saisi avant la conclusion du contrat. Il peut ordonner à l'auteur du manquement de se conformer à ses obligations et suspendre la passation du contrat ou l'exécution de toute décision qui s'y rapporte. Il peut également annuler ces décisions et supprimer les clauses ou prescriptions destinées à figurer dans le contrat et qui méconnaissent lesdites obligations. Sauf si la demande porte sur des marchés ou contrats passés par l'Etat, elle peut également être présentée par celui-ci lorsque la Commission des Communautés européennes lui a notifié les raisons pour lesquelles elle estime qu'une violation claire et manifeste des obligations de publicité et de mise en concurrence d'origine communautaire ou résultant de l'accord sur l'Espace économique européen a été commise.

Article L.23

Le président du tribunal administratif, ou son délégué, peut être saisi en cas de manquement aux obligations de publicité ou de mise en concurrence auxquelles sont soumis les contrats visés à l'article 7-2 de la loi n° 92-1282 du 11 décembre 1992 relative aux procédures de passation de certains contrats dans les secteurs de l'eau, de l'énergie, des transports et des télécommunications. Le juge ne peut statuer, avant la conclusion du contrat, que dans les conditions définies ci-après.

Les personnes habilitées à agir sont celles qui ont un intérêt à conclure le contrat et qui sont susceptibles d'être lésées par ce manquement.

Le président du tribunal administratif, ou son délégué, peut ordonner à l'auteur du manquement de se conformer à ses obligations. Il détermine les délais dans lesquels l'auteur du manquement doit s'exécuter. Il peut aussi prononcer une astreinte provisoire courant à l'expiration des délais impartis. Il peut toutefois prendre en considération les conséquences probables de cette dernière mesure pour tous les intérêts susceptibles d'être atteints, notamment l'intérêt public, et décider de ne pas l'accorder lorsque ses conséquences négatives pourraient dépasser ses avantages.

Le montant de l'astreinte provisoire est liquidé en tenant compte du comportement de celui à qui l'injonction a été adressée et des difficultés qu'il a rencontrées pour l'exécuter.

Sauf si la demande porte sur des marchés ou contrats passés par l'Etat, elle peut également être présentée par celui-ci lorsque la Commission des communautés européennes lui a notifié les raisons pour lesquelles elle estime qu'une violation claire et manifeste des obligations mentionnées ci-dessus a été commise.

Le président du tribunal administratif, ou son délégué, statue en premier et dernier ressort en la forme des référés.

Si, à la liquidation de l'astreinte provisoire, le manquement constaté n'a pas été corrigé le juge peut prononcer une astreinte définitive. Dans ce cas, il statue en la forme des référés, appel pouvant être fait comme en matière de référé.

L'astreinte, qu'elle soit provisoire ou définitive, est indépendante des dommages-intérêts. L'astreinte provisoire ou définitive est supprimée en tout ou partie s'il est établi que l'inexécution ou le retard dans l'exécution de l'injonction du juge provient, en tout ou partie, d'une cause étrangère.

Article R.241-21

Toute personne habilitée à introduire un recours dans les conditions prévues par l'article L.22 doit, si elle entend engager une telle action, demander préalablement à la personne morale tenue aux obligations de publicité et de mise en concurrence auxquelles est soumise la passation des contrats et marchés mentionnés audit article de s'y conformer.

En cas de refus ou d'absence de réponse dans un délai de dix jours, l'auteur de la demande peut saisir le président du tribunal administratif ou son délégué, qui statue dans un délai de vingt jours.

L'article R.241-21 est applicable au représentant de l'Etat mentionné à l'article R.241-23.

Lorsqu'il s'agit d'un contrat passé par une personne morale de droit privé pour le compte de l'Etat, d'une collectivité territoriale ou un établissement public local ayant un caractère autre qu'industriel et commercial et relevant de l'Etat ou d'une collectivité territoriale, l'Etat est représenté, selon le cas, par le ministre ou le préfet intéressé.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Iceland

The following communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of Iceland in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996, relating to the procedures for the notification of national implementing legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

SUBMISSION OF LEGISLATIVE TEXTS AND DESCRIPTION OF GPA IMPLEMENTATION

The Ministry of Finance hereby respectfully submits a notification to the WTO Committee on Government Procurement, on the implementation of the Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) into Icelandic national legislation. The Ministry of Finance regrets the delay incurred in submitting the notification.

This notification refers to the checklist of issues provided in GPA/1/Add.1 (Procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation).

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

On 31 May 2001, a new Act on Public Procurement was passed by the Icelandic Parliament, Act No. 94/2001. This Act had been under preparation for some time. The purpose of the Act is, inter alia, to ensure equal treatment of bidders on public procurement and to encourage active competition and efficiency in public operations. With this new and comprehensive Act on Public Procurement, No. 94/2001, the EU/EEA directives on public procurement were fully implemented into the national legislation. Before that they were published as special regulations based on the general laws on the acceptance of the EEA agreement. Furthermore, in Act No. 94/2001 the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) was transposed into the national legislation.¹

Below is the following list of national legal instruments in force today in the field of public procurement:

1. Act No. 94/2001, on Public Procurement. Lög um opinber innkaup nr. 94/2001.

¹ The complete texts of the basic legislation (laws and regulations) on government procurement, including an English translation of Act No. 94/2001 can be consulted in the WTO Secretariat (Office 3062).

2. Regulation No. 513/2001, on threshold figures regarding public procurement in the EEA and in accordance with the WTO Government Procurement Agreement. Reglugerð nr. 513 um viðmiðunarfjárhæðir vegna opinberra innkaupa á Evrópska efnahagssvæðinu og samkvæmt samningi Alþjóðaviðskiptastofnunarinnar (WTO) um opinber innkaup.
3. Regulation No. 705/2001, on the procurement procedures of entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors. Reglugerð nr. 705/2001 um innkaup stofnana sem annast vatnsveitu, orkuveitu, flutninga og fjarskipti.
4. The Public Projects Procedures Act, No. 84/2001. Lög um skipan opinberra framkvæmda nr. 84/2001.
5. Regulation on Public Projects Procedures, No. 715/2001. Reglugerð um skipulag opinberra framkvæmda nr. 715/2001.
6. Act No. 65/1993, on the execution of tenders. Lög um framkvæmd útboda nr. 65/1993.
7. Parliamentary resolution on membership to the WTO Government Procurement Agreement. Pingsályktun um aðild að samningi um opinber innkaup (Pskj. 871- 565.mál).

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

The entities covered by Annex 1 and Annex 2 in Iceland's offer, that is central and municipality level, are covered by Act No. 94/2001. By definition all central entities that are covered by Act No. 94/2001 are also covered by the GPA.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

The rules on public procurement for entities covered by Annex 3 are stipulated in Regulation No. 705/2001, on the procurement procedures of entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors, that is based on Act No. 94/2001. The Agreement has been implemented in this regulation.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

In regard to implementing the Agreement into laws at the municipality and the central level there are no differences. As stated above, Annex 3 is implemented with Regulation No. 705/2001, with reference to Article 6(2) of Act No. 94/2001.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

According to Article 48 of Act No. 94/2001, a contracting authority may decide that tenders may be submitted in other than written form, if it can be ensured that unauthorised parties do not learn of the contents of the tender and if its reception and reception time can be verified. A purchaser may receive and respond to queries by tenderers as referred to in Article 41 by means other than written, for example, by fax, e-mail, telegram or other equally secure manner. Reference can also be made to Article 18 of Regulation No. 705/2001.

I. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

According to Article 8 in Act No. 94/2001, holders of rights according to the Act are all individuals and legal entities domiciled in any of the Member States in the EEA. The same applies to other individuals and legal entities that have such rights on the basis of international treaties to which the Icelandic Government is a party. Titles 2 and 3 of the Act reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement. It should also be mentioned that Article 11 of the Act stipulates the fundamental rule that in the case of public procurement, contracting authorities shall ensure equal treatment of bidders.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Act No. 94/2001 does not provide for this opportunity. Article 59 of the Act (notification of total procurement) states that contracting authorities shall publish, as early as possible during each financial year, an estimate of total procurement of supplies, services or work, as listed in Annex A, for the ensuing 12 months, if the total amount of procurement reaches the threshold amounts for total procurement published by the Minister in a regulation as provided for in the first Paragraph of Article 56. Further reference is made to Articles 64 and 65 of the Act regarding time-limits. However, Regulation No. 705/2001 provides for this opportunity. Reference is made to Article 12 of Regulation No. 705/2001 which deals with the notification of total procurement.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

This opportunity is provided for in Regulation No. 705/2001. However, Act No. 94/2001 does not provide for this opportunity.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

According to Act No. 94/2001, entities are not allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers. According to Article 18 of Act No. 94/2001, in all other instances than those provided for by Articles 19 (negotiated procedure with prior publication of a contract notice) and 20 (negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice), the open procedure or the restricted procedure shall be applied. A pre-qualification process shall always be applied prior to the restricted procedure. A pre-qualification process is subject to the rules on open procedure as applicable. According to Article 34 of the Act in restricted and negotiated procedures, pre-qualification shall be applied to select those parties invited to submit tenders. In the case of restricted procedures, or negotiated procedures as provided for in Article 19, pre-qualification shall be advertised in a conspicuous manner with the intention of providing all parties who can provide the supply, service or work in question, the opportunity of participating in the pre-qualification. In the case of restricted procedures, the number of participants selected to be invited to tender may be limited. As a rule, participants shall not be fewer than five or more than 20 in number. The number of participants selected must, in all cases, be sufficient to ensure genuine competition in the procedure. If the number of participants to be selected in pre-qualification is to be limited, mention must be made of such in the tender documents. In the case of negotiated procedures as provided for in Article 19, the number of participants to be selected in pre-qualification to submit tenders shall not be fewer than three, as long as the number of participants is sufficient. In restricted or negotiated procedures, the parties selected for participation by a pre-qualification shall be invited to submit a tender in a notification sent to all of them concurrently. The notification shall be accompanied by tender documents and accompanying documentation, where applicable.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Article 19 of the Act deals with negotiated procedure with prior publication of a contract notice. Article 20 of the Act deals with negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice. Article 21 of the Act deals with negotiated procedure in a design contest. Article 22 of the Act deals with framework agreements. Further reference is made to these articles.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

Articles 64 and 65 of the Act contain the time-limits for tendering and delivery. These provisions reflect the various minimum time-limits established in the relevant EU/EEA Public Procurement Directives, as well as the time-limits set out in the Agreement (GPA). Further reference is made to Articles 64 and 65 of the enclosed Act.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

According to Article 23 of the Act, the following shall be included in tender documents, as applicable: 1. Language or languages in which the tenders shall be submitted. Usually the tenders are submitted in Icelandic but in English when dealing with larger procurements, e.g. within the EEA.

II. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Articles 75-82 of the Act concern the Tender Complaints Committee. The role of the Tender Complaints Committee is to resolve promptly and impartially complaints by individuals and legal entities concerning claimed violations of this Act and rules adopted pursuant to it. The Committee shall work independently. Its rulings and decisions as provided for in this Act may not be referred to other public authorities, cf. Article 75. The challenge procedure is laid down in Articles 76-81 of the Act. Finally, Article 82 of the Act states that the Tender Complaints Committee may adopt detailed rules, which must be approved by the Minister of Finance, on the submission of documents, procedures before the Committee and publication of its rulings.²

² A copy of these rules can also be consulted in the WTO Secretariat (Office 3062).

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

Article 78 of the Act deals with time-limit for lodging a complaint. According to Article 78(1), a complaint must be lodged in writing with the Tender Complaints Committee within four weeks of the complainant having learned, or having been able to learn, of the decision, action or failure to act which he considers a violation of his rights.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Tender Complaints Committee is responsible for the challenge procedure. As stipulated in Article 75(1) of the Act, the Tender Complaints Committee shall be comprised of three persons appointed by the Minister of Finance for a four-year term. Alternates shall be appointed in the same manner. The chairman of the Committee and alternate must fulfil the legal requirements made of district court judges. Other members of the Committee must have comprehensive commercial knowledge and experience. Committee members must be independent of interests of the state or other public authorities. As stated previously, the Committee shall work independently. Its rulings and decisions as provided for in this Act may not be referred to other public authorities. However, the Committees decisions are subject to judicial review in front of the national district courts (Héraðsdómur) and the Supreme court (Hæstiréttur).

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Tender Complaints Committee works in accordance with Act No. 94/2001 and examines complaints with reference to Act No. 94/2001 and subsequent secondary legislation on public procurement. Reference is made to the list of national legal instruments in force today in the field of public procurement. It should also be mentioned that it is stated in Article 79(5) of the Act that handling of questions (before the Committee) shall in other respects comply with the Public Administration Act, No. 37/1993.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?
- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Article 80 of the Act authorises a temporary suspension of contract procedures. This is regarded as a rapid interim measure to preserve commercial opportunities. The Article stipulates that if the Committee is of the opinion that there is considerable likelihood of a violation against the Act, or rules adopted pursuant to it, in a certain procurement it may, at the demand of a complainant, suspend the tender or awarding of the contract until a final decision has been reached on the complaint. The party against whom the complaint is directed shall as a rule be given a brief time-limit for expressing an opinion concerning possible temporary suspension of the tender or awarding of a contract. Derogation may be made from this provision in the case of a clear and obvious violation of this Act or rules adopted pursuant to it. A party involved may demand that the Committee give written grounds for a decision as provided for in this Article if such grounds did not accompany the decision when notice of it was given.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

Article 81 of the Act deals with the remedies available to the Tender Complaints Committee. The Article states that the Committee may with a ruling invalidate or alter a decision by the contracting authority for public procurement, cf. however Article 83. The Committee may instruct the contracting authority to tender certain procurement, advertise a tender once again or alter a tender notice, description of tender or other aspect of tender documents. The Committee may express its opinion on the liability of the contracting authority for damages towards the complainant, but shall not express itself concerning the amount of damages. The Committee may decide that the party against whom a complaint is directed shall pay the complainant the cost of lodging the complaint. If a complaint is clearly unjustified or lodged for the purpose of delaying the implementation of public procurement the Committee may rule that the complainant pay legal costs of the case, which shall accrue to the national treasury. If a ruling of the Committee as provided for in the first paragraph is not complied with, it may levy per diem fines on the party at which the ruling is directed. Fines may amount to up to ISK 500,000 for each day which elapses without compliance with the Committee's ruling. If a ruling is referred to a court the per diem fines shall not commence until final judgement is pronounced. Per diem fines as provided for in the fourth paragraph shall accrue to the national treasury. Per diem fines and a ruling on legal costs, as provided for in the third paragraph, are enforceable by execution without prior court judgement. Article 84 of the Act furthermore stipulates liability for damages.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The time-periods for the stages of the challenge procedure are laid down in Articles 78-81 of the Act. As stated previously, Article 78(1) stipulates that a complaint must be lodged in writing with the Tender Complaints Committee within four weeks of the complainant having learned, or having been able to learn, of the decision, action or failure to act which he considers a violation of his rights. Article 79(1) states that the complainant shall as a rule be given a brief time-limit in which to express himself on the comments from the respondent. Article 79(4) states that the Complaints Committee must deliver its ruling on a complaint as rapidly as possible, and no later than one month after it receives the documents referred to in Articles 78 and 79.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

It is free of charge to conduct a challenge procedure. However, it is stated in Article 81 of the Act that the Committee may decide that the party against whom a complaint is directed shall pay the complainant the cost of lodging the complaint. If a complaint is clearly unjustified or lodged for the purpose of delaying the implementation of public procurement the Committee may rule that the complainant pay legal costs of the case, which shall accrue to the national treasury.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Hong Kong, China

The following communication has been received from the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

I. SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

A. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ENTITIES

1. Article 106 of the Basic Law of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region of the People's Republic of China states: "The Hong Kong Special Administrative Region shall have independent finances". Article 110 states: "The monetary and financial systems of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region shall be prescribed by law". The Public Finance Ordinance (Chapter Two of the Laws of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region) provides the statutory framework for the control and management of the public finances of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

2. The government procurement process is governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations issued by the Financial Secretary/Secretary for the Treasury under the Public Finance Ordinance. These Regulations are supplemented by Financial Circulars and Finance Bureau Circular Memoranda issued by the Secretary for the Treasury from time to time. The procedures laid down in these Regulations and Circulars are fully consistent with the provisions in the Agreement on Government Procurement (the Agreement) of the World Trade Organisation. Chapters 2, 3 and 5 of the Stores and Procurement Regulations set out the procedures for the procurement of stores and services, as well as for contract administration. They cover all stores purchased or acquired on behalf of the Government (with certain exceptions as provided for in the Stores and Procurement Regulations); and services performed by contractors for and on behalf of Government (including construction and engineering works).

B. SUB-CENTRAL ENTITIES AND OTHER ENTITIES COVERED BY THE AGREEMENT

3. Sub-central government entities and Annex 3 entities have their own procurement systems and are not governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations. Upon Hong Kong's accession to the Agreement on 20 May 1997, these entities have amended their procurement procedures in order to meet the requirements of the Agreement which include non-discriminatory treatment of goods and services, qualification of suppliers, tender procedures, and tender specifications.

C. BASIC LEGISLATION (LAWS AND REGULATIONS) ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT ATTACHED

4. Copies of the following laws and regulations relating to government procurement have been submitted:

- Public Finance Ordinance (Chapter 2, Laws of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region);
- Stores and Procurement Regulations; and
- Rules of Operation of the Review Body on Bid Challenges (under the World Trade Organization Agreement on Government Procurement).

III. RESPONSES TO THE CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The procurement of stores and services by all central government entities of the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region is governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations. The principles underlying the government procurement system are consistent with the spirit and objectives of the Agreement. Certain provisions in these Regulations have been revised in May 1997 in order to fully align the government procurement procedures with the requirements of the Agreement.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Sub-central government entities have their own procurement systems and their procurement process is not governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations. However, their procurement procedures generally follow those of the central government entities, except that the authority to accept tenders and to award contracts rests with the municipal authorities.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

The Annex 3 entities are not subject to the Stores and Procurement Regulations. They are autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement but their procurement procedures are consistent with the provisions in the Agreement.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The central level, the sub-central level and Annex 3 entities have their respective procurement procedures. However, there are no significant differences, in substance and with respect to the Agreement, in their procurement procedures.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

- (a) Central government entities

For central government entities, the following information concerning the procurement of goods and services is published on the Internet:

- (i) general information about government procurements, including the procurement policy, the general terms and conditions for procurement of goods and related services, and contact persons;
- (ii) invitations to tender, which include the information specified in Article IX:6, 8 and 11 of the Agreement;
- (iii) a forecast of major purchases and invitations to tender for construction and engineering works; and
- (iv) notices of awarded contracts, which include the information specified in Article XVIII:1 of the Agreement.

- (b) Sub-central government entities

These entities publish tender notices through the Internet. Such information includes that prescribed in Article IX:6, 8 and 11 of the Agreement.

- (c) Annex 3 entities

The Airport Authority and Kowloon-Canton Railway Corporation use information technology in government procurement, i.e. through the Internet. The Housing Authority also publishes tender notices through the Internet. As regards Hospital Authority and Mass Transit Railway Corporation, they are currently using manual form in government procurement, but they both have plans to make use of the Internet to publicize tender invitations and contract awards.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

All entities covered by the Agreement award contracts for supplying goods or services through open, fair and transparent procedures. There are equal opportunities for domestic and foreign suppliers and service providers. We do not discriminate between products on the basis of their country of origin. There are no discriminatory provisions in the procurement procedures against foreign suppliers, or foreign goods and services.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

In accordance with Article IX:2 of the Agreement, entities may publish an invitation to participate in an intended procurement in the form of a notice. For procurements through open and selective tendering procedures, all central government entities are required to publish tender notices in the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region Gazette. All tender notices contain the information specified in Article IX:6, 8 and 11 of the Agreement.

8. Article IX: 3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

There is no implementing legislation or other requirements on sub-central and Annex 3 entities providing for this opportunity. Some entities may issue a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate placed in the format of a notice of expression of interest to participate, or notice of tender invitation of the type of tendering method engaged, in compliance with Article IX:3 of the Agreement.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

In the case of selective tendering procedures, the central government entities may consider establishing permanent lists of qualified contractors/suppliers for particular services or articles, where there is a frequent need to invite tenders for such service or articles but not all contractors/suppliers in the market are considered to be capable of providing the required services or articles. Central government entities must seek the prior approval of the Secretary for the Treasury for the establishment of such permanent lists. In making the application, a central government entity should explain the reasons for establishing the proposed list and provide information on the source of the prospective applicants, qualification criteria, assessment panel and method of assessment. In accordance with Article VIII of the Agreement, the qualification criteria are limited to those which are essential to ensure the ability of contractors/suppliers to provide the required services or articles, and do not discriminate among foreign contractors/suppliers or between domestic and foreign contractors/suppliers. Any subsequent revisions to the qualification criteria require the prior approval of the Secretary for the Treasury. In accordance with Article IX:9 of the Agreement, central government entities maintaining permanent lists of qualified contractors/suppliers are required to publish annually the up-to-date list, the period of validity of the lists, the method of application and assessment and the method of renewal, where applicable, in the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region Gazette.

There is no requirement on sub-central and Annex 3 entities to select lists of suppliers on a contract-by-contract basis, although many in practice do so. The entities may use permanent lists of suppliers in selective tendering procedures in accordance with Articles VIII and IX:9 of the Agreement.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

(a) Central government entities

The central government entities may conduct negotiations with the tenderers in order to achieve the best value for money. The central government entities must seek the approval of the relevant tender boards before conducting the tender negotiations, except in the following circumstances where the heads of the central government entities are authorized to approve the conduct of negotiations:

- (i) when only one tenderer is invited with the prior approval of the Secretary for the Treasury;
- (ii) when only one tender is received, and the tendered sum of the only offer is too high;
- (iii) when only one of the tenders received is technically acceptable but the tenderer has asked for a high price, and/or made counter-proposals or qualifications which conflict with the original tender conditions or specifications;
- (iv) when the tendered sum of the lowest conforming tender is too high.

The central government entities must follow the provisions and guidelines set out in the Stores and Procurement Regulations when conducting tender negotiations. These provisions and guidelines are fully consistent with the provisions set out in Article XIV of the Agreement.

(b) Sub-central government entities

Similar procedures with central government entities except prior approval from the respective municipal councils is required before the negotiation.

(c) Annex 3 entities

Annex 3 entities may conduct negotiations in circumstances similar to those as set out in 10(a) above, plus the following:

- (i) when the scope of an existing contract needs to be expanded and the price rates for the existing items of work are not applicable to the additional items of work; or
- (ii) when additional works need to be undertaken to include equipment or standards that are unique to a specialist company or identical to existing works or must be compatible with existing systems or proprietary software.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be “not less than X days”. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time-limits which have been established.

(a) Central government entities

The Stores and Procurement Regulations require all central government entities to comply with the time-limits for tendering set out in Article XI, i.e. to allow at least 40 days for receipt of tenders and no less than 25 days for applications to be qualified to tender. Only in exceptional cases, the Secretary for the Treasury may approve a central government entity to reduce the period for receipt of tenders, having regard to the requirements set out in the Article XI:3 of the Agreement.

As to the delivery of goods and services, given that the time for delivery depends on the nature of the goods/services to be provided and the terms and conditions of individual cases, there is no across-the-board time-limit.

(b) Sub-central government and Annex 3 entities

Time-limits for tendering comply with Article XI: 3 of the Agreement whilst time-limits for delivery depends on the nature of the goods/services to be provided and the terms and conditions of individual cases.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

For central government entities, there is no explicit reference to the language of tender submission in all tender notices, invitations for applications to be qualified to tender, and tender documents. English can be used in all such documents.

For sub-central government and Annex 3 entities, English is accepted in tenders.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

A Review Body has been set up to hear all challenges against alleged breaches of the Agreement by central and sub-central Government entities as well as Annex 3 entities. A set of "Rules of Operation of the Review Body on Bid Challenges" (the Rules) and a set of "Guide to the Review Body on Bid Challenges" (the Guide) are published. The former is a set of detailed rules governing the operation of the Review Body on Bid Challenges (the Review Body) and will be issued to all the parties concerned in a challenge. The Guide is an abridged version of the Rules and is available for public consumption which can be obtained from the Secretariat of the Review Body. Preparatory work is in progress to enable the information to be available via the Internet.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

In accordance with the Rules, if a supplier believes that a breach of the Agreement has occurred, he shall, within 10 working days after he knew or reasonably should have known the basis of the challenge, lodge a challenge to the Review Body on alleged breaches of the Agreement by procuring entities for relevant procurements. The Review Body may receive and consider a late challenge if reasonable cause for the delay is shown, but in any event no later than 30 days after the supplier knew or reasonably should have known the basis of the challenge.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent Review Body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Review Body is an impartial and independent body set up administratively by the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

- The Review Body consists of one Chairman, one Deputy Chairman and ten members. They are selected from a wide spectrum of society and appointed by the Secretary for Trade and Industry. Both the Chairman and Deputy Chairman are required to have legal qualifications. The current chairmanship is held by the Chairman of the Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre, who is also a former High Court Judge.
- The decisions made by the Review Body are not subject to judicial review, but procedures as stipulated in Article XX.6 of the Agreement have been put in place.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Review Body will examine complaints by reference to the Agreement itself, and the Laws of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The Review Body may examine the need for and recommend rapid interim measures, which may result in suspension of the procurement process to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities. However, if the procuring entity, taking into account any overriding adverse consequences for the interests concerned, including the public interest, is unable to implement the decisions, it must provide in writing to the Review Body the reasons for not doing so.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What type of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

Our challenge procedures provide that if the Review Body finds that there has been a breach of the Agreement, it may recommend corrective measures or compensation, which will be limited to the cost of tender preparation or protest.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The Chairman of the Review Body shall decide, within 7 working days upon receipt of an application for challenge, whether a prima facie case is established for the challenge to be accepted for inquiry. If so, a Panel consisting the Chairman and two members will be formed, and may recommend rapid interim measures not later than 7 working days after the Panel is established. The Panel will determine the validity of a challenge within 90 days upon receipt of an application for challenge.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

There is no fee for filing a challenge with the Review Body. Parties may file materials and appear before the Review Body without legal representation. All administrative costs arising from the challenge procedures will be borne by the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

HONG KONG, CHINA

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of Hong Kong, China the responses given and the comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of 8 March and 29 September 2000.¹ Hong Kong, China's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in documents GPA/27, dated 7 April 1999.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES

I. IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Question from Canada

In Section I(1) at page 2 of GPA/27, it is stated that "Certain provisions in these Regulations have been revised in May 1997 in order to fully align the government procurement procedures with the requirements of the Agreement". Which provisions of the Stores and Procurement Regulations were revised to meet the requirements of the Agreement on Government Procurement, and what changes were made to them?

Amendments to the Stores Regulations (subsequently renamed as Stores and Procurement Regulations (SPR)) were announced in Financial Circular No. 10/97, dated 20 May 1997, to fully realign our tendering procedures with the requirements of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) upon our accession. A copy of Appendix II of the Circular, which highlights the amendments made to the individual provisions in the Stores Regulations, is attached (Attachment 1).

Question from the United States

Within the Answers to the Checklist of Issues, it is stated that the procuring practices of those entities below the federal and central state level are not governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations, which is harmonized with the GPA. Please identify the legislation or guidelines that governs the procuring practices of these entities.

Entities below the federal and central state level were abolished on 1 January 2000. Please refer to Hong Kong, China's notification to the WTO Committee on Government Procurement – GPA/W/102, dated 5 January 2000 for details.

¹ The minutes of these meetings have been circulated in documents GPA/M/13 and 14.

Question from the United States

Within the Answers to the Checklist of Issues, it is stated that the procuring practices of Annex 3 entities are not governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations, which is harmonized with the GPA. Please identify the legislation or guidelines that governs the procuring practices of these entities.

Please see the attached Annex A (Attachment 2) for details.

Question from the United States

Please describe the differences in the implementing laws and respective procuring procedures that exist between those entities at the central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities.

There are at present no sub-central entities. Annex 3 entities are governed by the respective procurement guidelines, as detailed in Annex A, which are consistent with the provisions of the Agreement on Government Procurement. Except that the authority to accept tenders and award contracts rests with the respective Schedule of Authorities of individual entities, there are no significant differences, in substance and with respect to the Agreement, in their procurement procedures with those for entities at the central level.

Parties to the Agreement on Government Procurement may wish to know that the procurement process of central level entities is governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations which are more stringent than the requirements set out in the Agreement. The procurement process of Annex 3 entities is governed by their respective procurement procedures as set out in Annex A. While these procurement procedures might differ slightly from the Stores and Procurement Regulations in some areas, they are fully consistent with the provisions in the Agreement. For example, in the case of selective tendering procedures, central government entities must provide justifications and seek prior approval from the Secretary for the Treasury for the establishment of permanent lists of suppliers. For Annex 3 entities, there is no requirement for them to select lists of suppliers on a contract-by-contract basis, although they in practice do so. The entities may use permanent lists of suppliers in accordance with Articles VII and IX:9 of the Agreement.

II. NATIONAL TREATMENT AND NON-DISCRIMINATION

Question from Canada

In Section II(6) it is stated that "There are no discriminatory provisions in the procurement procedures against foreign supplier, or foreign goods and services". What are the specific provisions in Hong Kong Legislation that ensure the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement on Government Procurement?

The national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the GPA are reflected in nearly all provisions in the SPR. Examples include SPRs 315(a) and (b), 320(b), 350(a) and (b), and 370(b) (the first sentence).

III. PUBLICATION OF INFORMATION

Question from Canada

What is the Internet site address for information concerning the procurement of goods and services of the central government entities listed in Section I(5)(a) at page 3 of GPA/27?

Information concerning the procurement of goods and services is obtainable from the following main Internet site addresses:

Homepage of the Finance Bureau:	http://www.info.gov.hk/fb
Homepage of the Government Supplies Department:	http://www.info.gov.hk/gsd

Question from Canada

In Section III(13) two documents are discussed: "Rules of Operation of the Review Body on Bid Challenges" (the Rules) and "Guide to the Review Body on Bid Challenge". It is stated that "Preparatory work is in progress to enable the information to be available via the Internet". What is the current status of this electronic availability of the documents? Please provide the Internet address of the Review Body of Hong Kong.

Information about the Review Body, including a Guide to the Operation of the Review Body and the application form for lodging a complaint, is readily available on the Internet at the following address: <http://www.info.gov.hk/reviewbody-gpa/>.

An enquiry point (including e-mail address) is also provided in the website to facilitate the public to seek further information about the Review Body.

A full set of the Rules of Operation of the Review Body has not been uploaded to the website, but can be obtained electronically via e-mail. Besides, the Guide to Operation of the Review Body mentioned above is in fact an abridged version of the Rules of Operation.

IV. PROCUREMENT PROCEDURES

Question from the United States

In response to Question 11(a) of the Answers to the Checklist of Issues, it is stated that "in exceptional cases, the Secretary of the Treasury may approve a central government entity to reduce the period for receipt of tenders...". Are these "exceptional cases" specifically set out in laws or regulations?

It is stipulated in the Stores and Procurement Regulations that in case of extreme urgency, departments will have to seek the prior approval of the Secretary for the Treasury for reducing the period of receipt of tenders.

Question from the United States

In response to Question 11(a) of the Answers to the Checklist of Issues, with regard to Annex 2 and 3 entities, it is stated that "[t]ime-limits for tendering comply with Article XI:3 of the Agreement...". Are these time-limits specifically set out in domestic legislation governing procurement by Annex 2 and 3 entities?

Specific time-limits for tendering comply with those specified in Article XI of the Agreement and they are set out in the respective procuring procedures of Annex 3 entities.

V. ELECTRONIC TENDERING

Question from the United States

With regard to the use of information technology in the procurement process, please provide any available information regarding Hong Kong, China's forthcoming "Electronic Tendering System" of the Government Supplies Department. Will sub-central or Annex 3 entities utilise this system as well?

A leaflet introducing the Electronic Tendering System is at Annex B² (Attachment 2). Further information is available from the website at <http://www.ets.com.hk>. The Electronic Tendering System is developed for sole use by the Government Supplies Department, which is a central purchasing, storage and supplies organization of the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region. It serves all Government departments (central government entities under Annex 1), certain sub-vented organizations and non-government public bodies including the Hospital Authority under Annex 3. The Electronic Tendering System can be used for Hospital Authority tenders issued by the Government Supplies Department on their behalf. Other entities in Annex 3 do not utilise the Electronic Tendering System.

VI. BID CHALLENGE PROCEDURES

Question from Canada

Explain the process available to appeal the decisions of the Review Body. Under what circumstances can the decisions of the Review Body be overturned?

There is no provision for appeal against the decision of the Review Body in the Rules of Operation itself. However, procedures as described under Article XX:6(a)-(g) of the GPA are provided for in the Rules of Operation. There is also no provision under the Rules of Operation of the Review Body to prohibit any Party to a challenge from lodging an application for judicial review against the decision of the Review Body or of the Chairman. It is a matter for the court to decide whether or not to grant leave for judicial review.

Question from the United States

7. In response to Question 14(iv), it is stated that "if the procuring entity, taking into account any overriding adverse consequences for the interests concerned, including the public interest, is unable to implement the decision, it must provide in writing to the Review Body the reasons for not doing so". Does this mean that the decisions of the Review Body are not binding on procuring entities?

Although the decisions of the Review Body are not legally binding on the procuring entities, we have full confidence that the procuring entities will follow the decisions of the Review Body in good faith.

In this regard, Hong Kong, China has signed a "Memorandum of Understanding" with the Annex 3 entities, in which they agree to faithfully submit to the jurisdiction of the Review Body, to participate in its review process in accordance with the rules of the Review Body, and to observe the decisions made by it.

² English only.

The main reason for forming an independent administrative body to hear challenges of alleged breaches of the Agreement on Government Procurement is to allow relatively simple and less formal challenge procedures so that challenges can be dealt with in a timely and effective manner. This is in line with the provisions of the Agreement on Government Procurement, i.e. complaints shall be heard by a court or by an impartial and independent review body. As the Review Body's decisions on challenges are publicly available, such public censure provides an additional safeguard to deter the procuring entities from not faithfully following the Review Body's decisions.

APPENDIX II

Amendments to the Stores Regulations (with changes underlined)

Scope and Coverage

- 221(a) The tender procedures set out in these regulations should be followed for procurement and disposal of stores, services, construction/engineering works and other items, with the exception of the following for which separate procedures shall apply:
- Single purchases not exceeding the financial limits specified in S.R.R. 217 and 218(b).
 - Franchises, concessions, leases, licences, tenancies and other items procured and disposed of by public auction or method laid down by statute, government regulations, or administrative procedure agreed by the Secretary for the Treasury.
 - Private treaty grants, exchanges, extensions and short-term tenancies of land.
 - Consultancy service agreements approved by consultant selection boards appointed by the Secretary for the Treasury.
 - Briefing out of legal work by the Attorney General.
 - Employment of individual persons for non-civil service appointments.

(delete 221(g))

221(b)

Where procurements are covered by the Agreement on Government Procurement of the World Trade Organization (hereinafter referred to as the WTO GPA) and hence are subject to additional requirements, these are separately specified.

Types of Tendering

225. Tenders may be invited in the following ways:

- (a) Open tendering - tender invitations are published in the Government Gazette and, if necessary, in the local press, on the Internet and in selected overseas journals for the particular trade/product. All interested contractors/suppliers are free to submit their tenders. For procurements covered by WTO GPA, procuring departments are required to notify consulates and overseas trade commissions of the tender invitations.
- (b) Selective tendering - tender invitations are published in the Government Gazette, or are sent by letter to all contractors/suppliers on the relevant approved lists of qualified contractors/suppliers established for the purpose of selective tendering. For procurements covered by WTO GPA, procuring departments are required to publish the tender invitations in the Government Gazette and to notify consulates and overseas trade commissions of the tender invitations, if appropriate. Tenders received from contractors/suppliers not yet on the approved lists should also be considered, provided that there is sufficient time to complete the qualification procedure.
- (c) Single and restricted tendering – tender invitations are sent by letter to only one or a number of contractors/suppliers approved by the Secretary for the Treasury, upon the originating department's recommendation.
- (d) Prequalified tendering - tender invitations are sent by letter to contractors/suppliers on the list of prequalified contractors/suppliers approved by the Secretary for the Treasury on the advice of the Central Tender Board. Invitations for prequalifications should follow open tendering procedures.

Selective Tendering

226. (b) The Secretary for the Treasury is the approving authority for the establishment of lists of qualified contractors/suppliers for selective tendering. In making an application to the Secretary for the Treasury, departments should explain the reasons for establishing the proposed list and provide information on the source of prospective applicants, qualification criteria, assessment panel and method of assessment. The qualification criteria and assessment method should not discriminate among foreign contractors/suppliers or between domestic and foreign contractors/suppliers. For procurements covered by WTO GPA, the qualification criteria are limited to those which are essential to ensure the contractors'/suppliers' ability to provide the required services or articles. Departments should seek the prior approval of the Secretary for the Treasury before revising the qualification criteria and method of assessment.
- (c) Departments maintaining approved lists of qualified contractors/suppliers for selective tendering shall publish the up-to-date lists, the period of validity of the lists, the method of application and assessment and the method for renewal, where applicable, in the Government Gazette annually. A specimen is at Appendix III (A). Approved lists should be reviewed regularly to ensure that new applications are processed promptly and unqualified ones are deleted from the lists. In addition, new applications from suppliers/contractors for admission to the approved lists should be allowed at any time and should be dealt with expeditiously. Updating of the lists according to the approved qualification criteria does not require further approval from the Secretary for the Treasury.

Single and Restricted Tendering

- 227(a) Restricted or single tender procedures should only be used in circumstances when open competitive tendering would not be an effective means of obtaining the requisite supplies or services, e.g.
- where there is extreme urgency brought about by unforeseeable events and where the delay that would arise as a result of open tendering would seriously harm the public or security interests of Hong Kong;
 - where for reasons connected with the protection of copyrights or technical reasons, the products or services can only be supplied by a particular supplier and where no reasonable alternative or substitute exists;
 - where there is no response to an open or selective tender, or when the tenders submitted have been collusive, or not in conformity with the essential requirements in the tender, or from suppliers who do not comply with the conditions for participation, on condition that the requirements of the initial tender are not substantially modified in the contract as awarded;
 - where the equipment or services to be purchased must meet requirements of compatibility or interchangeability with already existing equipment or services;
 - where it can be demonstrated that "patent" or "proprietary" items are the only items which can meet the specification;
 - where services are to be provided by utility companies;
 - where maintenance is to be executed on patent or specialised equipment and where the warranty of the equipment gives the supplier of the equipment the exclusive right to carry out the maintenance service;
 - where lease terms require that work must be executed by a particular firm; or
 - for tenders below $1 million, to save administrative costs, where it has been established that the existing contractor is a suitable and cost-effective source of supply.

Prequalification

228. (c) Invitations for prequalifications are published in the Government Gazette and, if necessary, local press and selected overseas journals for the particular trade/product. Consulates and trade commissions in Hong Kong and known contractors/suppliers are notified of the invitation by letter. A specimen Gazette notice is shown in Appendix III (C).

Tender Specifications

231. (a) When inviting open, selective or restricted tenders, departments should word tender specifications in easily comprehensible general terms based on the functional and performance characteristics of the products required, and not around the technical data of a certain model of the goods or equipment to be purchased. There should be no requirement for or reference to a particular trade mark or name, patent, design or type, specific origin, producer or service provider, unless there is no sufficiently precise or intelligible way of describing the procurement requirements and words such as “or equivalent” are included in the tender documents. Where standards are referred to, departments should use, where practicable, international standards. Specifications should not be prepared, adopted or applied with a view to or with the effect of creating obstacles to international trade or to competition amongst the potential tenderers. When preparing specifications for technical equipment, departments should distinguish mandatory, desirable and optional features and indicate them in the specifications. Where applicable, departments should include the evaluation criteria in the specifications. Some guidelines for drawing up tender specifications are provided at Appendix III (K) for general reference.

Tender Notices

235. (c) Tender invitations should indicate clearly the address, telephone number and faxline of the office from which forms of tender and further particulars may be obtained, the exact location of the tender box in which tenders are to be deposited, and the closing date and time for the receipt of tenders. For procurements covered by WTO GPA, departments will have to send to any interested tenderer a set of the tender documents upon receipt of a written request and may charge the tenderer for the cost of the delivery. Tender notice should specify whether the intended procurement is covered by WTO GPA. A specimen Gazette tender notice is at Appendix III (F). Tenderers should be advised to submit their bids early as late tenders will not be accepted. They should also be informed of the alternative tender closing date/time as advised by the controlling authority of the respective tender box in the event of a rainstorm black warning or typhoon signal No. 8 or above being hoisted on the original tender closing date.
- (d) Adequate time should be provided to allow both overseas and local tenderers to prepare and submit tenders. A minimum of three weeks is normally required. For procurements covered by the WTO GPA, at least 40 days should normally be allowed for receipt of tenders and no less than 25 days for applications to be prequalified to tender. In the case of extreme urgency, departments will have to seek the prior approval of the Secretary for the Treasury for reducing the period for receipt of tenders. This authority has been delegated to the Director of Government Supplies in respect of Government Supplies Department tenders.

Evaluation of Tenders

236. (a) After tenders have been opened and authenticated by the tender opening team, the originals of the tenders received are sent to the originating departments or offices for assessment whilst the duplicates are kept by the relevant tender board. The originating department or office should check that the tenders contain, inter alia, the names and residential addresses of all partners (if the tender is submitted by a partnership) or officers (if the tender is submitted by an unincorporated body) and the number of the business registration certificate. Tenderers should be invited to provide any information that is missing, or to clarify any technical ambiguities or qualifications before their tenders are considered further. Care must be exercised in approaching a tenderer for clarification of tender qualifications and seeking an unequivocal withdrawal of any qualifications by a reasonable deadline. Where information is provided to a tenderer in the process of seeking clarification or in response to a tenderer's enquiry, departments should ensure that the same information is provided to all tenderers. Legal advice should be sought, when necessary. Under no circumstances can a tender be rejected as a qualified bid, expressly or otherwise, without the approval of the relevant tender board.

Acceptance of Tender

239. (b) The originating department will then send a letter to the successful tenderer accepting his offer and, where necessary, inviting him to sign the contract on a specified date. In notifying unsuccessful tenderers of the outcome of their tenders, departments will have to include in the letters the reasons why their tenders were unsuccessful. If the sum of the accepted tender exceeds the approved estimates, the Head of Department concerned should ensure that it is not accepted before approval for an increase in commitment or project estimate has been obtained. The letter should be copied to the secretary of the respective tender board. Contracts should be signed on behalf of the Government by officers at least at directorate level unless the Secretary for the Treasury has authorized otherwise.
- (c) Departments should keep a record of all contracts awarded. In respect of procurements covered by WTO GPA, departments should separately (or additionally) keep a record of each contract awarded under single or restricted tendering (and for which they have been given authority to adopt) for the purpose of meeting the specific statistical requirement of the WTO Committee on Government Procurement on limited tendering.
245. (a) Any variations to the contract sums, terms and conditions specified in contracts must be referred to the appropriate authority in Appendix III (I). For construction service contracts covered by WTO GPA, the total value of additional works to be awarded to the same contractor, other than variations ordered under General Conditions of Contract Clause 60, must not exceed 50% of the original value of the contract.

- 248 (b) On receipt of a complaint or the referral of a complaint from other offices, the Head of the Department responsible for the contract should deal with the complaint personally in an impartial and timely manner with a view to providing an early and substantive reply to the complainant direct or through the referral office. An interim reply should be sent to the complainant if a substantive reply cannot be issued shortly.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

ISRAEL

The communication reproduced below has been received from the Permanent Mission of Israel in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. Summary of the Israeli Legislation on Government Procurement

In 1992, the Mandatory Tenders Law (hereinafter "The Law") was enacted to oblige government entities to make procurements by way of public tenders. The Law is broader in scope and application than the Agreement on Government Procurement (hereinafter "the Agreement").

The Agreement applies directly under Israeli Law and is fully binding pursuant to Article 5A(b) of the Law which stipulates that "Regulations under this Law shall apply to the extent that they do not conflict with an undertaking of the State in an international agreement". Consequently, for tenders subject to the GPA, procuring entities must follow the provisions of the Agreement even if the regulations under the Mandatory Tenders Law provide otherwise.

Entities covered by the Law are central government entities, government authorities, statutory corporations and government companies, and therefore Israel's Annex 1 and 3 entities are covered by the Law.

The Law governs contracts for goods, real estate, performance of work and for the acquisition of services. Most of the procedures regarding government procurement are embodied in secondary legislation, regulations, which are enacted under authority provided for in the Law. There are currently four sets of regulations deriving from the Mandatory Tenders Law: the Mandatory Tenders Regulations - 1993; the Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Preference for Israel Products and Mandatory Business Cooperation) - 1995; the Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Defense Establishment Contracts) - 1993; and the Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Preference for Products from National Priority Areas) - 1998. The two latter sets of regulations apply only to defense tenders, and since defense procurement is excluded from Israel's GPA obligations, they are not relevant to this notification.

The Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Preference for Israel Products and Mandatory Business Cooperation) granting domestic products preferential treatment do not apply to suppliers from GPA Parties in tenders subject to the GPA. However, these regulations also impose an obligation of offset on foreign suppliers in contracts above a certain threshold, and this obligation does apply to suppliers from GPA Parties in accordance with Israel's offset commitment under the GPA.

In accordance with Article 7 of the Law, the Accountant General of the Ministry of Finance has published Finance and Business Regulations ("Takam") prescribing the procedural rules for conducting tenders. Section 3.3.12 of the regulations relates specifically to Israel's GPA obligations.

Regarding Israel's Annex 2 commitments, procurement by municipalities is governed by Section 197 of the Municipalities Ordinance (New Version) - 1967 and the implementing regulations with regard to Section 197, the Municipalities Regulations (Tenders) - 1987. Municipalities are obligated to invite tenders since Section 197 provides that "A municipality shall not enter into a contract for the transfer of any immovable property or goods, the supply of any goods or the execution of any work, save on the basis of announcement inviting tenders".

The Agreement is binding under Israeli law also in relation to municipalities pursuant to Article 24(a) of the Municipalities Regulations which states that "these regulations shall apply to the extent that they do not conflict with the States's obligations under international convention". To ensure that the municipalities follow the procedures required under the GPA, Article 24(b) of the Municipalities Regulations makes direct reference to the Accountant General's Finance and Business Regulations referred to above.

2. Basic Legislation (Laws and Regulations) on Government Procurement*

Unofficial English translations of the following laws and regulations relating to government procurement are hereby submitted:

- Mandatory Tenders Law 5752–1992 up to and including Amendment No. 10
- Mandatory Tenders Regulations 5753–1993 up to and including Amendment of 26 July 1998
- Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Defense Establishment Contracts) 5753-1993 up to and including the Amendment of 27 July 1997
- Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Preference for Israel Products and Mandatory Business Cooperation) 5755-1995
- Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Preference for Products from National Priority Areas) 5758-1998
- Municipalities Ordinance (New Version) – 1967, Sections 197 and 198
- Municipalities Regulations (Tenders) 5748-1987, up to and including Amendment of July 1999.
- Finance and Business Regulations of Accountant General of the Ministry of Finance. Summary of Section 3.3.12 which relates to Israel's WTO obligations.

3. Answers to Checklist of Issues

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

As noted above, the Agreement applies directly in Israeli law and is fully binding since Article 5A(b) of the Law stipulates that regulations made under the statute apply only so long as they do not conflict with the State's obligations under international treaties.

The Municipalities Regulations have a similar provision which makes the Agreement fully binding. Article 24(a) of the regulations stipulates that the regulations "shall apply to the extent that they do not conflict with the State's obligations under an international agreement".

* English only

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Entities at the sub-central level, which are included in Annex 2 of Israel's commitments are covered by the Municipalities Ordinance and its regulations. As noted above, Section 197 of this Ordinance requires the municipalities to publish a public tender for the purchase of goods and execution of any work. The Municipalities Regulations, which are the implementing regulations for Section 197, stipulate the procedures required for tendering, and in addition make reference to the Accountant General's Finance and Business Regulations.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Annex 3 entities include statutory bodies and companies controlled by the government. They are also subject to the Law and its regulations.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The implementing legislation for Annex 1 and Annex 3 is identical, the Mandatory Tenders Law, and their regulations. Annex 2 entities fall under the Municipalities Ordinance and the Municipalities Regulations.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

The Israeli Government Publications Office has a website where all tender notices are published in Hebrew. In addition, the website of the Ministry of Finance includes a tenders site in Hebrew.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

Regarding the Mandatory Tenders Law, the Law provides that every person be given an equal opportunity to participate in a tender. Moreover, since the Agreement applies directly through Article 5A(b), so do the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement. Regarding municipalities, the Agreement applies directly through Article 24(a) of the Municipality Regulations.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

For open tendering, a notice of proposed procurement must be published. Article 15 of the regulations implementing the Mandatory Tenders Law require the notice to be published in Hebrew and in Arabic newspapers and on an Internet site, and detail the information to be provided including the nature of the contract, its duration, preliminary conditions for participation in the tender, the time and place for receiving tender documentation and further details, documentation fees if any, and the last date and place for submitting bids. Moreover, the Accountant General's regulations also stipulate the public notice requirements, and state in addition, for example, that when the tender is subject to the Agreement, the notice of proposed procurement must also be published in one of two English daily newspapers, in accordance with Israel's Appendix II commitment.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

For entities at the sub-central level, a tender notice must be published. Since Article 24(b) of the Municipalities Regulations makes reference to the Accountant General's regulations, in which specific instructions are given regarding all notice requirements, the information required is identical to that of central government entities.

Annex 3 entities are subject to the Law and its regulations as described above (question 7).

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent list of suppliers or is there a requirement for list of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract bases?

The provisions of Articles 4, 16 and 17 of the Regulations of the Mandatory Tenders Law establish the conditions for conducting selective tendering procedures. Under these provisions, entities are allowed to make use of permanent lists of suppliers. The lists are open to the public, and any supplier may submit a written request to be included to the entity's tender committee. The supplier is added to the list if the tender committee deems him "fit" to be included in the list.

When selective tendering procedures are used, and the permanent list includes no more than ten suppliers, the procuring entity must approach all of them. If the lists includes more than ten suppliers, then the procuring entity must approach at least five of them.

Regarding entities included in Annex 2, under the regulations of the Municipality Act, the provisions for conducting selective tendering procedures relate to a lower threshold than that established under the Agreement. Therefore, these provisions are not relevant to the implementation of the Agreement.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Regarding Annex 1 and Annex 3 entities, Article 7 of the Mandatory Tenders Regulations foresee the possibility of negotiations subject to the conditions listed in the regulation, including the obligation of notice of the possibility of negotiation in the tender documents and in the public notice of the tender. Regarding Annex 2 entities, the Municipality Act Regulations do not foresee the possibility of negotiations.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information or any longer time-limits which have been established.

The Mandatory Tenders Law and its Regulations do not set time-limits as set out in the Agreement. However, since the Agreement is binding, the time-limits of the Agreement are binding as well. In addition, the regulations published by the General Accountant reflect the minimum time limits established by the Agreement.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

Israeli legislation does not put any limitations on languages allowed for the submission of tenders. Entities which publish tenders may permit the submission of tenders in other languages than in Hebrew, and in practice the submission of tenders in other languages (usually English) is permitted.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES – ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Israel has not established any special challenge procedures vis-à-vis Article XX, and any supplier, Israeli or foreign, with an interest in challenging the procurement procedure of an entity covered may appeal in a regular civil procedure to the District Court in the region where the tender was published.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

There is no specified time-limit for launching a complaint, and consequently a party may challenge a tender at any stage of the tender process.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The District Court in the region that the tender was published is responsible for the challenge procedure.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The applicable law is the Mandatory Tenders Law and its Regulations where relevant, and the Municipalities Ordinance and its Regulations where relevant, and, of course, the Agreement itself.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial conditions?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The District Court may issue an interim injunction that suspends the procurement process temporarily until the conclusion of the legal proceedings.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

If the Court determines that the complaint is valid, it will, in most cases, intervene in the tender procedure by deciding on the best proposal, issuing an order to the entity to cancel the tender, calling for a new tender, cancelling the contract with the winner, disqualifying one of the proposals, to issue a tender where the intention was not to contract by tender, etc.

In addition to the above-mentioned relief, a party may file a civil claim for damages against the tendering entity, and may even be compensated for lost profits.

(vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

There are no specific provisions on the length or cost of proceedings in public tendering cases and no data is maintained in this respect. However, the legal procedure used for tenders, "an originating summons", is by nature a shortened procedure in comparison to normal court procedures. Interim measures can be obtained within an average period of 7-14 days.

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The standard court fee is charged, which may vary. At present, it is not foreseen to do so free of charge.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

ISRAEL

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of Israel, the responses given and the comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of 20 September 2000 and 3 May 2001.¹ Israel's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in document GPA/34, dated 5 May 2000.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM CANADA, KOREA AND THE UNITED STATES

I. IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Question from Korea

Are the provisions below of the Mandatory Tenders Regulations of Israel consistent with the Agreement on Government Procurement?

(a) rate of preference for domestic products

- Domestic goods shall have a price preference of 15 per cent (10 per cent for a government company which exports at least 30 per cent of its production).

(b) division of tender

- If the procurement has a value of more than NIS 30 million, the buyer may reduce the volume of the contract with a foreign supplier to 50 per cent and re-contract the procurement with a domestic supplier for the remaining value of the procurement.

These provisions are consistent with Israel's obligations under the Agreement on Government Procurement, because as we noted in our summary of the legislation, under Article 5A(b) of the Mandatory Tenders Law, for tenders subject to the Agreement on Government Procurement, procuring entities must follow the provisions of the Agreement even if the regulations under the Mandatory Tenders Law provide otherwise. Therefore, the provisions regarding domestic price preference and the division of tender are not applied towards suppliers from Parties to the Agreement on Government Procurement.

¹ The minutes of these meetings have been circulated in documents GPA/M/14 and 15.

II. PUBLICATION OF INFORMATION

Question from Canada

With regard to the response of Israel to Question 5, what is the address of the website of the Israeli Government Publications Office? What is the website address of the Ministry of Finance that is referred to in the response. Is there a website that offers the tender notices on-line?

The address of the website of the Israeli Government Publications Office is: <http://michrazim.lapam.gov.il>. All tender notices are published on the website of the Israeli Government Publications Office in Hebrew. The website address of the Ministry of Finance is: www.mof.gov.il. It should be noted that in addition to the publication of tender notices in Hebrew, this site has an English site in which tender notices are published in English.

III. PROCUREMENT PROCEDURES

Question from the United States

The selective tendering procedures contained in the Regulations of the Mandatory Tenders Law allow that all suppliers interested in being considered for selective tenders may submit a written request to be included to the procuring entity's tender committee. The supplier may then be added if the tender committee deems that the supplier is fit to be included in the list.

We would appreciate further explanation of this process. Do we understand correctly that tender committees include representatives of currently qualified suppliers and that those committees decide on whether new suppliers should be qualified? Please provide the criteria and procedures by which interested foreign suppliers are judged by procuring entity tender committees to be fit for inclusion in permanent lists of suppliers for the purposes of selective tendering procedures.

The tender committees decide whether a new supplier is qualified to be included in that entity's list of proponents. Members of the tender committees are comprised solely of employees of the entity that issues the tender.

The lists of proponents are drawn up according to types of contracts and are updated and published periodically.

There are no general specifications or criteria by which the tender committees are to judge either the foreign supplier or the domestic supplier, other than those published in the notice for proponents' lists. The tender committee will determine the fitness of a supplier applying to be included on a particular list by examining the documentation and past performance of the applying supplier.

When conducting a selective tender procedure, the tender committee must request at least five proposals from different suppliers on the list. The committee shall choose the suppliers for a specific tender "... as far as possible, in rotation, all in a fair manner that yields the greatest benefit to whoever conducts the tender". (Article 16(d), Mandatory Tenders Regulations 5753-1993).

IV. BID CHALLENGE PROCEDURES

Question from Canada

Does Israel have any intention of establishing a Challenge Procedure to deal with procurement issues that is separate from the regular civil procedure in the District Court?

No.

In the event that a supplier is not satisfied with the decision of the District Court with respect to a procurement challenge, what is the process by which the supplier can appeal the decision?

To appeal the decision of the District Court, a petition to appeal would be filed with the Supreme Court.

V. OFFSETS

Question from Korea

According to Israel's Note on Offsets of Appendix I of the Agreement on Government Procurement, Israel is required at the end of a five-year period to submit a report concerning the implementation of the Note on Offsets. Is such a report ready for distribution? If not, will it be ready by 1 January 2001?

Israel shall submit the above-mentioned report in accordance with its obligation.

Question from the United States

We understand that Israel's public tendering law requires that all international public tenders valued above US$100,000 must include proposals for "industrial cooperation" (IC) with Israeli entities, valued at 35 per cent of the total contract. Under Note 1(b) of Appendix I of the Agreement on Government Procurement, these offsets will not require suppliers "to take any action which is not justified from a commercial standpoint". Note 1(c) provides that these offsets are to be gradually reduced to 30 per cent after five years and 20 per cent after nine years, beginning from the date Israel implements the Agreement.

With respect to Note 1(b) of Appendix I, please explain the implications of recent judicial decisions relating to the consideration of offsets in determining contract awards. Have those decisions resulted in any changes in procurement law, regulations or practice?

Please indicate what Israel's intentions are in regard to implementing the reduction of offsets and the submission of reports on the use of offsets, as set forth in Note 1(c) of Appendix I.

Under the Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Preference for Israel Products and Mandatory Business Cooperation) 5755-1995, all foreign suppliers must attach to their tender offer in a government procurement an undertaking for business cooperation (offset) in order to qualify for the tender. The rate of offset is 30 per cent (as from 1.1.2001) for suppliers from GPA member states. In the process of determining the contract awards, no consideration is given to the business cooperation undertaking other than a technical check of it being complete and signed. Only after determining the contract award does the ICA (Industrial Cooperation Authority) negotiate the ways to execute the undertaking with the winning supplier. Consideration is given to whether a purchase is commercially justified.

To the best of our knowledge, there is no judicial decision in that area.

Israel has implemented the reduction of offsets, for suppliers from GPA member states, from 35 per cent to 30 per cent, and a general directive has been issued to all relevant entities accordingly.

Committee on Government Procurement

Original: English

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Japan

The attached communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of Japan in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

Government Procurement in Japan has placed no restrictions on place of origin or nationality of supplier, and has been carried out on the principle of non-discrimination, and in principle on a basis of open tendering. As a Party to the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (hereinafter "the Agreement"), Japan is implementing government procurement through fair, open and transparent procedures.

Central government entities which procure in accordance with the provisions of the Agreement are 32 state organs, all their internal sub-divisions, independent organs, attached organizations and other organizations and local branch offices provided for in the National Government Organization Law. All these entities are covered by the Accounts Law and relevant regulations. Sub-central government entities listed in Annex 2 of the Agreement comprise 47 prefectures and 12 cities designated by the Cabinet Order. These entities are governed by the Local Autonomy Law and relevant regulations. All of these laws and regulations are consistent with the provisions of the Agreement.

With regard to Annex 3 entities which include 70 public corporations, procedures of procurement contracts covered by the Agreement are introduced into their accounting or internal statutes. Consistency of their procurement procedures with the Agreement is secured through responsible ministers' control over the corporations.

The following is an outline of the major relevant laws and regulations.

A. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT

- (a) "The Accounts Law" (Law No.35, March 31, 1947)

This Law stipulates the basic contents of the nation's accounting duties pertaining to contractual duties, contractual methods, tendering methods, contractual forms and other matters.

- (b) "Cabinet Order Concerning the Budget, Auditing and Accounting" (Imperial Ordinance 165, April 30, 1947)

"Special Provisions for the Cabinet Order Concerning the Budget, Auditing and Accounting" (Imperial Ordinance 558, November 22, 1946)

"Regulations on the Management of Contract Administration" (Ministry of Finance Ordinance No.52, August 20, 1962)

This Cabinet Order stipulates the detail of the rules and procedures provided for in the Accounts Law, including the conditions for the use of selective tendering and single tendering.

- (c) "Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services" (Cabinet Order No.300, November 18, 1980)

This Cabinet Order provides for special rules and procedures necessary to implement the Agreement in addition to the laws and regulations mentioned in (1) and (2) above.

- (d) "Ministerial Ordinance Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services" (Ministry of Finance Ordinance No.45, November 18, 1980)

This Ministerial Ordinance is applied to the procurement contracts subject to the provisions of the Cabinet Order referred to in (3) above. The Ordinance stipulates such specifics as information to be published in "Kanpo" in the qualification procedures, matters to be described in tender documentation and matters regarding the notification of the determination of successful tenderers.

- (e) "On the establishment of the Office of Government Procurement Review (Cabinet Decision of 1 December 1995)

The Office of Government Procurement Review (hereinafter the "OGPR") was established within the Prime Minister's Office to implement the provisions of the Agreement on Government Procurement regarding challenge procedures. The Government Procurement Review Board (the "GPRB") held under the OGPR processes and considers complaints in a fair and neutral manner with regard to the procurement by the entities other than sub-central government entities. The GPRB reviews complaints in accordance with the specific procedures set out by the OGPR by applying the provisions of the Agreement and the measures otherwise designated by the head of the OGPR.

B. SUB-CENTRAL ENTITIES COVERED BY THE AGREEMENT

- (a) "Local Autonomy Law" (Law No.67, April 17, 1947)

This Law stipulates an overview of the matters concerning the organization and operation of local government bodies (including the rules on procurement contracts) and the basic relations between the central government and the local governments.

- (b) "Ordinance for Enforcement of the Local Autonomy Law" (Cabinet Order No.16, May 3, 1947)

This Ordinance provides for the detailed rules and procedures to implement the provisions of the Local Autonomy Law, including matters on procurement contracts.

- (c) "Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services in Local Government Entities" (Cabinet Order No.372, November 1, 1995)

This Cabinet Order establishes special rules and procedures necessary to implement the Agreement on Government Procurement in addition to the laws and regulations mentioned in (1) and (2) above.

- (d) To implement the provisions of the Agreement with respect to challenge procedures, prefectural governments and designated cities have established their respective procedures to process complaints regarding the procurement subject to the Agreement.

2. CONTACT POINT

Requests from another Party concerning Japan's national legislation shall be addressed to:

First International Organizations Division
Economic Affairs Bureau
Ministry of Foreign Affairs

3. RESPONSES TO THE CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

A. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The Agreement has been transposed into relevant national laws and regulations with regard to central and sub-central government entities. All of those laws and regulations are consistent with the provisions of the Agreement. With regard to Annex 3 entities, the Agreement also has been transposed into their respective accounting or internal statutes whose consistency with the Agreement is secured through responsible ministers' control over the corporations.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

In Japan, government procurement is conducted based on procurement contracts entered into by each procuring entity in a decentralized manner. Sub-central government entities as specified in Annex 2 of the Agreement are, therefore, autonomous from central government in the implementation of the Agreement.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Public corporations or government-related corporations covered by the Agreement are listed in Annex 3 of the Agreement. Annex 3 entities are autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement. They include 70 corporations, as of October 1, 1999. These entities are established by relevant laws following an inspection by the Management and Co-ordination Agency, and are endowed with proper legal personality. Laws establishing these corporations provide for ministerial general control over the entities. Consistency of the procedures for procurement contracts with the Agreement is therefore secured through the ministerial general control over them.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The central level, the sub-central level and Annex 3 entities have their respective procurement procedures. However, there are no significant differences in their procurement procedures which are fully consistent with the provisions of the Agreement.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

With a view to facilitating access to information on government procurement, an electronic data base containing the information published in accordance with paragraphs 1 and 9 of Article IX, paragraph 1 of Article XVIII and paragraph 1 of Article XIX, is available, either at such places as local branch offices and Business Support Center of Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO) Information Service Division or through on-line information and data base retrieval services (<http://www.jetro.go.jp/>).

B. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

The procedures regarding government procurement under the Accounts Law do not provide for the restriction of the qualification for participation in tendering procedures on the basis of the nationality of the suppliers, or the country of production of the good or provision of service. Therefore, there are no provisions in our legislation which restrict the participants on the basis of the nationality or the country of production. Our legislation observes the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of the Agreement.

The Local Autonomy Law and relevant regulations regarding sub-central government entities, from a viewpoint of ensuring fairness and strict neutrality, equal opportunity and economic advantage, basically provide for such procurement procedures in line with the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of the Agreement. Furthermore, the Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services in Local Government Entities prohibits sub-central government entities from restricting the participants in tendering procedures on the basis of the place of their business offices.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

According to the implementing legislation with respect to central government entities, the invitation to participate shall take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. Where specified procurement contract shall be subject to open tendering procedures, Article 74 of the Budget Settlement of Account and Accounting Regulations as read in accordance with Article 5 of the Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services, which provides that the information of the procurement shall be notified by Kanpo not later than forty days from the day before the deadline for submission of tenders.

Where selective tendering procedures are to be adopted for a specified procurement contract, Article 7 of the Cabinet Order provides that a notice of the proposed procurement shall be published as in cases covered by Article 74 of the Regulations as read in accordance with Article 5 of the Cabinet Order.

Article 167-6 of the Ordinance for Enforcement of the Local Autonomy Law, as well as Articles 6 and 7 of the Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services in Local Government Entities, provide for the qualification for the participation in tendering procedures, those items to be noticed regarding the tendering procedures, and others.

These provisions premise that the invitation to participate in tendering procedures takes the form of a notice of proposed procurement.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Our implementing legislation does not provide for such opportunity for sub-central government entities as well as central government entities.

Annex 3 entities follow the same guidance in noticing procurement procedures, including such items as a notice of planned procurement, as the central government entities do.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

Article 4 of the Cabinet Order and Article 95 of the Regulations provide that the contracting officer, etc., must draw up a list of parties who meet the qualifications for participation in selective tendering procedures when the conclusion of a specific procurement contract by selective tendering procedures is foreseen. Thus permanent lists of suppliers are used in the case of selective tendering procedures.

Sub-central government entities are not prohibited from using permanent lists of suppliers in the case of selective tendering procedures.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

The negotiation mentioned in Article XIV of the Agreement is not allowed in the procedures regarding government procurement under the Accounts Law and the Local Autonomy Law.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for the Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services requires all central government entities to comply with the time-limits for tendering set out in Article XI.

The Ministry of Home Affairs, with official notice (November 1, 1995), requests sub-central government entities covered by the Agreement to comply with the time-limits for tendering set out in the Article.

As a voluntary measure to increase access opportunities for foreign suppliers to the Japanese market with regard to the procurement of products and services by the central government and Annex 3 entities, the Government of Japan extends, in principle, the period for the receipt of tenders from the date of a public notice for invitation to tender to 50 days (except construction services and design and consulting services).

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

In Japan, Japanese is the only official language. In tendering procedures, therefore, tenderers are required to submit tenders in Japanese, while there is no explicit reference to the language of tender submission in the implementing legislation.

C. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The Japanese Government established the Office of Government Procurement Review (OGPR) by the Cabinet Decision on December 1, 1995. The head of the OGPR is the Chief Cabinet Secretary and other members are the vice-ministers of ministries and agencies.

The OGPR decided "the Review Procedures for Complaints concerning Government Procurement" on December 14, 1995. These procedures were published on the Official Gazette. Also, the procedures were communicated to all parties through the WTO Secretariat. The most recent version of such communication is "Review Procedures for Complaints concerning Government Procurement in Japan (GPA/W/90)." This document is available through internet homepage of WTO.

In addition, all relevant information including the Procedures is generally available through the Economic Planning Agency's internet homepage: http://www.epa.go.jp/access/english/chance_main_e.html/

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

As explained above, all information is already generally available. However, we provide specific answers to all the questions for the Parties' convenience.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

The time limit to launch a complaint is not less than 10 days from when the basis of the complaint is known or should reasonably have been known to the supplier. (Review Procedures for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement 4. (1))

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Government Procurement Review Board is established and it is an impartial and independent review body with no interests in the outcome of the procurement.

The Chief Cabinet Secretary who is the head of OGPR designates the members of the Board. The Board is composed of scientists, scholars, and other members with experience in government procurement.

The decisions are not subject to judicial review.

However, the Board has the procedures listed in (a) to (g) of paragraph 6 of Article XX.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Board examines complaints whether the procurement is made in accordance with the Agreement.

In addition to its obligations under the Agreement, Japan has established voluntary measures incorporating more positive steps in the areas of government procurement of supercomputers, computer products and services, non-research & development satellites, telecommunications products and services, medical technology products and services and construction services. The Board makes reference to all these voluntary measures (Please see attachment 1). These measures are available through the internet homepage introduced above.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

In the case of a complaint prior to contract execution, the Board shall, in principle, promptly issue a written request to the procuring entity within 10 days of the filing that contract execution should be suspended pending resolution of the complaint.

In the case of a post-execution complaint filed within 10 days of the contract execution, the Board shall, in principle, promptly issue a written request to the procuring entity that contract performance should be suspended pending resolution of the complaint.

However, when the Board determines that urgent and compelling circumstances do not allow it to issue such request to the procuring entity, the Board shall immediately provide written notification of its decision with reasons to the complainant and the OGPR.

In addition, the procuring entity shall suspend the execution or performance of the contract immediately upon receiving the Board's request. If, however, the head of the procuring entity determines that he or she cannot obey the request due to urgent and compelling circumstances, the procuring entity may fail to suspend but shall immediately provide written notification of its decision with reasons to the Board.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

Where the Board finds that any provision of the Agreement or other measures were not followed, the Board shall accompany the report with written recommendations concerning appropriate remedies, which may include one or more of the following:

- that new procurement procedures be conducted;
- that re-procurement be conducted without changing conditions for procurement;
- that the procurement be re-evaluated;
- that the contract be executed with a different supplier;
- that the contract be terminated.

There is no financial compensation for loss or damages suffered.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

Persons or bodies wishing to file a complaint may do so with the Board within ten (10) days after the basis of the complaint is known. The Board will examine complaints received within seven (7) working days of filing and determine whether they will be accepted for review. If a complaint is accepted for review, the Board will immediately notify the complainant, OGPR, and the procuring entity of this in writing and publicly announce its decision through the Official Gazette, the Internet, and other means, soliciting the attendance of participants with interests in the complaint. The procuring entity is required to present a report to the Board; if the complainant or the participants disagree with this report, they may present statements to the Board or request a review by the Board, which the Board will subsequently undertake. Finally, a report by the Board on findings will be drawn up within ninety (90) days in case of standard review. This period can be shortened if the complainant or the procuring entity desire. This time limit may also vary according to the type of procurement. If the Board finds that procurement has been carried out in a manner inconsistent with any provision of the Agreement on Government Procurement or other applicable measures, it will draw up recommendations with the report. The procuring entity is required, as a rule, to follow the recommendations of the Board. (Please see the attachment 2.)

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The board requires no charge.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Japan

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of Japan¹, the responses given and the comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of 3 May 2001.² Japan's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in documents GPA/37, dated 20 June 2000.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM CANADA; HONG KONG, CHINA; SWITZERLAND; AND THE UNITED STATES

I. IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Question from the United States

Please provide an explanation of the "Act for Promoting Public Tendering and Contracting for Public Works" (Law No. 127 of 2000), and a description of its relationship to the procurement laws and regulations cited in Japan's Notification.

Please see Attachment 1³ (General Outline and Summary of the Act, main points of the enforcement order and the Items of the Guiding Principles on Measures for Promoting Proper Tendering and Contracting for the Public Works).

The laws and regulations cited in Japan's notification are general laws and regulations on public procurement. Basically these laws and regulations guarantee the national implementation of the Agreement on Government Procurement. On the other hand, the Act provides for additional rules for public works that are not covered by the said general laws and regulations. (For example, the annual announcement of prospect of orders, the announcement of bidders and bidding prices, the promotion of proper formation for implementation of works, notification of improper actions to the Fair Trade Commission, etc.)

² The minutes of this meeting have been circulated in document GPA/M/15.

³ All attachments are in English only.

The Act applies to contracts of works that are worth not more and less than the thresholds stipulated in Japan's Annex 5 (excluding contracts whose provisional value is less than ¥2.5 million). The scope of entities covered by the Act includes all central government entities listed in Annex 1 and all sub-central government entities listed in Annex 2 as well as quasi-governmental agencies that include part of the entities listed in Annex 3 (cf. the main points of the enforcement order in Attachment 1).

Question from the United States

Are there other similar laws that apply to procurement in a specific sector? If so, please provide a description of such legislation.

Besides the Act mentioned above, there are no laws or regulations that apply to procurement in a specific sector.

Question from Switzerland

Are there any differences between the laws and regulations applied by central government entities and by the laws and regulations applied by the sub-central authorities? For instance in the tendering procedures or the challenge procedures or the possibility to negotiate.

There are no significant differences between their procurement procedures. For instance, both have similar tendering and challenge procedures under their laws and regulations. Both have no laws or regulations that provide for procedures for negotiations under Article XIV of the Agreement on Government Procurement.

II. SCOPE AND COVERAGE

Question from the United States

Has the new central government reorganization, undertaken in January 2001, resulted in any changes in the laws or regulations relating to government procurement?

As for the ministers/ministries and agencies whose names have been changed as a result of the central government reorganization, Japan enacted laws and regulations on 6 January 2001, which formally amended the names of these ministers, ministries or agencies referred to in the national implementing legislation cited under 1.A (Central Government) and 1.B (Sub-Central Entities) of Japan's notification (GPA/37). Besides these formal amendments, no substantial changes have been made.

Question from the United States

With regard to Annex 3 entities, Japan states (ref. point 1 of GPA/37) that the GPA "has been transposed into their respective accounting or internal statutes whose consistency with the Agreement is secured through responsible ministers' control over the corporations". Does that mean that the law establishing each Annex 3 entity sets out the procedures that the entity must follow in order to comply with the GPA, as well as the authority for the responsible ministers to control the Annex 3 entities? If not, what is the legal obligation for the Annex 3 entities to comply with the GPA?

The law establishing each Annex 3 entity does not comprehensively provide for procedures that each entity must follow in order to comply with the Agreement on Government Procurement. Instead, it provides for general rules on finance and account that the entity must abide by. The law provides for the authority for the responsible minister to control the Annex 3 entity.

For Annex 3 entities, their accounting or internal statutes that set out necessary provisions to implement the thresholds and procedures in the Agreement on Government Procurement serve as the basis for legal obligation of Annex 3 entities to comply with the Agreement on Government Procurement.

Question from Switzerland

Which public procurement laws are applicable to corporations of Annex 3?

There are no public procurement laws that are applicable to the entities listed in Annex 3. These entities have their own accounting or internal statutes to implement the provisions of the Agreement on Government Procurement.

Question from the United States

Japan states (ref. point 3 of GPA/37) that the laws establishing Annex 3 entities “provide for ministerial general control over the entities”, and that consistency of the procurement procedures of such entities is “secured through the ministerial general control over them”.

- (a) What does “ministerial general control” mean with respect to government procurement? How does the responsible minister “control” the Annex 3 entity and ensure that its procurement is conducted in accordance with the GPA?

The ministerial general control of a responsible minister means the authority that the minister may give instructions or orders to Annex 3 entities in charge regarding their business if he or she deems such instructions or orders necessary to implement laws establishing Annex 3 entities.

In accordance with laws and ministerial orders establishing Annex 3 entities, such entities are obligated to provide for their accounting or internal statutes and shall gain approval or authorization from the responsible minister or notify the minister of the contents of their statutes and subsequent revisions. After Japan had signed the Agreement on Government Procurement in April 1994, the ministers responsible for Annex 3 entities requested the entities concerned, on the basis of their ministerial general control, to provide necessary accounting or internal statutes to implement the Agreement on Government Procurement and publicize them. In response, the entities concerned gained approval or authorization of such accounting or internal statutes from the responsible minister, or notified the minister of such accounting or internal statutes, and subsequently publicized them.

- (b) What authority does the responsible ministry have to compel the compliance of an Annex 3 entity with the GPA?

An Annex 3 entity is obligated to submit its business report and statement of accounts to the responsible minister each fiscal year in accordance with the law establishing the entity. Concerning these reports the responsible minister may ask a specific report on the status of procurement contracts that the entity concluded or inspect its practice. If the responsible minister deem as a result of hearing or inspection that the entity concerned failed to abide by the Agreement on Government Procurement, the minister may instruct the entity to amend its practices when necessary, on the basis of the ministerial general control in accordance with the law establishing the entity.

(Note: The authority of the responsible ministers and the obligations of Annex 3 entities mentioned under points 2 and 3 above do not refer to Annex 3 entities that have been already privatized and transformed into stock companies by the amendment of the national laws and regulations concerning the entities (i.e. Japan Tobacco Inc., the successor companies for Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Co. and Japan Railway) Those entities provided for their accounting or internal statutes or equivalents autonomously and implement procurement in accordance with the Agreement on Government Procurement. The authority of the responsible ministers mentioned under points 1 to 3 above does not refer to NTT Communication Co. because there is no special law establishing that company.)

Question from Switzerland

How is Ministerial control exercised over Annex 3 entities? (ref. point 3 of GPA/37)

See the reply to the question from the United States above.

Question from the United States

With regard to Japan's statement that Annex 3 entities "are established by relevant laws following an inspection by the Management and Co-ordination Agency" (ref. point 3 of GPA/37), what is the "inspection?" Does it refer to the laws or the entities?

Inspections conducted by the Management and Co-ordination Agency (currently the Ministry of Public Management, Home Affairs, Posts and Telecommunications as a result of the central government reorganization implemented in January this year) refer to inspections of the establishment of special legal entities, revisions (including changes of the purposes) and abolishment of the laws establishing such entities (cf. Article IV:11 of the Law establishing the Management and Co-ordination Agency (currently Article IV:15 of the Law Establishing of the Ministry of Public Management, Home Affairs, Posts and Telecommunications)).

Before a central government entity submit to the Diet a bill to establish a special legal entity, revise the system of an existing special legal entity or abolish such an entity, the Ministry of Public Management, Home Affairs, Posts and Telecommunications shall inspect the propriety of such establishment, revisions or abolishment which are provided by the bill in advance. That is, the Ministry is empowered to examine the contents of such bills, but neither the contents of subordinate legislation which set out detailed rules on business, finance or accounts of the special legal entities, nor the actual activities of such entities.

Question from Switzerland

Why were voluntary measures introduced in the areas of government procurement of supercomputers, computer products and services, non-research and development satellites, telecommunications products and services, medical technology products and services and construction services? What is the objective of these measures? Are they used frequently? What results were obtained thus far? (ref. checklist of issues, 14(iii), GPA/37, 20 June 2000).

With a view to further promoting procurement through procedures based on non-discrimination, transparency, and the principle of fair and open competition, Japan introduced the voluntary measures that include its lower threshold (100,000 SDR) and additional procedures which go beyond its obligations and commitments under the Agreement on Government Procurement. These measures are applicable in the areas of government procurement of super computers, computer products and services, non-research and development satellites, telecommunications products and services, medical technology products and services. (The voluntary measures are not based on any laws or regulations but on intergovernmental agreements. In addition to the measures in the areas mentioned above, there are voluntary measures for goods and services in general (excluding construction work, architectural, engineering and other technical services), which provide the same threshold and similar procedures.)

The purpose of these voluntary measures is to ensure thorough observance of the principle of competition. These voluntary measures apply to all procurement covered by them, except for procurement outside the scope of the Agreement on Government Procurement (e.g. the procurement of goods or services that are not bound by Japan's Appendix 1, procurement covered by Article XXIII of the Agreement on Government Procurement).

As a follow-up to these voluntary measures, the Government lists procurement contracts covered by the measures in each sector every year, and publicizes the procurement track record (cf. the Annual Report on Japan's Government Procurement: Policy and Achievements (available at <http://www.kantei.go.jp/foreign/procurement/2000/>) that includes documents on the above-mentioned voluntary measures, their summary and follow-up).

In the areas of construction work, architectural and other technical services, there is the Action Plan on Reform of the Bidding and Contracting Procedures for Public Works as voluntary measures applicable to the entities listed in Annexes 1 and 3. The general aim of the Action Plan is to provide for details of procurement procedures in accordance with the Agreement on Government Procurement and to implement them in two years advance of the entry into force of the Agreement on Government Procurement. In addition, the Action Plan includes special measures for evaluation of foreign firms that participate in tendering.

(Note: The following are the gist of the above-mentioned special measures for foreign firms:

In evaluating foreign firms under the "Business Evaluation", the Minister of Construction (currently the Minister of Land, Infrastructure and Transport) and the governor of each prefecture will take into account the number of engineers with foreign qualifications, periods of construction business activities outside Japan and the resources of parent companies in their home countries.

In evaluating foreign firms under the qualification to participate in tendering, each commissioning entity will take due account of a foreign firm's past records outside Japan in similar projects and availability of engineers with foreign qualifications.)

III. NON-DISCRIMINATION

Question from the United States

How does the Accounts Law "observe the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments" of the GPA (ref. point 1 of GPA/37)? Does it make explicit reference to them? If so, please identify the specific provision.

Procurement contract procedures based on the Accounts Law do not provide for any restrictions on qualifications for participation in tendering procedures on the basis of nationality of suppliers or origin of goods or services. In other words, central government entities are allowed to prescribe qualifications for participation in competitive tendering procedures provided that such qualifications are indispensable for ensuring proper implementation of contracts as well as promoting appropriate and reasonable competition. There are no provisions that would justify limitations on participants by nationality or origin. Therefore, the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of the Agreement on Government Procurement are ensured in procurement contract procedures based on the Accounts Law. For example, the following Articles guarantee the above-mentioned commitments.

Articles 70 and 71 of "the Cabinet Order Concerning the Budget, Settlement of Account and Accounting Regulations" exclusively list parties who are not allowed to participate in open tendering (i.e. incompetent parties) and cases where parties are banned from participating in open tendering for two years (i.e. improper actions by parties). Article 72 stipulates that if each central government entity prescribes qualifications for participation in open tendering, it must specify the size and conditions of the business etc. Furthermore, Article 73 stipulates that the contracting officer, etc. may specify additional qualifications in respect of those parties qualified under Article 72 if it is recognized especially necessary to ensure fair and reasonable competition. Therefore, such an action that precludes any foreign party from participating in open tendering because of its nationality may not be justified by any provisions of Articles 70, 71, 72 and 73. Such an action will constitute a violation of the Cabinet Order (cf. Attachment 2 containing the text of the relevant Articles of the Cabinet Order).

Question from the United States

Japan states that the Local Autonomy Law and relevant sub-central regulations “basically provide” for “procurement procedures in line with the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of the Agreement” (ref. point 1 of GPA/37). Does the law or do the regulations make explicit reference to these commitments?

The Local Autonomy Law and relevant regulations do not have any provisions that directly refer to the term "national treatment" or "non-discrimination". However, the Law and the relevant regulations provide for procurement contract procedures based on the principle of ensuring fairness, equal opportunity and economic advantage, thereby ensuring the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments. As an example for such provisions, Article 5 of the Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services in Local Government Entities stipulates that the head of any sub-central government entity in Annex 2 may not prescribe any necessary qualifications regarding the place of the business office of those who participate in open tendering for procurement contracts that the Agreement on Government Procurement applies to.

Question from Switzerland

Do the principles of non-discrimination and national treatment also apply to tenders from non-GPA Parties? If so, which countries?

Regarding the procurement contracts with central government entities and sub-central government entities, the principles of national treatment and non-discrimination apply to tenders from all countries including Parties to the Agreement on Government Procurement, based on the interpretation of national laws and regulations mentioned in 1.A (Central Government) and 1.B (Sub-Central Entities Covered by the Agreement) of Japan's notification (GPA/37).

Question from Switzerland

Does the Japanese legislation foresee any provisions for working conditions (wages, social security, social benefits, ...) to be applied by foreign firms operating in Japan on public procurement contracts in the construction sector or for services? Which GATS horizontal rules are applicable? Present an example with a concrete case.

National laws and regulations to implement the Agreement on Government Procurement do not have a clause providing for working conditions applicable to foreign companies that conclude procurement contracts in Japan in the construction and other service sectors. On the other hand, if the labour standards law or laws regulating business in construction or other services have provisions concerning working conditions (wages, social insurance and allowances, etc.), those provisions also apply to foreign companies operating in Japan as well as to Japanese companies. In this case, such foreign companies are required to abide by the said laws. If it turns out that a foreign company operating in Japan has not complied with any working condition provided by domestic laws and regulations, it may lose qualification for participating in tendering or concluding contracts.

Except for cases where the GATS Article XIII:1 applies to, horizontal rules and Japan's horizontal commitments under the GATS apply to services and service providers of all WTO Members. But we do not think that the application of Japan's horizontal commitments (e.g. commitment on movement of natural persons) to a foreign company (e.g. to its employees) operating in Japan will be denied simply because it bids for or won a public procurement contract in Japan.

Question from Switzerland

According to the 1997 statistics reported under Article XIX:5(b) of the Agreement (GPA/22/Add.3, 1 August 2000), 94 per cent of the central government tenders above the thresholds were awarded to Japanese tenderers. What could be done to increase the participation of foreign tenderers and the award of contracts to foreign tenderers in the future?

As mentioned in our response on page 5 of this paper, with a view to further promoting procurement through procedures based on non-discrimination, transparency, and the principle of fair and open competition, Japan adopted and introduced the voluntary measures in the areas of government procurement of super computers, computer products and services, non-research and development satellites, telecommunications products and services, medical technology products and services, and construction services. These measures include the lower threshold (100,000 SDR except construction, engineering and consulting services) and additional procedures which go beyond Japan's obligations and commitments under the Agreement on Government Procurement.

However, the ratio of foreign suppliers' remains between 4 per cent and 6 per cent (procurement value) from 1997 to 1999. In the same period, the ratio is slightly increasing in terms of the number of contracts but still at 2 per cent level (cf. Table 6-1 in Chapter II of the Annual Report on Japan's Government Procurement: Policy and Achievements (<http://www.kantei.go.jp/foreign/procurement/2000>)).

After all, while the procedures under the Agreement on Government Procurement and the above-mentioned voluntary measures offer non-discriminatory, transparent and competitive opportunities for foreign suppliers to participate in tendering, they do not necessarily guarantee the result. Therefore, foreign suppliers are invited to take advantage of these opportunities and participate more in tendering procedures.

(cf. The 1999 statistics of the above-mentioned Annual Report (Table 12 of Chapter II) show that the ratio of foreign products procured in Japan is considerably high in some product categories. For "mineral products" (soil and rocks, crude heavy oil, metal ores, etc.) the ratio is about 98 per cent. For "aircraft and associated equipment" it is about 66 per cent. (Both figures are calculated in terms of the number of procurement contracts.))

IV. PROCUREMENT PROCEDURES

Question from Canada

Further to the response of Japan to question 9 regarding selective tendering procedures, what is the process for the addition of new suppliers to the permanent lists of suppliers for use in cases where selective tendering is used. Can a supplier be added to the list at any time?

Interested suppliers may apply, at any time, for inclusion in the permanent lists of qualified suppliers used by central government entities conducting selective tendering. Duration of the validity of qualification is generally two or three years. When the application for qualification is made later than the qualification period specified by the official gazette, the duration of the validity is limited to the remaining period of two or three years. Similar procedures are provided for with respect to selective tendering conducted by sub-central government entities.

In addition, the qualifications for participating in open/selective tendering contracts with central government entities have been unified since April this year, with the exception of public works. Regarding documents and procedures required in order to apply for these qualifications, please refer to the tentative translation of the related public notice in Attachment 3. Information on application procedures regarding the qualifications for participating in public works performed by central government entities as well as procurement conducted by sub-central government entities, is available at contact points on government procurement, as listed in the relevant government website (cf. Appendix 5 of the "Guide to the Government Procurement Market of Japan" (http://www.mofa.go.jp/j_info/japan/procurement/)).

Question from Switzerland

According to the 1997 statistics reported under Article XIX:5(b) of the Agreement, 27.6 per cent of the central government tenders above the thresholds were under Article XV(a)-(f) (limited tendering), that is generally without publication. Most of these tenders (70 per cent) were under Article XV(b) (works of art, intellectual property) and Article XV(d) (additional deliveries by the original supplier). Why are intellectual property-linked purchases so important? Is it necessary to buy such a large amount of goods being connected with the protection of exclusive rights? What could be done to decrease this large share under both Article XV(b) and Article XV(d)?

We have not conducted a comprehensive survey on why the ratio of the limited tendering cases under Article XV(b) and (d) is so large among the entities in Annex 1. As for Article XV(b), a factor would be that a lot of entities commission suppliers to produce TV programmes and video tapes or to edit brochures and magazines as part of public relations activities and purchase them. As for Article XV(d) we can cite, for example, a typical case that it is unreasonable to commission another supplier to operate or maintain the computer network of the specific computer system already procured, provided that the supplier that has developed its program can operate or maintain it. Another factor is that many central government entities which concluded lease contracts of products procurement after they had stated in the tendering procedures a condition that they will lease procured products for two to four years, often renew their lease contracts after their expiration for reasons of Article XV(d). Because the central government entities are, in general, bound to conclude single-year procurement contracts. In conclusion, further research is needed to find out what could be done to decrease the large share of the limited tendering cases under Article XV(b) and (d).

(Note: In Japan all procurement contracts above the thresholds, that are concluded through limited tendering procedures by the central government entities in accordance with Article XV(a)-(j) of the Agreement on Government Procurement, are published in the official gazette, "Kanpō", within 72 days after the award of each contract in accordance with Article XVIII:1 of the Agreement on Government Procurement. The entities listed in Annex 2 publish such contracts in Kanpō, Shihō or their equivalents within the same time-period in accordance with the said Article. Under Japan's voluntary measures (except construction work, architectural, engineering and other technical services), when entities in Annexes 1 and 3 intend to make procurement that is worth not less than 100,000 SDR through limited tendering, they publish a notice of each limited tendering procurement in Kanpō at least 20 days before the scheduled date for contract award in order to clarify its appropriateness (except for certain cases⁴). The notice specifies: (1) the subject-matter of procurement; (2) the scheduled date for contract award; (3) the justification for limited tendering in accordance with the Agreement on Government Procurement; and (4) the name of the intended supplier.)

V. PUBLICATION AND DOCUMENTATION

Question from Switzerland

Why does the legislation not foresee the procedures associated with a notice of planned procurement and the notice of qualification system as an invitation to participate? What are the disadvantages and the advantages not to foresee such possibilities for Japanese procuring entities and tenderers?

The Accounts Law and related regulations, which apply to the central government entities, do not provide the procedures stipulated in Article IX:3 of the Agreement on Government Procurement. In general, the same refers to the entities listed in Annex 3 because they prescribe procurement procedures by following the central government's model. It is reasonable to publish an invitation to participate at the point of time when the planned procurement is decided because the timing of the procurement is often not determined by the time when a notice of planned procurement or qualification system is published. It is also appropriate with a view to minimize the uncertainty for suppliers, since there is possibility that planned procurement may be changed, suspended or postponed.

Regarding the sub-central government entities, the Local Autonomy Law and relevant regulations do not provide for the procedures stipulated in Article IX:3 of the Agreement on Government Procurement, either. The procedures are not adopted because information to be included in a notice of planned procurement and a notice regarding a qualification system under Article IX:7 and 9 is less than that to be contained in a notice of proposed procurement under Article 167:6 of the Ordinance for Enforcement of the Local Autonomy Law. It would lessen the transparency under the current system if the procedures under Article IX:3 were adopted.

Question from Switzerland

To which extent are tendering documents provided in English?

Based on Japan' voluntary measures on government procurement, the entities listed in Annexes 1 and 3 provide an English summary of each notice of competitive tendering procurement covered by the Agreement on Government Procurement.

In accordance with respective rules on finance or contracts the entities listed in Annex 2 are required to describe the following information in English, French or Spanish in each notice of competitive tendering procurement covered by the Agreement on Government Procurement: the nature and the quantity of products or services they intend to procure, the time-limit for tendering and the contact point for the procurement noticed.

Based on the Action Plan on Reform of the Bidding and Contracting Procedures for Public Works, the entities listed in Annexes 1 and 3 publish the following information in both Japanese and English in each notice of orders of public works covered by the Agreement on Government Procurement: the subject-matter of the construction, an application form and relevant documentations for tender procedures, the deadline set for the submission of tenders and the contact point where the tender documentation is available.

Question from Switzerland

How decentralized are publications (central, sub-central, corporations)?

As for the entities listed in Annexes 1 and 3, it is the official gazette, "Kanpō", issued by the Printing Bureau of the Ministry of Finance that publish laws, regulations, judicial decisions, administrative rulings of general application and procedures and notices regarding procurement covered by the Agreement on Government Procurement.

As for the entities listed in Annex 2, it is "Kenpō" or their equivalents issued by prefectural governments or "Shihō" or their equivalents issued by designated cities that publish laws, regulations, judicial decisions, administrative rulings of general application and procedures and notices regarding procurement covered by the Agreement on Government Procurement.

Question from Switzerland

How is access to the publication organs "Kenpō" and "Shihō" (GPA, Appendix II, Annex 2) secured?

Information on the publication organs that issue "Kenpō", "Shihō" or their equivalents is available at the contact point of each entity listed in the Annex 2. (The list of contact points is included in Appendix 5 of the "Guide to the Government Procurement Market of Japan" (http://www.mofa.go.jp/j_info/japan/procurement/). See the table in Attachment 4.)

Question from Switzerland

How is access to the publication organ "Kanpō" (GPA, Appendix II, Annex 3) secured?

The publication organ of the official gazette, "Kanpō", is the Printing Bureau of the Ministry of Finance. "Kanpō" can be purchased at 11 Service Centers of Government Publications across the country and 48 Stores of the Official Gazette, "Kanpō", located in each prefecture (see the tables in Attachment 5). Each issue of "Kanpō" is also available by Internet for one week from the day of the publication on the Printing Bureau's website (<http://kanpou.pb-mof.go.jp>).

Question from Switzerland

How frequently is bidding prepared with English tender documentation? For what kind of projects? To which extent are tenderers also accepted in English? How often?

National laws and regulations to implement the Agreement on Government Procurement, which are mentioned under 1.A. (Central Government) and 1.B. (Sub-Central Entities Covered by the Agreement) of Japan's notification (GPA/37), have no provision similar to Article XII:1 of the Agreement on Government Procurement. However, none of them have such provision as stipulates that the language used in tenders and contracts shall be Japanese. Therefore, it is interpreted under the above-mentioned national laws and regulations that procuring entities may designate either only Japanese or both Japanese and English as language to be used in documents for tendering and contract.

Since Japanese is the only official language in Japan, many of the entities listed in Annexes 1, 2 and 3 designate only Japanese as language to be used in tendering and contract procedures in their notice of procurement or tender documentation. However, some of the entities listed in Annex 3 provide tendering documents (including tender documentation) in both Japanese and English, in principle, for all kinds of procurement projects and allow suppliers to use both Japanese and English in tendering and contract procedures (e.g. Nippon Telegraph and Telephone Co).

VI. TIME PERIODS

Question from Canada

In response to question 11, Japan has stated "the Government of Japan extends, in principle, the period for the receipt of tenders from the date of a public notice for invitation to tender to 50 days". Is the 50-day time-period a minimum bid period or is it the maximum bid period used by Japan?

The 50-day time-period refers to the minimum period from the date of a public notice of invitation to tender to the deadline for the submission of tenders, which is based on measures taken voluntarily by the Government of Japan. Individual procuring entities may establish a period over 50 days on its own judgement.

Question from the United States

Is there specific legal or regulatory authority that requires Annex 3 entities to comply with Article XI time limits (ref. point 6 of GPA/37)?

The relevant provisions of accounting or internal statutes of Annex 3 entities ensure that the entities observe the time-limits set out in Article XI. If an Annex 3 entity is regarded as having failed to observe a time-limit, the minister responsible for the entity may request it to improve its practice based on the ministerial general control over the entity.

VII. BID CHALLENGE MECHANISMS

Question from Canada

In the event that a supplier is not satisfied with the decision of the Government Procurement Review Board, what is the process to appeal the decision?

"The Review Procedures for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement", as decided by the Office of Government Procurement Review on 14 December 1995, does not provide for any appeal procedures in the event that a supplier is not satisfied with the decision of the Board. In this case, the supplier may file a suit against the procurement decision with a judicial court in accordance with judicial procedures in Japan.

Question from Canada

Do suppliers represent themselves during the review process before the Government Procurement Review Board, or is legal counsel required?

"The Review Procedures for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement" mentioned above stipulates as follows:

Paragraph 5(7)(vi): "The complainant, participants and the procuring entity may be represented by lawyers, or by other agents approved by the Board."

Question from Switzerland

Which decisions of procuring entities can be challenged by interested parties? How many cases are dealt with yearly at the central and sub-central levels? What kind of problems are raised by complainants at the central and sub-central levels? How is the sub-central level challenge system organized?

(1) Challenge procedures by the central government

Paragraph 5(1) of the Review Procedure for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement (decided by the Office of Government Procurement Review (OGPR) on 14 December 1995) stipulates that "when a supplier suspects breaches of any provision of the Agreement (i.e. the Agreement on Government Procurement) or other Measures (i.e. other applicable Measures designated by the Head of the OGPR), he or she may file a complaint in writing with the Board at any time during the procurement process". (provisional translation) Article XX of the Agreement on Government Procurement stipulates that "in the event of a complaint by a supplier that there has been a breach of this agreement in the context of a procurement, each Party shall encourage the supplier to seek resolution of its complaint in consultation with the procuring entity". In accordance with this Article, a substantial number of complaints have been settled through consultation. Since the challenge system was introduced in 1996, three complaints have been filed with the Government Procurement Review Board (see information on the cases in Attachment 6).

(2) Challenge procedures by the sub-central governments

Sub-central government entities listed in Annex 2 have their respective challenge systems that are similar to the challenge system by the central government. (Information on challenge procedures of respective sub-central government entities is available at the contact points on government procurement of the sub-central government entities concerned.) Only one complaint has been filed about the Osaka Prefectural Government's procurement (see information on the case in Attachment 6).

Question from the United States

We understand that each procuring entity maintains a review procedure for decisions to procure without competitive tendering, that is to use limited tendering. Please provide the following information with respect to the review procedure:

In our view, to provide review procedures for limited tendering decisions is not mandatory under the Agreement on Government Procurement, unlike the challenge procedures under Article XX. Therefore, we have no comprehensive information on the review procedures that each entity covered by the Agreement on Government Procurement is conducting within its discretion. The following information is based on general examples of central government entities' practices.

(a) Please explain how the review mechanism works.

When an application for using limited tendering for a specific procurement made by the office in charge of the procurement, it will be examined by another body, for example, the office in charge of finance or accounting, or a special committee established within the entity to examine such applications.

- (b) Are the reviews undertaken before recourse to limited tendering (i.e., to authorize its use) or after limited tendering has been conducted?

Central government entities conducted the review before they approve the use of limited tendering.

- (c) Does the Government ensure that reviewers evaluate limited tendering decisions using a common set of standards across all entities? Is there a government-wide model or guideline for the establishment and conduct of such reviews?

As each entity conducts review procedures within its discretion, there is no common set of standards, government-wide model or guideline across all entities.

- (d) To whom do the reviewers report within procuring entities?

The reviewers report to the office that submitted an application for using limited tendering whether they approve it or not.

- (e) What criteria do reviewers use to evaluate the appropriateness of using limited tendering in a particular procurement?

The reviewers check the applications to see if they meet the requirements for limited tendering, which are provided by the Agreement on Government Procurement, the Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services and other legislation.

- (f) Can Japan cite instances in which actions by reviewers of limited tendering decisions overturned those decisions and required the use of competitive tendering?

For example, the fiscal 1999 annual report of the audit, includes a report stating that the Board of Audit advised the national university hospitals that commissioned a catering company to provide meals for their patients by limited tendering to take appropriate measures to switch it to open tendering.

- (g) Is the mechanism for reviewing limited procurement decisions insulated from procurement officials to ensure the objectivity of the review? If so, please explain.

As explained under (a), the mechanism for reviewing limited tendering decisions is insulated from procurement officials to ensure the objectivity of the review.

- (h) Are there any reviews of limited tendering outside of the procuring entity, such as by the Ministry of Finance?

The Board of Audit (BOA) audits the accounts of central government entities etc. In this capacity, the BOA also reviews already implemented procurement contracts by the entities to see if competition was well guaranteed based on the spirits of the Accounts Law and relevant regulations and if economical procurement was ensured. In this review, the BOA examines, for example, the appropriateness of each contract which used limited tendering, and whether competitive tendering was properly functioning.

Question from Switzerland

Can the Government Procurement Review Board break a contract after a contract has been awarded and signed?

Regarding the suspension of contract execution and performance by the procuring entity concerned, paragraph 5(6)(iv) of the above-mentioned Review Procedures for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement stipulates that "The Procuring Entity shall suspend the execution or performance of the contract immediately upon receiving the Board's request. If, however, the head of the Procuring Entity determines that he or she cannot obey the request due to urgent and compelling circumstances, the Procuring Entity may fail to suspend the same but shall immediately provide written notification of its decision with reasons therefore to the Board." (provisional translation)

Question from Switzerland

In the case of a post-execution complaint and a suspension of the contract performance, who bears the costs of the suspension?

The challenge procedures by the central and sub-central governments have no provision as to who bears the costs of the suspension of the contract performance.

Question from the United States

When the Government Procurement Review Board requests a procuring entity to suspend the execution or performance of a contract, and the entity does not comply with the request, does the Board or any other entity, have the authority to overrule the entity's decision?

"The Review Procedures for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement"(decided by the Office of Government Procurement Review on 14 December 1995) stipulates as follows:

Paragraph 5(6)(iv): The Procuring Entity shall suspend the execution or performance of the contract immediately upon receiving the Board's request. If , however, the head of the Procuring Entity determines that he or she cannot obey the request due to urgent and compelling circumstances, the Procuring Entity may fail to suspend the same but shall immediately provide written notification of its decision with reasons therefore to the Board. (provisional translation)

Question from the United States

With regard to the provision in GPA Article XX:6(b) that "participants shall have access to all proceedings", does that mean that the complaining supplier has access to all of the documents and material that the procuring entity provides to the Board? Is the procuring entity allowed to provide information to the Board to which the complaining supplier would not be allowed access?

"The Review Procedures for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement" (ditto) stipulates as follows:

Paragraph 5(7)(iii): When the Board determines that it is necessary to evaluate whether the filing of briefs, pleas, or other documentation would harm public interest or threaten to significantly impede the Procuring Entity from executing its official duties, the Board may have the Procuring Entity submit the same. In this case, the Board shall not disclose the same to anyone. (provisional translation)

Paragraph 5(9)(iii): The Board shall not disclose to third parties any trade secrets, manufacturing processes, or intellectual property of the supplier, or any other confidential commercial information, furnished by the supplier, except with the supplier's consent. (provisional translation)

Question from the United States

Are there domestic rules related to the treatment of confidential or business proprietary information that is submitted to the Board? If so, please provide.

"The Review Procedures for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement" stipulates as follows:

Paragraph 5(9)(iii): The Board shall not disclose to third parties any trade secrets, manufacturing processes, or intellectual property of the supplier, or any other confidential commercial information, furnished by the supplier, except with the supplier's consent. (provisional translation)

As for the definition of "confidential commercial information, "the Code of Schedules for Review Procedures for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement" (decided by the Office of Government Procurement Review on 11 January 1999) stipulates as follows:

Paragraph 4(12): The "confidential commercial information" in the Procedures 5(9)(iii) means the useful technical or trade information for the business activities which is not disclosed. (provisional translation)

Paragraph 4(11) of the Code stipulates non-disclosure of the report from the Procuring Entity except to the parties.

Question from Hong Kong, China

Paragraph 1.A(e) of GPA/37 states that the Government Procurement Review Board considers complaints with regard to the procurement by entities other than sub-central government entities. Paragraph 1.B(d) of GPA/37 provides that prefectural governments and designated cities have their own procedures to process complaints regarding procurement. How is the information about the challenge procedures of individual prefectural governments and designated cities made generally available?

Sub-central entities listed in Japan's Annex 2 of Appendix I basically have challenge procedures similar to those of central governments. The information about the procedures of individual sub-central governments is available through the contact point of prefectural governments and designated cities, as listed in the Government website (http://www.mofa.go.jp/j_info/japan/procurement; see the table in Attachment 4).

Question from Canada

Where are the decisions of the Government Procurement Review Board available? Are the decisions made available on an Internet website?

The decisions are available on the following government website: http://www5.cao.go.jp/access/english/chans_main_e.html.

VIII. INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

Question from Canada

With respect to information technology procurement, in response to question 5, Japan states that an electronic database is used "with a view to facilitating access to information on government procurement". Is Japan considering using information technology in more stages of the procurement process, such as posting electronic notices of proposed procurement and the reception of bids electronically?

(1) Government procurement of goods and services

In addition to the official gazette or other publications on information on procurement, the central government entities provide such information on their websites, thereby improving their provision of information on their procurement and making it easier for the general public to access such information. To that end, the Government created a database that provides integrated procurement information and began to provide such information from FY 2001 (cf. Appendix 6 of the "Guide to the Government Procurement Market of Japan" (http://www.mofa.go.jp/j_info/japan/procurement/)).

The Government unified the qualification for participating in competitive contracts with central government entities and established a unified list of registered suppliers. Under this new system, if a supplier submits an application to any one central government entity, the qualification obtained will be effective for all central government entities. This system has been introduced from this year's periodic judging of applications conducted in January 2001 (cf. Appendix 3 of the "Guide to the Government Procurement Market of Japan" (http://www.mofa.go.jp/j_info/japan/procurement/)). The Government plans to introduce submission and opening of tenders by Internet by the end of FY 2003.

The Government plans to introduce submission and opening of tenders by Internet by the end of FY 2003.

(2) Public works

The Government is scheduled to introduce submission and opening of tenders by Internet for part of public works under the jurisdiction of the Ministry of Land, Infrastructure and Transport in October 2001. The Government intends to introduce such a system, in principle, in all public works under the jurisdiction of the Ministry by the end of FY 2004. The Government begins to publicize prospects of orders and information on tenders and contracts for public works by Internet on a step-by-step basis from April 2001.

Question from Switzerland

What are the prospects for e-procurement? (ref. point 5 of GPA/37)

See the reply to the question from Canada above.

IX. OTHER MATTERS

Question from the United States

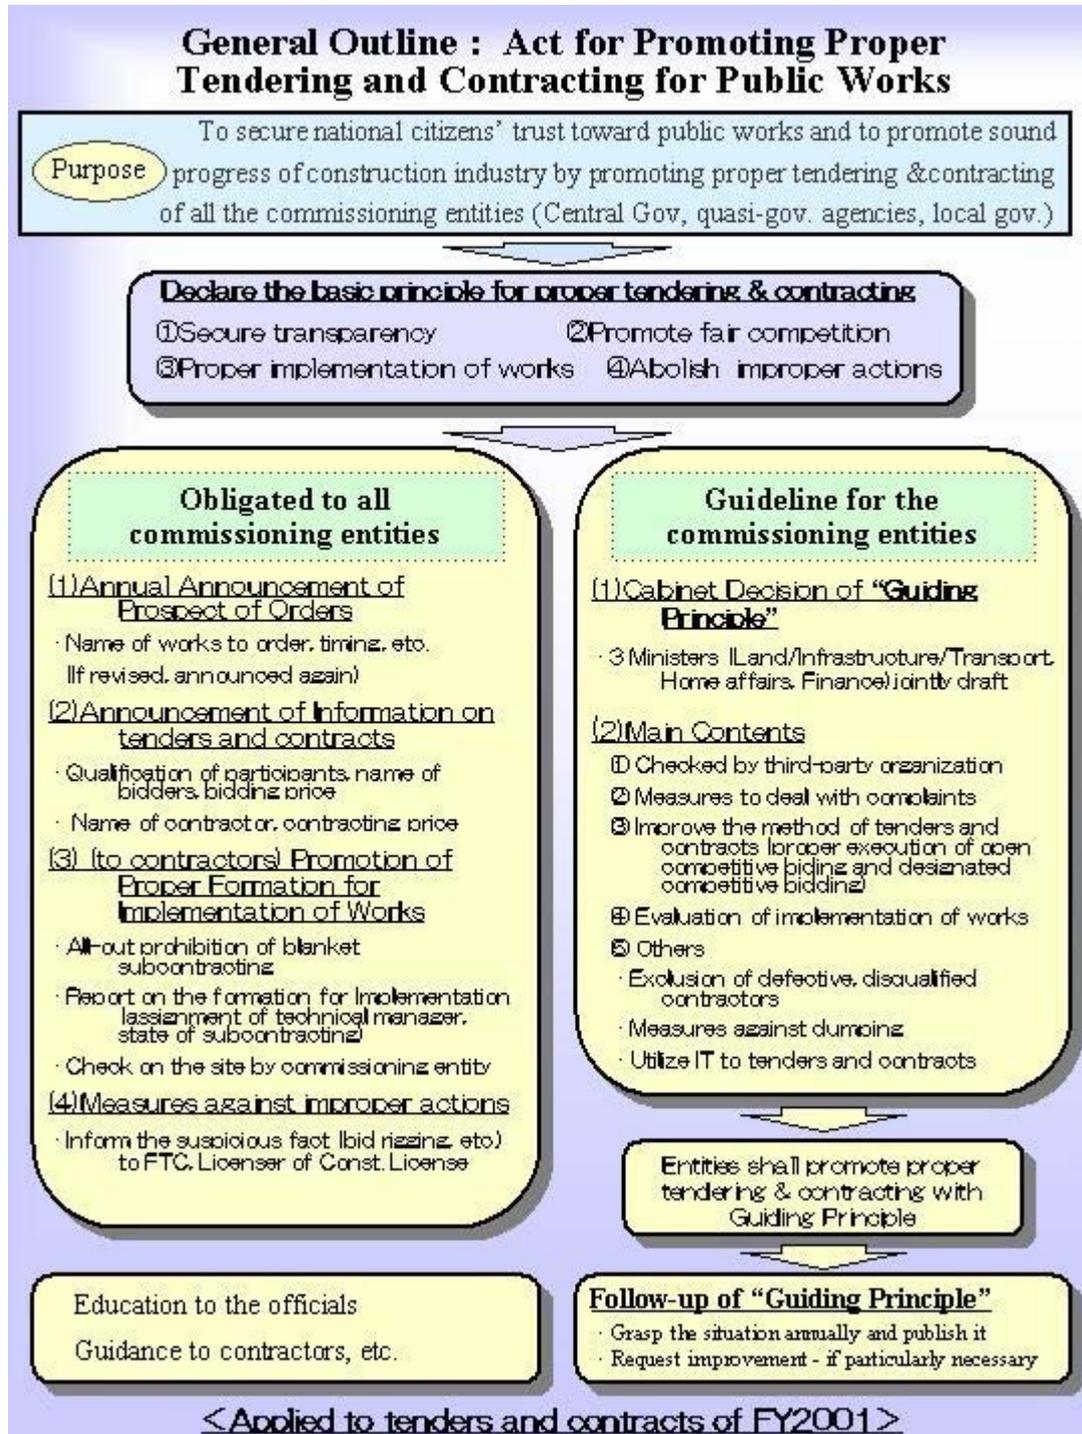

We understand that there have been several well-publicized cases of collusive practices in Japan's public works market. What specific steps is Japan taking to address such practices?

The Act for promoting Proper Tendering and Contracting for Public Works' entered into force in April 2001. This Act sets out principles such as ensuring transparency in tendering/contracting procedures, promoting fair competition, and abolishing improper actions. Measures against improper actions have been taken through this Act that stipulates, for example, an obligation of entities⁵ procuring public works to inform the Fair Trade Commission of the fact leading to sufficient suspicion about improper actions (e.g. improper publication of information on tendering and contract, bid riggings) when they become aware of it.

⁵ Entities include all entities in Japan's Annexes 1 and 2 and 40 quasi-governmental agencies cited in the enforcement order of the Act.

- a person who is deemed fully capable of fulfilling the terms of the contract and offers the lowest bid;
- a person who offers the most favourable bid for the State in conformity with the evaluation criteria specified in the public notice or the tender documentation;
- a person whose bid conforms closest to the criteria if the evaluation criteria are determined by the Presidential Decree considering the nature and scale of contracts.

1.5 Principles of General Competition in Government Procurement

- The contract official shall conduct a public procurement according to the competition principle. However, if necessary, taking into consideration the purpose, nature, scale, etc. of the contract, he may nominate participants or restrict the qualification of the participants.

- The Standard Price (presumed price) is a means to determine the best bidding price. It is determined by the illustrative transaction price, the cost price or the appraised price. It shall not be disclosed in advance.

2.3 Method of Competition & Qualification of Tendering

- Competition is conducted through competitive tendering in which there are more than two effective bidders.
- The bidder should own or be leasing the facilities required for manufacturing or supplying the contract object.
- When any approval or licence is required pursuant to the provisions of other laws, it should be obtained.

2.4 Public Notice & Site Presentation

-Fair competition and non-discrimination principles shall be observed in all international tendering.

-Any procurement requirement shall not be divided with the intention of avoiding the application of GPA.

-Entities shall not impose offsets on suppliers from other GPA members in an international tendering.

3.3 Tendering Procedure

There are three types of tendering in the international tendering procedure: open tendering, selective tendering and limited tendering (single tendering).

3.4 Language in an International Tendering

-The basic language is Korean. When necessary, however, foreign languages including WTO official languages can be used.

-In a public notice, main items for a tendering shall be written in one of the WTO official languages.

3.5 Qualification of Suppliers in Open Tendering and a Supplier's List

-Qualifications for a bidder, such as contract performance record, technical performance ability, financial capacity, etc., can be provided to confirm a supplier's ability to fulfil a contract.

-To simplify the qualification procedures, entities can avail themselves of a permanent supplier's list.

- Mediation by the Committee can be provided for the correction of breaches of the GPA or for the compensation of losses or damages suffered.
- The mediation has the same effect as a judicial conciliation when there is no objection.

3.8 Implementing International Business Practices

When necessary, in light of the nature of international trade, international business practices can be used for currency, deposits of contract payments, inspection, adjustment for inflation, etc.

4. Summary of Other Regulations Related to Government Procurement

4.1 The Act on Government Procurement Business (AGPB)

Character of the AGPB

- The AGPB contains provisions for the central government procurement system implemented by the Office of Supply of the Republic of Korea (OSROK).

Coverage of the AGPB

- The procurement by State and local government entities of goods worth more than 50 million won and construction works worth more than 2 billion won shall be conducted through OSROK.
- Government invested institutions, if necessary, can commit the procurement business to the OSROK.

Centralization of government procurement

- Basically, each government authority is responsible for procuring goods, services and construction services for its own use. However, goods and works of which the estimated value exceeds a given threshold value should be procured and supplied through the Office of Supply of the Republic of Korea on behalf of the other end-user institution (end-user).
- End-users are classified into two categories: obligatory and voluntary. The former consists of central and local government agencies, which are required to purchase their needed goods and works above a given threshold value through OSROK. The latter consists of government-funded or government-sponsored agencies, which have the option to procure goods, services and works on their own or through OSROK.

- Even obligatory end-users, however, are allowed to purchase goods and conclude construction contracts for themselves in cases of urgent procurement needs, small purchases below a given threshold value or procurement for national defence or security.

OSROK procurement procedures

- Each central and local government agency will forecast its needs for supplies and construction services during the course of a year, determine the purchase request plan with the preparation of budgeted funds, and submit it to OSROK before the beginning of the next fiscal year.
- Upon receipt of the purchase request plans from the end-users, OSROK shall draw up a comprehensive Acquisition Program considering the end-users procurement plan for the coming year as well as the procurement level of the previous year. OSROK will then procure and supply in a cost-effective and timely manner.

4.2 Local Financing Act

Character

- The local government procurement system is prescribed by the Local Financing Act and its Presidential Decree, etc.
- The provisions of the Act and its Presidential Decree regulate specialties for local government procurement. However, the main contents of these provisions are quoted from the ARCSP. Therefore, local government entities operate under the same basic procurement system as the central government.

Main differences in provisions from the ARCSP

- In case of local government procurement for a construction work less than 500 million won, a regional restriction can be imposed as a precondition for the bid. For example, according to the provisions of the Local Finance Act or its Enforcement Decree, entities can restrict participants' eligibility to persons doing business within its jurisdiction when the estimated price is less than 5 billion won.

According to the provisions by the ARCSP and its Enforcement Decree, etc., the restriction can be imposed only on those construction works worth less than 3 billion won.

4.3 The Government-Invested Enterprise Management Law (GIEML)

- Procurement business by government-invested institutions is prescribed by the Government-Invested Enterprise Management Law and Administrative Regulations by the Ministry of Finance & Economy.
- The difference between GIEML and ARCSP is that the scope of entities covered by each law is different and GIEML has a special provision regarding single tendering. However, the main contents of these provisions are quoted from the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party. Therefore, government-invested entities operate under the same basic procurement system as the central government.

III. ANSWERS TO THE CHECKLISTS

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

It has been transposed into domestic laws and regulations such as the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (•ARCSP•), the Local Financing Act and the Government-Invested Enterprise Management Law.

The Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (•ARCSP•) is the basic regulation on procurement by central government institutions. It prescribes details concerning contracts to which the state is a party, including procurement proceedings and contract administration. It contains details related to government procurement contracts through international competitive bidding. It prescribes provisions related to National Treatment, Non-discrimination, and the Transparency of Government Procurement.

The Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP provides details delegated by the ARCSP and those necessary for the implementation of domestic tendering.

The Special Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP for a Specific Government Procurement provides details delegated by the ARCSP and those necessary for the implementation of international tendering.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Entities below the federal or central state level have their own procurement system such as the Local Financing Act. However, this Act generally follows the provisions of the ARCSP.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Procurement by other entities such as government-invested enterprises is controlled by the Government-Invested Enterprise Management Law. This Law also generally follows the provisions of the ARCSP.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

There are no significant differences but there are some exceptions such as regional restrictions and conditions for single tendering. Local governments can restrict participants' eligibility to persons doing business within their jurisdictions, when the estimated price of the work is less than 5 billion won. The restriction can be imposed on construction works worth less than 3 billion won by the central government.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

We are running a database system offering information on tendering opportunities.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

ARCSP Article 5 of its Special Enforcement Decree (SED) Article 4

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

The provisions for a public notice reflect the provisions of the GPA. These are almost the same as the provisions of the GPA. Basically public notice for open or selective tenderings should be given no less than 40 days before the tender date. In some cases, for a selective tendering, the time-limit for a tender is extended to more than 65 days.

A public notice shall contain every item prescribed by the GPA such as the place, date and time for tendering and its opening, qualification of the bidder, contact points, etc. (SED Art. 11, 12).

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

A notice of planned procurement can be used by any entity according to Article IX:3 of the GPA (SED Art. 13). The entities may notify in the gazette the plan for procurement of goods, construction works and services to be supplied under specific procurement contracts during each fiscal year. The notice on procurement plans shall contain the statements set forth in the related provision of the GPA.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

If necessary, entities can use the permanent lists of suppliers. Qualification of suppliers can be determined by entities, taking into consideration construction capacity, skills or management status (SED Art. 10).

It is not necessary for a contract official to change the requirements for the supplier's list on a contract-by-contract basis. It is the same as the current classification system for suppliers. The requirements for the supplier's list are fixed.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Negotiations are allowed during the tendering procedure. If necessary, taking into consideration the nature of the contract, urgency and national security, the head of each central agency or its public officials may enter into a contract after receiving proposals from bidders and negotiating technical specifications, quality, etc.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be not less than X days. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time-limits which have been established.

The time-limits for tendering shall be more than 40 days after a public notice. According to the provisions of the GPA, some exceptions are prescribed as below.

In the case of an emergency notice: more than 10 days after a public notice.

In the case of a planned procurement notice: more than 24 days after a public notice.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The basic language is Korean in the tendering procedures. When necessary, however, foreign languages, including WTO official languages, can be used (SED Art. 8).

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Anyone who claims to have been disadvantaged due to breaches of the GPA by an entity's measures in the course of international tendering may make an objection and seek revocation or correction of such acts from the International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is not less than 10 days. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

A supplier or a contractor shall submit a complaint within 15 days from occurrence of the act which is the cause of the objection or within 10 days from acquiring knowledge of such an act.

The head of the relevant procuring entity shall, within 10 days from the receipt of the complaint, examine and take necessary measures such as correction and give a prompt notice of the decision to the supplier or the contractor submitting the complaint.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a court or an impartial and independent review body? If the latter:

In order to examine and mediate the request for a review, a committee is established in the Ministry of Finance and Economy.

- How are its members selected?

The chairman of the Committee is the Vice Minister of Finance and Economy. The Committee has 15 members who are professors and barristers designated by the Minister of Finance and Economy and public officials designated by the heads of major procurement entities.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

The mediation has the same effect as a judicial conciliation when no objection is raised. If there are any objections, the case can be sent to the court.

- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

We make the provisions for the various challenge procedures reflect the provisions of the GPA, such as holding hearings before a decision, conducting an open mediation process, providing decisions in writing, etc.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The ARCSP contains general provisions on the challenge procedures. The case can be sent to the related institutions for a special consultation. In the process of the Committee's mediation, procedures such as delivery, notice, etc. shall follow the provisions of the Act for the Civil Suit.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Suspension of tendering proceedings or awarding of contracts may be granted until the arbitration (mediation) process in the Committee is completed.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The Committee can make a mediation offer including cancellation and correction of breaches and compensation for losses or damages. There are limits to the compensation. It is limited to costs for tender preparation or protest.

(vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The supplier or contractor who has an objection to the measure by the entity concerned can request a review by the Committee for International Dispute Mediation within 15 days from receipt of the notice of decision.

Interim measures by the Committee shall be taken within seven days from the date of receipt of the opinion of a procurement entity.

The Committee, unless there are any other specific reasons, shall review and arbitrate the appeal filed within 50 days from the date of its receipt.

The mediation shall be final unless both parties (the applicant and the head of a central agency concerned) have an objection to it within 15 days from completion of the mediation. It shall have the same effect as an out-of-court settlement.

Legal channels for complaints or appeals are open to any supplier. Appeals can be raised in a civil suit.

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Translation, stenography, appreciation or testing cost can be billed to the appellant.

If there is a prior arrangement between both parties, the cost of challenge procedures is determined by the arrangement. Therefore, there can be no cost in some cases.

- a person who offers the most favourable bid for the State in conformity with the evaluation criteria specified in the public notice or the tender documentation;

- a person whose bid conforms closest to the criteria if the evaluation criteria are determined by the Presidential Decree considering the contract's nature and scale.

5) Principles of General Competition in Government Procurement

-In the conclusion of contracts, a contract official shall not impose any special condition which unreasonably restricts the contractual benefit of the other party, which is prescribed by the related provisions.

2. Estimated Value of Contract and Standard Price

-Estimated value of contract is a criterion opened in a public notice. It is a basic tool for determining the value of contracts for purposes of implementing the GPA. It is based upon the budget amount for a procurement and calculated according to the provisions of the GPA.

-Standard Price is a means to determine a best bidding price. It is determined by the illustrative transactional price, the cost price or the appraised price. It shall not be informed.

3. Method of Competition & Qualification of Tendering

-The competition is conducted by means of a competitive tendering in which more than two effective bidders participate.

-The bidder should be owning or leasing the facilities required for manufacturing or supplying of the contract object.

-When any approval or licence is required pursuant to the provisions of the laws, it should be qualified.

4. Public Notice & Site Presentation

-A public notice on domestic tendering will be given ten days before the tendering date (international tendering is prescribed by the Special Enforcement Decree).

•In the case of construction work tendering, it will be given seven days before the site presentation date.

•Site presentation will be carried out before following period:

·When the estimated price is less than 1 billion won
⇒ 10 days or more

- Decision method operated only in a domestic tendering

A successful tenderer is a bidder with the lowest price, provided that the bidding price is not less than the amount of 90/100 of the standard price and under the standard price.

In the tender for purchasing goods, the successful tenderer is the lowest price bidder.

6. Single Tendering

Following are the cases to which single tendering can be applied:

- in case of an Act of God or national security,
- in case of a contract with the current construction company due to difficulties of assigning liabilities for defects that might happen in relation to future construction works,
- in case of purchasing goods granted patent or in case where the supplier is only one person,
- in case of a work whose estimated price is under 50 million won, or goods and services whose estimated price is under 20 million won,

Summary of Special Enforcement Decree of the ARCWSP for a Specific Government Procurement (Special Enforcement Decree)

1. Scope of Special Enforcement Decree

The Special Enforcement Decree will be applied to:

-an international tendering prescribed by the GPA and other provisions.

For an international tendering which is not covered by the GPA, there are no obligations for observing the provisions of the GPA. However, provisions of Special Enforcement Decree shall be applied correspondingly to even the cases for the standardization of the procurement system.

2. Principles of Contracts for a Specific Procurement

-Fair selection for a successful tenderer and non-discrimination to any tenderer shall be done in an international tendering.

-With the intention of avoiding the application of GPA, any procurement requirement shall not be divided.

-Entities shall not impose any offsets in tendering procedures.

3. Tendering Procedure

Following are tendering procedures for an international tendering: open tendering, selective tendering and limited tendering (single tendering).

-In a public notice, main items for a tendering shall be written in one of the WTO official languages.

5. Qualification of Suppliers in Open Tendering and a Supplier's List

-Main conditions for suppliers are limited to those which are essential to ensure the supplier's capacity to fulfil the contract in question such as contract performance record, technical performance ability and financial capacity etc.

-To simplify the qualification procedures, entities can operate a permanent supplier's list.

-The chairman of the Committee is Vice Minister of Finance and Economy. The Committee has 15 members who are professors, barristers or officials, etc.

-The Committee can order the interim measures which include suspension of tendering procedures, etc.

-The mediation by the Committee can be provided for the correction of breaches of the GPA or compensation for the loss or damages suffered.

-The mediation has the same effect as a judicial conciliation when it has no objection.

8. Implementing the International Business Practices

When necessary, in light of nature of international trade, international business practices can be applied to determine currency, deposit of contract payment, inspection or adjustment of inflation, etc.

2.SUMMARY OF OTHER REGULATIONS RELATED TO THE GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

1. The Act on the Government Procurement Business

Character of the Act

-The Act contains the provisions for the central government procurement system implemented by the Office of Supply (OSROK).

Applied Institution

-The State and Local government entities shall commit the procurements for the goods more than 50 million won and the construction works more than 2 billion won to the OSROK.

-Government invested institutions, if necessary, can commit the procurement business to the OSROK.

Centralization of the government procurement

- Basically, each government authority is responsible for procuring goods, services and construction services for its own use. However, goods and works exceeding a given threshold value, which a specialized agency can procure more efficiently, should be procured and supplied through the Office of Supply of the Republic of Korea to central and local government agencies (so-called end-users).
- The OSROK's end-users are classified into two categories: obligatory and voluntary. The former consists of central and local government agencies, which are required to purchase their needed goods and works above a given threshold value through the OSROK. The latter consists of government-funded or government-sponsored agencies, which have options to procure goods, services and works for themselves or through the OSROK.
- Even the obligatory end-users, however, are allowed to purchase goods and conclude construction contracts for themselves in cases of urgent procurement needs, small purchases below a given threshold value or procurement for national defence or security.

System to draw up government procurement

- Each central and local government agency will forecast its need for supplies and construction services during the course of a year, determine the purchase request plan with the preparation of the budgeted funds, and submit it to the OSROK before the beginning of the next fiscal year.
- Upon receipt of the purchase plans from the end-users, the OSROK shall draw up a comprehensive Acquisition Program considering the end-users' procurement plan for the coming year as well as the procurement level of the previous year, which will then procure and supply in a cost-effective and timely manner.

2. Local Financing Act

Character

- The local government procurement system is prescribed by the Local Financing Act and its Presidential Decree, etc.
- The provisions of the Act and its Presidential Decree regulate specialties for the local government procurement. However, main contents of these provisions are quoted from the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party.
- In conclusion, local government entities operate the same procurement system as the central government.

Main different provisions from the ARCSP

- In case of local government procurement, the estimated price for the regional restriction is different from that of the state.

According to the provisions by the Local Finance Act or its Enforcement Decree, entities can restrict participants' eligibility to only the person doing business within its jurisdiction when the estimated price is less than 5 billion won.

According to the provisions by the ARCSP and its Enforcement Decree etc., the restriction can be imposed to the construction work only less than 3 billion won.

3. The Government Invested Enterprise Management Law

-Procurement business of the government invested institution is prescribed by the government invested Enterprise Management Law and Administrative Regulation by the Ministry of Finance & Economy.

-These regulations include some specialties for the entities applied and exception in the single tendering from the provisions of the ARCSP. However, main contents of these provisions are quoted from the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party.

-In conclusion, government invested entities operate the same procurement system as the central government.

4. ANSWER TO THE CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the agreement been transposed into national law?

It has been transposed into domestic laws and regulations such as the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (•ARCSP•), the Local Financing Act and the Government Invested Enterprise Management Law.

The Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (•ARCSP•) is the basic regulation on the procurement by the central government institution. It prescribes details concerning contracts to which the state is a party, including procurement proceedings and contract administrations. It contains details related to government procurement contracts through an international competitive bidding. It prescribes provisions related to National Treatment, Non-discrimination, and the Transparency of Government Procurement.

The Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP provides details delegated by the ARCSP and those necessary for the implementation of a domestic tendering.

The Special Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP for a Specific Government Procurement provides details delegated by the ARCSP and those necessary for the implementation of an international tendering.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Entities below the federal or central state level have their own procurement system such as Local Financing Act. But the Act generally follows provisions of ARCSP.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Other entities such as government invested enterprises are controlled by the Government Invested Enterprise Management Law. But the Law also generally follows provisions of ARCSP.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

There are no significant differences except regional restriction and conditions for a single tendering. For example, a local government can restrict participants' eligibility to persons doing business within its jurisdiction, when the estimated price of the work is less than 5 billion won. However, the restriction can be imposed by a central government only to the construction work of which the estimated price is less than 3 billion won.

5.To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

We are running a database system offering information of tendering opportunities.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement?

ARCSP Article 5 and its Special Enforcement Decree (SED) Article 4

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Provisions for the public notice are provided reflecting the provisions of the GPA. Those are almost same provisions of the GPA. Basically public notice for open or selective tendering should be done not less than 40 days before the tender date. In some cases for a selective tendering, time limit for a tender will be extended to more than 65 days.

A public notice shall contain every item prescribed by the GPA such as place, date and time for tendering and its opening, qualification of the bidder and contact points etc. (SED Art. 11, 12).

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or notice regarding qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Besides a public notice, other provisions for a notice of the planned procurement are prescribed according to the Article IX:3 of the GPA (SED Art. 13).

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

If necessary, entities can use permanent supplier's lists. Qualifications for registration at supplier's lists can be determined by entities, considering experiences, skills or business conditions of entities (SED Art. 10).

It is not necessary for a contract official to change the requirements for supplier's list on a contract-by-contract basis. It is same as the current classification system for suppliers. The requirements for the supplier's list are fixed.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Negotiation can be allowed during the tendering procedure. If it is deemed necessary, taking into consideration the nature of contract, the urgency, national security, the head of each central agency or the public officials may enter into the contract after receiving the proposals from bidders suppliers and negotiating technical specification or qualities, etc.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be not less than X days. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The time-limits for tendering shall be more than 40 days after a public notice. In compliance with the provisions of the GPA, some exceptions are prescribed as below:

In case of an emergency notice: more than 10 days after a public notice.

In case of a planned procurement notice: more than 24 days after a public notice.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The basic language is Korean in the tendering procedure. However, when necessary, a foreign language including WTO official languages can be used (SED Art. 8).

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and making them generally available. Please provide this information.

Anyone who has been disadvantaged due to the breaches of the GPA occurred by an entity's measure in the course of international tendering may make an objection for revocation or correction of such acts to the International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee (SED Art. 28).

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is not less than 10 days. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

A supplier or contractor shall submit a complaint within 15 days after the occurrence of the act which is the cause of the objection or 10 days after acquiring knowledge of such an act.

The head of the relevant procuring entity shall, within 10 days of the receipt of the complaint, examine and take necessary measures such as correction and give a prompt notice of the decision to the supplier or the contractor submitting the complaint.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a court or an impartial and independent review body? If the latter:

In order to examine and mediate the request for a review, a committee is established in the Ministry of Finance and Economy.

- How are its members selected?

The chairman of the Committee is Vice Minister of Finance and Economy. The Committee has 15 members who are professors, barristers designated by the Minister of Finance and Economy or public officials designated by the heads of major procurement entities.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

The mediation has the same effect as a judicial conciliation when there is no objection. If there are any objections, the case can be sent to the court.

- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

We have the provisions for various challenge procedures reflecting the provisions of the GPA such as hearing before a decision, open mediation process, decision by writing, etc.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

ARCSP has general provisions for the review of the challenge procedures, reviewing, examining and investigating. The case can be sent to the related institutions for a special appreciating. During the process, the provisions for the procedures such as delivery or notice etc. shall follow the provisions of the Act for the Civil Suit.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Suspension of tendering proceedings or awarding of contracts may be granted until the arbitration (mediation) process in the Committee is completed.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The Committee can make a mediation offer including cancellation and correction of the breaches and compensation for loss or damages. There are limits to the compensation. It will be limited to the expense for a preparation for the tendering and mediation.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

A supplier or contractor who has an objection to the measure by the entity concerned can request a review of the Committee for International Dispute Mediation within 15 days of the receipt of the notice of decision.

Interim measures by the Committee shall be taken within seven days of the receipt of the opinion of a procurement entity.

The Committee, unless there are any other specific reasons, shall review and arbitrate the appeal filed within 50 days of its receipt.

The mediation shall be final unless the applicant for appeal or the head of a procuring entity concerned raises any objection to it within 15 days of the completion of mediation. It shall have the same effect as an out-of-court settlement.

Legal channels for complaints or appeals are open to any suppliers. Appeals can be raised to a civil suit.

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Translation, stenography, appreciation or testing cost can be billed to the appellant.

If there is a prior arrangement between both parties, the cost of challenge procedures can be imposed by the arrangement. Therefore, there can be no cost in some cases.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

KOREA

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of the Republic of Korea and the responses given and comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of October 1998 to September 2000.¹ Korea's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee's Decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in document GPA/12/Rev.1, dated 9 June 1997.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM CANADA, THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY, SWITZERLAND AND THE UNITED STATES

I. THE ACT RELATING TO CONTRACTS TO WHICH THE STATE IS A PARTY
(ARCSP)

A. SCOPE OF THE GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT CONTRACT

Question from Canada

1. In the section on scope, Korea refers to contracts "according to the international norm and the GPA which exceed the amount determined and publicly announced by the Minister of Finance and Economy". What are the international norms that are referred to and does the Minister have the authority to change the amounts from what is in the Agreement on Government Procurement?

"International norm" is international trade practices that do not deviate from the GPA in their content and purpose. The Minister of Finance and Economy holds no authority to change the amounts of the threshold value, but notifies biannually the corresponding amount of the Won to the SDR.

B. COVERAGE

Question from the United States

2. Which government entities must follow the requirements of the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (ARCSP)? Paragraph I.1 of the summary of Domestic Legislations (GPA/12/Rev.1) indicates that "[u]nless provided for in other laws, government procurement is conducted under the [ARCSP]". Please explain instances in which other laws provide that the ARCSP does not apply. In addition, when a government entity is required to follow the ARCSP, are all of the entity's subordinate units (including its subordinate linear organizations, special local administrative organs, and attached organs) also required to follow the ARCSP? Do government entities that are not bound by the requirements of the ARCSP and/or its associated enforcement decrees and regulations follow procurement practices based on international contracting principles, including those contained in the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement? Please explain.

The ARCSP applies to contracts to which a state is a party, such as government contracts through international tendering subject to the GPA or contracts between state and a citizen of the Republic of Korea.

The term "state" covers central government agencies established under the Constitution and the Government Organization Act of the Republic of Korea, the National Assembly Secretariat, the Ministry of Court Administration, the Constitutional Court Secretariat, and the Central Election Management Committee Secretariat. Among the agencies covered by the ARCSP, the central government agencies listed in Annex 1 of the Korean Appendix I shall conduct government procurement through international tendering pursuant to the provisions of the GPA.

With respect to the extent of the applicability of ARCSP there are a limited number of provisions under the Korean laws which allow procurement procedures differing from the ARCSP. For example, the acquisition, management and disposal of government properties are subject to the Government Property Law while the procurement of goods for national defence is subject to the Special Law for National Defense Industry.

When a government agency is required to follow the ARCSP, the subordinate units of the agency are also required to follow the ARCSP if the units are government agencies. This is because the central government agencies may establish subordinate units such as subordinate linear organizations, special local administrative organs, and attached organs pursuant to the Government Organization Act of the Republic of Korea. Therefore, subordinate units can comprise central government agencies.

It is not clear what is meant by "government entities that are not bound by the ARCSP and/or its associated enforcement decrees and regulations". The ARCSP basically applies to all central government agencies mentioned above. The entities of Annex 1 of Korean Appendix I are required to follow the international contracting principles pursuant to the GPA. Annex 2 and Annex 3 entities are required to follow the principles under the Local Financing Act, and the Government Invested Enterprise Accounting Regulations. Entities not covered by the GPA are expected to operate procedures of procurement pursuant to general international trade practice when international tendering is necessary.

Small and Medium Enterprise Products Promotion Act

Question from Canada

3. Could Korea please describe the purpose and content of the provisions in the Small and Medium Enterprise Products Promotion Act related to procurement from small and medium-sized businesses and their relationship to the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party and its Presidential Decree? What is the meaning of the expression "international tendering"?

The purpose and content of the Small and Medium Enterprise Products Promotion Act related to procurement is to contribute to the balanced development of the national economy by promoting sales and outlets of the products made by small and medium enterprises. Korea's basic act relating to the government procurement is the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (ARCSP) and its Presidential Decree. ARCSP is based on general competition, and private contracts are recognized as exceptional cases, including the private group contracts, as specified in the Small and Medium Enterprise Products Promotion Act.

"International tendering" means giving bidding opportunities to all GPA Parties for procurements with values greater than the threshold value.

Question from the European Community

4. According to Note 3 to Annexes 1 and 2 and Note 2 to Annex 3 of the Korean Appendix I, Korea may exclude "the single tendering procurement including set-asides for small and medium-sized businesses" according to the Budget and Account Law, the Local Finance Law, the Government Invested Enterprise Management Act and the various Presidential Decrees and Accounting Regulations.

This exception relates to Small and Medium-sized Enterprises (SMEs). Could Korea please specify if the single tendering procedure exception is applied to anything else? How does Korea decide that a contract is set aside for SMEs? How is an SME defined in terms of size? Does Korea have any figures concerning purchases from SMEs (percentage of total procurement, etc.)?

The instances when the central government can enter into a procurement contract by a single tendering are described in detail in Article 26 of the Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP. According to Note 3 to Annexes 1 and 2, and Note 2 to Annex 3, Korea may exclude single tendering procurement from the GPA. The following are the cases in which single tendering can be applied:

- (a) when an act of God or national security is concerned;
- (b) when a former construction contractor is re-contracted in order to ensure responsibility for any possible defects in the future;
- (c) when a contract to procure goods is related to patents, or there is only one supplier;
- (d) when the contract is for construction work whose estimated value is under W 100 million, or for goods and services whose estimated value is under W 30 million;
- (e) when goods are being procured from small and medium-sized enterprises under the Act regarding Small and Medium Enterprise Promotion and Products Purchase Promotion;
- (f) when goods are being procured from agencies for the disabled;
- (g) when no bidder or successful tenderer can be found, even after a tendering re-notification.

The cases when local governments and government-invested enterprises can enter into a procurement contract by single tendering are prescribed in the Local Financing Law and Government-Invested Enterprise Accounting Regulations, in which the main content of the provisions of the Enforcement Decree are quoted.

In Korea, the term small and medium enterprises (SMEs) is defined as a company which employs less than 300 persons and whose assets amount to less than W 80 billion.

Each year, the Small and Medium Business Administration (SMBA) publishes a list of products to be procured only from SMEs. For the products listed, qualified suppliers may enter into a procurement contract with SAROK (formerly OSROK) as prescribed in provisions 9 and 9.2 of the Act regarding Small and Medium Enterprise Promotion and Products Purchase Promotion.

C. PRINCIPLES OF GENERAL COMPETITION

Question from Canada

5. What is the extent and purpose of the discretion provided to contract officers to nominate participants or restrict qualifications of the participants, as provided for in the section on principles of general competition?

The procurement entities may conduct reviews for qualification of suppliers participating in the tendering to increase efficiency of the procurement process. However, procurement entities have objective criteria for the qualification reviews, and subjective judgments by the contract officers are excluded.

D. RESTRICTIONS ON TENDERING PARTICIPATION ELIGIBILITY FOR IMPROPER BUSINESS PERSONS

Question from the United States

6. In Section I.6 of the summary of domestic legislation, Korea states that a person who is "deemed unqualified" may be denied the opportunity to participate in a tender. Under what circumstances or conditions may a person be "deemed unqualified"? In view of GPA Article VIII(b), are all of these conditions essential to ensure the person's capability to fulfil the contract or contracts in question?

In Section I.6 of the Summary of Domestic Legislation (GPA/12/Rev.1), Korea states restrictions on participation eligibility for tendering. These restrictions apply to suppliers who impede or deviate from fair competition or proper fulfilment of a government contract, or suppliers who are deemed unqualified. Grounds for the restrictions are prescribed specifically in the Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP and Enforcement Regulation of the ARCSP in order to prevent procuring entities from making arbitrary decisions. The term "deemed unqualified" does not directly relate to the capabilities of suppliers. Rather, it means suppliers are "considered as unqualified" to participate in tendering because of activities which are viewed by the entity as detrimental to fair competition or to proper fulfilment of a government contract.

Question from the European Community

7. The Korean Fair Trade Commission may intervene against cartels of suppliers which limit competition in public procurement. How does Korea intend to ensure that suppliers behave in a competitive manner? Can Korea give details on the activity of the Fair Trade Commission with respect to this issue? In particular, can Korea indicate whether it has already taken any concrete action on bid-rigging and the like; and whether in doing so it made a distinction between foreign suppliers and domestic ones?

Korea takes strong action against bid-rigging by implementing the ARCSP, and the Fair Trade Commission also plays a role to ensure fair competition in the procurement market. If a supplier is found to have committed improper activities detrimental to fair competition including bid-rigging, the procuring entities must bar suppliers' eligibility for tendering for no less than one month but for no more than two years. The circumstances and periods of restrictions are described in detail in Article 76 of the Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP and Article 76 of the Enforcement Regulation of the ARCSP. The provisions are quoted by the Local Financing Law and the Government-Invested Enterprise Accounting Regulations. The procuring entity concerned must publish the restriction in an official gazette (Kwan-Bo). Other procuring entities may also disqualify the supplier from participating in tendering during the period of restriction.

Question from Switzerland

8. Please provide additional information on the criteria used to judge a business person as "improper" and on the length of the specified period this person may be deemed unqualified to participate in the tendering. Can this decision also be challenged?

Restrictions on participation eligibility for tendering apply to suppliers who impede or deviate from fair competition or proper fulfilment of a government contract, and to suppliers who are deemed unqualified. Article 76 of the Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP and Appendix 2 related to Article 76 of the Enforcement Regulation of the ARCSP prescribe specifically the grounds for restrictions and the lengths of the period of restrictions in order to prevent procuring entities from making arbitrary decisions. When the restrictions apply, a hearing must be given for the supplier concerned, according to the Act on Administrative Procedure. The supplier concerned can challenge a restriction under the Law for Administrative Review.

II. ENFORCEMENT DECREE OF THE ARCSP

A. SINGLE TENDERING

Question from Switzerland

9. The single tendering procedure can be applied "... in case where the supplier is only one person". How can this exception from open or limited tendering be explained?

As stated in the answer to the question from the European Community on small and medium-sized enterprises, the cases of a single tendering are prescribed specifically in Article 26 of the Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP. According to Note 3 to Annexes 1 and 2, and Note 2 to Annex 3, Korea may exclude single tendering procurement from applying the GPA. When there is only one supplier of the concerned goods and the purpose of procurement can not be achieved with other suppliers, the procuring entity has to enter into a contract with the concerned supplier through single tendering because there is an absence of competition. This case is in line with Article XV:1(b), which states that one of the cases for limited tendering is "when, ..., in the absence of competition for technical reasons, the products or services can be supplied only by a particular supplier and no reasonable alternative or substitute exists".

Question from Canada

10. In the case of "single tendering" what is meant by act of God?

"Act of God" means natural disasters which cannot be prevented by the power of man.

Question from Canada

11. In response to question above, it was stated that "Act of God means natural disasters which cannot be prevented by the power of man". For this case and for each of the cases listed in Section 2.6 - Single Tendering, of GPA/12/Rev.1, please provide the corresponding condition provided for in Article XV - Limited Tendering, parts (a) through (j) of the Agreement on Government Procurement that provides for each case.

Article 26 of Korea's Presidential Decree of the Act Relating to the Contract to which the State is a Party (ARCSP) specifies in detail the conditions for single tendering, including "Act of God". In accordance with Korea's Annexes to the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (Annex 1, Note 3, Annex 2, Note 3 and Annex 3, Note 2), the Agreement on Government Procurement does not apply to the single tendering procurement in Korea.

Question from Japan

12. In June 1998, the Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP was amended by adding a new provision that stipulates that the central government is empowered to use single tendering procedures in cases where goods are procured from domestic small and medium size enterprises with a "good quality mark" that has been certified by the relevant national authority. When did this amendment take effect? Does the amendment only apply to procurement by the central government or does it also apply to procurement by sub-central entities and national enterprises? Is this amendment consistent with Korea's obligations under the GPA, specifically, Articles III and VI:3 of the GPA or with the derogation clause in Note 3 to Korea's Annex 1 of Appendix I?

The enforcement Decree of the ARCSP was amended in September 1999. The amendment applies to central government procurement and also applies to procurement by sub-central entities and Annex 3 entities. Korea believes that the amendment is consistent with its current GPA obligations. Korea specified a single tendering procedure exception in its Appendix which is applied to small and medium size businesses. The amendment to the ARCSP enforcement decree allows the use of single tendering procedures in cases where goods with a "good quality mark" are supplied by small and medium-sized enterprises in accordance with the Small and Medium Enterprises Product Promotion Act and law relating to the development of environmental technologies.

B. INTERNATIONAL CONTRACT DISPUTE MEDIATION COMMITTEE

Question from the United States

13. In Section I.1.7 of GPA/12/Rev.1, Korea states that: "Those who claim to have been disadvantaged in the implementation of the provisions on the scope of the government procurement contract, eligibility for participation, public notice or the decision on the successful tenderer may make an objection to the central agency concerned." Is a supplier claiming to have been disadvantaged in one of the ways described above permitted to seek immediate redress with the International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee, or must the supplier first make its objection to the specific central agency concerned?

The International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee (ICDMC) is established to mediate disputes which may occur in international tendering. Any supplier who claims to have been a victim of a breach of the GPA and discriminated against by a procuring entity must seek resolution from the entity concerned first. When the supplier is dissatisfied with the response or resolution offered by the procuring entity, the supplier may request a review from the International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee.

Question from the United States

14. Do the procedures of the International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee apply to government entities that are not bound by the requirements of the ARCSP and/or its associated enforcement decrees and regulations? If not, please provide information about the bid protest and challenge system available to such entities to which the International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee procedures do not apply.

The ICDMC is established pursuant to Article XX of the GPA in order to mediate disputes in international tendering covered by the GPA. Therefore, the procedures of the ICDMC apply to the cases involving procuring entities covered by the GPA. In addition, the Construction Dispute Mediation Committee is established by the Ministry of Construction and Transportation in order to deal with disputes between procuring entities (including both government and private entities) and suppliers in the course of fulfilling their construction contracts.

Question from Switzerland

15. If a claim is first addressed to the procurement entity (Point 3.7 of GPA/12/Rev.1) and does not lead to a satisfactory solution for the suppliers claiming a breach of the GPA, can he still address this claim to the Committee?

Please refer to the answers to the above questions from the United States.

III. OTHER GENERAL REGULATIONS RELATED TO GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

A. THE ACT ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT BUSINESS AND THE OFFICE OF SUPPLY (OSROK)

Question from the United States

16. Section 4.1 of GPA/12/Rev.1 relating to the Act on Government Procurement Business states that, "Basically, each government authority is responsible for procuring goods, services and construction services for its own use". It also states that central and local government agencies are "required to purchase their needed goods and works above a given threshold value through OSROK". Please explain how these seemingly contrasting statements can be reconciled.

Korea maintains a centralized supply system for government procurement of goods and services exceeding a given threshold value. For example, any central government contract for construction services valued over W 3 billion must be conducted through the SAROK. The main roles of the SAROK are to publish tendering notices, to decide the award of contract, to enter into a contract by a request from a procuring entity, and to assume relevant responsibilities. Each procuring entity must prepare an annual plan and a budget for its procurement. Each entity is also responsible for matters related to the fulfilment of contracts such as supervision of construction works, inspection of work completion and payment.

Question from the European Community

17. One of the prevalent features of the Korean procurement system is the large amount of procurement made by OSROK on behalf of different public entities. In practice, centralized procurement favours the use of selective or restricted procedures and indeed OSROK requires all potential suppliers to be registered with it before submitting a bid. While this is not in contradiction to the letter of the GPA, it does not facilitate access from GPA countries who should be registered before having the possibility to tender. In practice, this can act as a barrier for foreign suppliers. How is Korea ensuring that Article VIII of the GPA is complied with (with particular reference to subparagraphs (b), (c) and (d))? Would Korea please specify if the financial, commercial and technical capacity of suppliers from GPA countries is judged on the basis of that supplier's global business activity?

In Korea, pursuant to the GPA, the Special Regulation of the Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP for Specific Procurement (hereafter "Special Regulation") prescribes that procuring entities may maintain lists of suppliers in order to conduct procurement efficiently. On the list, suppliers register general information such as address of location, name of representative, business entity registration and ownership of factories or stores. A supplier may apply at different times of the year to be put on a list, by submitting forms issued by agencies in the applicant's country. The information on a list will not be reviewed again in the process of qualifying suppliers for a specific tendering.

Procuring entities, if necessary, may determine qualification for participation in tendering based on a supplier's previous experience in fulfilling contracts similar to the contract concerned, construction capacity, level of technology, and financial statement. It is prescribed in the Special

Regulation that when a supplier who is not on the list wishes to participate in tendering, the procuring entity should begin to review the supplier's qualifications as soon as possible. If it is determined that there is enough time for the supplier to complete the qualifying process by the day preceding the deadline for submitting tenders, the procuring entity must allow the supplier to submit a tender. These provisions are in line with Article VIII of the GPA. The purpose of qualifying suppliers is to enhance the efficiency of the procurement process by reviewing the ability of suppliers to fulfil their previous contracts. Suppliers are judged on the basis of their activities as suppliers in both domestic and foreign areas.

Question from Switzerland

18. Please explain in more detail how procurement is organized in Korea. Are State and Local government entities required to commit the procurement of goods, services and construction works above a certain threshold to OSROK or is it up to them to decide whether they procure themselves or commit the job to OSROK? If procurement is done by OSROK, who is the procuring entity, OSROK or the obligatory or voluntary end-users?

As stated above in the answer to question from the United States, Korea basically maintains a centralized supply system for procurements of goods and construction services. Under the system, procurement exceeding a given threshold value set by central and local government entities (which are obligatory end-users) must be contracted by SAROK (formerly OSROK). That is, for any central government procurement of construction work valued over W 3 billion, or for a local government procurement of construction work valued over W 10 billion where suppliers must be pre-qualified or must submit design drawings for the construction work together with a tender document, as provided in Article 15 of the Enforcement Decree of the Act on Government Procurement Business, or for goods valued over W 50 million, SAROK will publish an invitation to tender, award the contract, and enter into a contract on behalf of the end-users. The obligatory end-users are, however, allowed to procure goods if procurement is urgently necessitated by an act of God, or is for military supplies for national defence, etc. For the responsibilities of SAROK and end-users, please refer to the answer to question 7 from the United States.

B. LOCAL FINANCING ACT

Question from Switzerland

19. Although the provisions of the Local Financing Act and its Presidential Decree regulate specialities for the local government procurement, we understand that the requirements of the GPA for local entities covered by the Agreement are met. Is this understanding correct? How do the specialities mentioned affect the requirements of the GPA?

Korea does not believe that the provisions are incompatible with any requirements of the GPA at this time, as the main contents of ARCSP are quoted by the provisions of the Local Financing Act. We have never implemented nor have intention to implement the provisions concerned in a way that would violate any binding international agreement.

Question from the United States

20. Have copies of the Government-Invested Enterprise Management Law and Administrative Regulations, the Act on Government Procurement Business, the Local Financing Act (and its Enforcement Decree), the Act for the Civil Suit, and the Government Organization Act of the Republic of Korea been submitted to the WTO Secretariat? If so, are they available in an official WTO language?

The ARCSP and the relevant subordinate regulations have already been submitted in English to the WTO Secretariat.

IV. INFORMATION ON PROCUREMENT OPPORTUNITIES

Question from the European Community

21. Korea is running a database system offering information on tendering opportunities. Has this database on-line access? If so, where is it accessible from? Can foreign-based suppliers connect to this database from abroad?

All entities as indicated in the Korean Annexes 1, 2 and 3 are required to publish tendering notices in an official gazette, the Kwan-Bo, but may additionally announce tendering opportunities through information technology. Accordingly, each procuring entity may provide information on international tendering opportunities through on-line services (Hitel, Unitel, Chollian) as well as in the Kwan-Bo. In the case that a procuring entity requests SAROK to enter into a contract, SAROK may provide information on tendering opportunities on its Internet home page (<http://www.sarok.go.kr>). Foreign suppliers can thus access the service from abroad. However, it should be noted that providing information on tendering opportunities is not required for entities covered by the GPA.

Question from the United States

22. The response to the question on information technology in government procurement (GPA/W/24/Add.3) noted that Korea was operating a database system offering information on tendering opportunities. Please provide information regarding the extent to which Annex 3 entities utilise information technology in offering information on tendering opportunities, and whether these entities publish summaries of opportunities in an official WTO language.

Annex 3 entities are required to publish summaries of tendering opportunities in official WTO languages in an official gazette (Kwan-Bo) pursuant to the GPA. However, although publishing tendering opportunities through information technology is not a requirement, the procuring entities may announce international tendering opportunities through local electronic media such as Hitel, Unitel, and Chollian. In addition, Annex 3 entities may request the Supply Administration of the Republic of Korea (SAROK, formerly OSROK) to enter into a contract on their behalf. In that case, the SAROK may announce tendering opportunities on its Internet home page (<http://www.sarok.go.kr>).

Question from the European Community

23. According to Article XVIII of the GPA, purchasers shall inform suppliers of decisions on contract awards (upon request in writing) and shall publish Post-information or Contract Award Notices. Can Korea explain how this has been implemented into its law and how it is done in practice?

As to the openness of information on the award of a contract, the Special Regulation prescribes that procuring entities publish a notice in an official gazette, the Kwan-Bo, no later than 72 days after the award of a contract. It is also prescribed that entities provide information on the award of a contract upon request from suppliers. The provisions are quoted by the Local Financing Act and the Accounting Regulation on Government-Invested Enterprise.

V. TIME-LIMITS

Question from the European Community

24. Which measures have been taken to ensure that the minimum period of 40 days for introducing bids in open procedures is respected in all cases?

Korea enacted the ARCSP in 1995 in line with the GPA. In particular, the Special Regulation, which was enacted by presidential decree in order to closely regulate procedures for international tendering, entered into force on 1 January 1997.

The Special Regulation prescribes principles and procedures pursuant to the GPA. Accordingly, Annex 1 entities of Korean Appendix I are required to observe the minimum period of 40 days for introducing bids in open competition. For sub-central government entities and government-invested enterprises, the provisions of the ARCSP and Special Regulation are quoted by the Local Financing Act and the Accounting Regulation on Government-Invested Enterprises respectively.

VI. INFORMATION ON SPECIFIC EXCEPTIONS

Question from the European Community

25. Note 4 to Annexes 1 and 2 and Note 3 to Annex 3 of Appendix I of the GPA exempts the procurement of satellites pursuant to the Aviation and Space Industry Development Promotion Law for a duration of five years from entry into force of the Agreement. Does Korea have any figures concerning purchases under this exemption? Has Korea foreseen in its legislation that from 1 January 2002 this kind of procurement should be open to competition?

Since 1997, there has been one instance of satellite procurement as shown below. The procurement was open to international competition.

THE KOREASAT III PROJECT

23 August 1996	Public Notice on Tendering *Participants in Tendering: Lockheed Martin (US), Hughes (US), Aerospatiale (France)
5 December 1996	Award of Contract *Successful Tenderer: Lockheed Martin (US)
14 March 1997	Conclusion of Contract Contract Amount: US$10,825 million

With relation to the Korean Government's position on the expiration of the exception clause, a decision has not been made on this matter.

Question from Canada

26. Pursuant to GPA Appendix I, Annex 1, Note 5 for Korea, could Korea please indicate which piece of legislation it is using to implement its commitments regarding Ministry of National Defence purchases? Also, could Korea please provide a summary of this legislation as it pertains to the procurement of defence-related products?

Regarding Note 5 in Annex 1 for Korea, there are no special legislations for procurement of defense-related products. For such procurement, the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (ARCSP) and its Presidential Decree are applied.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Liechtenstein

The following communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of the Principality of Liechtenstein in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996, relating to the procedures for the notification of national implementing legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. Summary of Liechtenstein's Legislation on Public Procurement

Liechtenstein's international obligations in the area of public procurement have been implemented in its national legislation by the following acts:

- Law on Public Procurement: Gesetz über die Vergabe öffentlicher Bau-, Liefer- und Dienstleistungsaufträge (Gesetz über das öffentliche Auftragswesen, ÖAWG), LGBl.¹ 1998 No. 135, LR² 172.051.
- Regulation on Public Procurement: Verordnung über die Vergabe öffentlicher Bau-, Liefer- und Dienstleistungsaufträge (Verordnung über das öffentliche Beschaffungswesen, ÖAWV), LGBl. 1998 No. 189³, LR 172.051.1.

Both law and regulation entered into force on 1 January 1999.

These provisions not only implement the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA)⁴ but also the relevant directives of the European Economic Area (EEA). To a large extent, GPA rules coincide with those of the EEA.

The Law and Regulation cover procurements above and below thresholds. In the GPA context, the procurement rules apply to procurements above the thresholds. The thresholds currently amount to:

Annex 1

Goods	Sw F 248,950
Services	Sw F 248,950
Construction	Sw F 9,575,000

Annex 2

Goods	Sw F 383,000
Services	Sw F 383,000
Construction	Sw F 9,575,000

Annex 3

Goods	Sw F 766,000
Services	Sw F 766,000
Construction	Sw F 9,575,000

The thresholds have to be published according to Article 4 of the Law on Public Procurement:

- Publication of the thresholds: Kundmachung vom 10. Oktober 2000 der Schwellenwerte nach dem Abkommen über den Europäischen Wirtschaftsraum (EWRA) sowie nach dem Übereinkommen über das öffentliche Beschaffungswesen (WTO-Übereinkommen), LGBl. 2000 No. 196⁵, LR 172.051.11.

² Systematic collection of the Liechtenstein legislation.

³ Copy available for consultation in the WTO Secretariat.

⁴ The GPA entered into force for Liechtenstein on 18 September 1997. See also the publication of the Agreement in LGBl. 1998 No. 8, copy available for consultation in the WTO Secretariat.

⁵ Copy available for consultation in the WTO Secretariat.

The Law on Public Procurement (ÖAWG) guarantees non-discriminatory access to public procurement markets in Liechtenstein for Liechtenstein suppliers and suppliers established in a contracting party to the GPA or other countries as far as they grant reciprocity and in accordance with applicable international obligations (i.e. GPA, EEA or special agreements between Liechtenstein and another country). See also the answer to question 6 of the checklist.

The following procedures are foreseen:

- Open procedure: all interested suppliers may submit a tender.
- Restricted procedure: upon public invitation, all interested suppliers may submit an application for participation. Participation is limited to a certain number of selected suppliers (at least five, but not more than twenty) which are invited to submit a tender.
- Negotiated procedure: at least three interested suppliers (if possible) are invited for negotiations on a contract. Effective competition has to be granted among the invited suppliers.

Procurements above the thresholds have to be published and procured in an open or restricted procedure. A negotiated procedure is permissible in particular situations (see the answer to question 10 of the checklist).

The award is given to the economically most advantageous offer, specified by objective criteria which must already be included in the publication or in the tender documentation. To measure the value of an offer, criteria such as delivery dates, quality, price, efficiency, overhead expenses, service to clients or environmental impact can be considered.

The possibility to challenge a procurement is given. A tenderer whose offer has been rejected may claim damages, if the rejection was inconsistent with the regulations.

The Regulation on Public Procurement (ÖAWV) regulates details of the provisions contained in the corresponding law, such as valuation of contracts, procurement procedures (publication, technical specifications, types of procedures time-limits), award of contracts and provisions on information and statistical reporting.

4. Responses to Checklist of Issues

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

Liechtenstein follows the monistic theory with respect to the relation of national and international law. The Agreement was, however, implemented through a Law on Public Procurement, a Regulation on Public Procurement and the Publication of the thresholds.⁶ The national implementing legislation aimed at establishing a single, transparent and user-friendly procurement regime in accordance with all international obligations of Liechtenstein in this area.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

No. The above-mentioned provisions cover state level and sub-central levels, i.e. local entities.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

The national legislation mentioned in the answer to question 1 also applies to Annex 3 entities.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The implementing legislation is the same for state and local levels and covers also Annex 3 entities.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Every contract above the relevant thresholds has to be published in the database Tenders Electronic Daily (TED) according to the EEA Agreement. Besides that, information technology is not much used yet.

⁶ Gesetz über die Vergabe öffentlicher Bau-, Liefer- und Dienstleistungsaufträge (Gesetz über das öffentliche Auftragswesen, ÖAWG), LGBl. (Liechtenstein Law Gazette) 1998 No. 135.

Verordnung über die Vergabe öffentlicher Bau-, Liefer- und Dienstleistungsaufträge (Verordnung über das öffentliche Beschaffungswesen, ÖAWV). LGBl. 1998 No. 189.

Kundmachung vom 10. Oktober 2000 der Schwellenwerte nach dem Abkommen über den Europäischen Wirtschaftsraum (EWRA) sowie nach dem Übereinkommen über das öffentliche Beschaffungswesen (WTO-Übereinkommen), LGBl. 2000 No. 196 (most recent publication).

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

Article 3 of the Law on Public Procurement (ÖAWG):

The Article says that if according to the international law reciprocity is granted, national and foreign suppliers are to be treated equally. Cases in which an international obligation for equal treatment exists without reciprocity shall remain reserved.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

For public procurement above thresholds, tender notices have to be published. According to Article 14 of the Law, such a notice shall contain in particular the following information:

- name and address of the procuring entity;
- subject-matter of the contract;
- address and time-limits for the submission of tenders;
- type of procedure;
- address(es) where documents relating to the contracts may be requested;
- if the contract falls under the WTO GPA Agreement.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Pre-information notices are published in addition to invitation to tender notices. Pre-information notices are not binding, but for information purposes only (Article 14 of the Regulation). In works contracts, contracting entities publish indicative notices containing the essential characteristics of the works contracts they intend to award. In services and supplies contracts, contracting entities shall make known through indicative notices to be published as soon as possible after the beginning of the budgetary year, the intended total procurement during the next 12 months.

According to Article 16 of the Law/Article 17 of the Regulation, different forms for a call for competition are possible in the sectors (water, energy, transport and telecommunication): a notice stating the intention to award a particular contract, a pre-information notice or a notice on the existence of a qualification system. Details with regard to the establishment of a qualification system are regulated in Article 38 of the Regulation.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

In the sectors, contracting entities may establish and operate a system of qualification of suppliers, contractors and service providers (Article 43 of the Law, Article 38 of the Regulation). Suppliers, contractors and service providers must at any time have the possibility to ask for an inclusion in such a list. The system operates on the basis of objective criteria and rules. Updating of the rules is possible. Refusal of qualification or bringing the qualification to an end must be reasoned and applicants or service providers have to be notified. If the list is not limited to a period of three years, the list and conditions to be fulfilled and the methods of verification of those conditions have to be published annually. At present, no entity in the utilities sector has established a qualification system.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

According to Article 22, paragraph 2 of the Law, entities may use the negotiated procedure, but only in particular situations. These situations are specified in Article 23 and especially Article 24, paragraphs 2 and 3 of the Regulation:

With prior publication of a contract notice:

- in case of irregular tenders or tenders which are unacceptable under Liechtenstein law in response to an open or restricted procedure;
- in exceptional cases, when the nature of the works/services or the risks attaching thereto do not permit overall pricing;
- when the works involved are carried out for the purpose of research, experiment and development;
- when the nature of services to be procured is such that contract specifications cannot be established with sufficient precision to permit the award of the contract by using open or restricted procedures.

Without prior publication of a contract notice:

- in the absence of tenders or suitable tenders in response to an open or restricted procedure insofar as the original terms for the contract are not substantially altered;
- when for technical or artistic reasons, or for reasons connected with the protection of exclusive rights, there is only one supplier or contractor;
- when it is strictly necessary for reasons of extreme urgency brought about by unforeseeable events;
- for new works/services consisting of the repetition of similar works/services entrusted to the contractor/service provider to which the same contracting authorities awarded an earlier contract, under certain conditions;
- for additional works/services (up to a limit of 50 per cent of the amount of the main contract) becoming necessary for the carrying out of the work/for the performance of the service through unforeseen circumstances, if the non-separation is justified by technical or economic reasons;
- when the products involved are manufactured for the purpose of research, experiment, study and development;
- for additional deliveries by the original supplier, justified by the risk of technical incompatibility of disproportionate technical difficulties;

- when the contract follows a design contest and must be awarded to the successful candidate or one of the successful candidates.

In the sectors, entities have free choice between open, restricted and negotiated procedures (see Article 22, paragraph 4 of the Law).

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The Liechtenstein legislation has established time-limits as set out in the EEA and GPA Agreements (see Articles 30 et seq. of the Regulation):

In open procedures, the time-limit for receipt of tenders shall not be less than 52 days from the date of dispatch of the notice. This time-limit may be reduced to 36 days if a pre-information notice according to Article 14 of the Regulation has been published (only for works and services).

In restricted procedures and negotiated procedures, the time-limit for receipt of requests to participate shall not be less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice. The time-limit for receipt of tenders may not be less than 40 days from the date of dispatch of the written invitation. This time-limit may be reduced to 26 days if a pre-information notice (indicative notice to make known the contracts they intend to award, according to Article 14 of the Regulation) has been published. In case of justified urgency, those time-limits may be reduced to not less than 15 days for the receipt of request, and not less than 10 days for the receipt of tenders.

In the sectors, the time-limits for open procedures are the same as indicated above. In restricted and negotiated procedures, the time-limit for receipt of requests to participate shall be, as a general rule, not less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice, but in no case less than 22 days. The time-limit for receipt of tenders may be fixed by mutual agreement between the contracting entity and the selected candidates. If such an agreement is not reached, the time-limit shall be, as a general rule, 22 days, but under no circumstances less than 10 days from the date of the invitation to tender.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The legislation does not exclude that tenders may be submitted in another language other than German. It is up to the entities to define which other languages are accepted (see Article 15, paragraph 2 lit. i of the Law). In practice, such other languages might be English or French.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Any supplier who participates in a particular public procurement procedure may complain about alleged breaches of the rules.

After the award of the contract, the entity has to inform the winning tenderer and the unsuccessful tenderers within 14 days (Article 41 of the Regulation) by an award note (Vergabevermerk, see Article 46 of the Law). This note has to contain the following information:

- the name of the contracting entity;

- the award of the contract;
- the value of the winning award;
- the type of procedure;
- a short reasoning for the award, if necessary;
- the procedure for the service of an award order (Vergabeverfügung).

Unsuccessful tenderers may request an award order. Such a request has to be made not later than 10 days after the service of the award note (Article 47 of the Law).

According to Article 53 of the Law, complaints against decisions or orders of contracting entities may be lodged with the Government within 14 days from the service. If the awarding entity is the Government, the complaint has to be lodged with the Administrative Tribunal (Verwaltungsbeschwerdeinstanz).

Only negative damages (damnum emergens) may be claimed.

Article 55 of the Law sets out the necessary contents of the petition of appeal, such as the name of the contracting entity, the procedure in question and the decision which is the subject of appeal, a statement of the facts of the case including the interest of the appellant in the conclusion of the contract, information on the alleged incurred or imminent damage and the reasons for the alleged unlawfulness.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

According to Article 53 of the Law it is 14 days.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

If the awarding entity is not the Government itself, the first appellate instance is the Government.

A decision by the Government is subject to appeal before the Administrative Tribunal (Verwaltungsbeschwerdeinstanz). The Administrative Tribunal is a court which consists of a chairperson, a vice-chairperson and four appeal judges and their substitutes elected by the Parliament. The chairperson is to be appointed by the Prince on the proposal of the Parliament.

- How are its members selected?

See above.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

Decisions of the Government are subject to appeal before the Administrative Tribunal. Its decisions are final. Complaints against alleged breaches of rights accorded by the constitution are to be lodged with the State Tribunal (Staatsgerichtshof).

- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

Not applicable.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

It is the Law and Regulation on Public Procurement, interpreted in the light of applicable international law, and the general procedural provisions contained in the Administrative Procedure Act (Gesetz über die allgemeine Landesverwaltungspflege (die Verwaltungsbehörden und ihre Hilfsorgane, das Verfahren in Verwaltungssachen, das Verwaltungszwangs- und Verwaltungsstrafverfahren), LVG, LGBl. 1922 No. 24, LR 172.020).

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

According to Articles 58 and 59 of the Law, a supplier who has the right to appeal may apply for provisional measures which include the possibility to ask for a suspension of the procurement process. An interim injunction may lead to the suspension of the procurement process if the interest of the appellant outweighs the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The Government or the Administrative Tribunal may nullify decisions or orders of contracting entities which are found to be contrary to the applicable legislation (see Article 60 of the Law). They can also instruct the concerned entity to eliminate certain discriminatory conditions.

Compensation for loss and damages suffered may be claimed (Article 61 of the Law). Only expenses related to the procurement and challenge procedures are covered.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

Information on time-periods for the stages of the challenge process are difficult to obtain. There are no fixed time-limits for the different stages of the process.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

In proceedings before the Government, the costs depend on the complexity of the case according to which the fee may be fixed between Sw F 150 and 300.

In proceedings before the Administrative Tribunal, the costs depend on the value in dispute (court fees and lawyer's tariff).

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Liechtenstein

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of Liechtenstein, the responses given and the comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of 3 May 2001 and 2 October 2001.¹ Liechtenstein's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in document GPA/46 dated 19 December 2000.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM THE UNITED STATES

I. IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Question from the United States

In the summary of Liechtenstein's legislation on public procurement, GPA/46 states that the Law on Public Procurement and the Regulation on Public Procurement implement both the GPA and the relevant directives of the European Economic Area (EEA). Liechtenstein states that: "To a large extent, GPA rules coincide with those of the EEA."

In areas where GPA and EEA rules coincide, does Liechtenstein consider that those rules are the same?

No, but in many points the guidelines are identical.

If they are not the same, are Liechtenstein's procurement Law and Regulation designed to conform with EEA rules or GPA rules?

Liechtenstein's procurement Law and Regulation conform with both rules (EEA and GPA). If the rules are different, in the national law and regulations the stricter guidelines are applied.

¹ The minutes of these meetings have been circulated in documents GPA/M/15 and M/16.

Please identify the areas in which Liechtenstein considers that GPA and EEA rules do not coincide. In these areas, how does Liechtenstein's procurement Law and Regulation implement GPA rules?

GPA and EEA rules do not coincide for example in the areas of the thresholds value, the time-limits or the rules for notices/information of planned procurement. In the areas where EEA and GPA guidelines are not identical, the stricter guidelines have been transposed into the national law and regulation.

II. SCOPE AND COVERAGE

Question from the United States

Does the response to question 9 relate only to the utilities sectors specifically identified in the response to question 8 (i.e., water, energy, transport and telecommunication)?

Yes, the response to question 9 relates only to the utilities sectors (Article 43 of the Law, Article 38 of the Regulation).

III. BID CHALLENGE PROCEDURES

Question from the United States

In Liechtenstein's response to question 13, please explain the purpose and effect of an "award order".

There is no possibility to complain directly against an award note. The award note contains however the indication for the delivery of an award order. A complainant can appeal against this award order, which is a decision.

Question from the United States

Liechtenstein's response to question 14(iv) states that suppliers who have the right to appeal "may apply for provisional measures which include the possibility to ask for a suspension of the procurement process. An interim injunction may lead to the suspension of the procurement process if the interest of the appellant outweighs the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay". Do the Law, Regulation or any relevant administrative or judicial decisions provide guidance on how to assess the interest of the appellant and the circumstances in which that interest may be outweighed by public interest in concluding a procurement without delay?

So far no relevant administrative or judicial decisions provide guidance on how to assess the interests. The interests of the appellant can outweigh the public interests, if the procurement allows for example a temporary postponement. However, the public interest would be given priority if the basic needs of a public utility company, for example with regard to electricity or water supply, would be endangered.

Committee on Government Procurement

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Norway

The attached communication has been received from Norway in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. SUMMARY OF THE NORWEGIAN LEGISLATION ON PUBLIC PROCUREMENT¹

Norway's international obligations in the area of public procurement have been transposed into national legislation through one law and four regulations, hereinafter •the regulations•, transposing both the European Economic Area (EEA) Directives and the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA). These are:

- Lov om offentlige anskaffelser mv• of 27 November 1992 (The Public Procurement Act)
- Forskrift om tildeling av kontrakter om offentlige varekjøp• of 4 December 1992 (The public supplies Regulation, SPR)
- Forskrift om tildeling av kontrakter om offentlige tjenestekjøp• of 1 July 1994 (The public services Regulation, SR)
- Forskrift om tildeling av offentlige bygge- og anleggskontrakter• of 4 December 1994 (The public works Regulation, WR)
- Forskrift om innkjøpsregler for oppdragsgivere innen vann- og energiforsyning, transport og telekommunikasjon• of 16 December 1994 (The Regulation of procurement procedures of entities operating in water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors, UR).

The Regulations on supplies, services and works contracts cover entities in the •Public Sector•. The Regulation on procurement procedures of entities operating in the water-, energy-, transport- and telecommunications sectors is called •the Utilities Sector• Regulation.

Since the GPA rules on public procurement to a large extent coincide with the EEA rules, only minor amendments were made in the law and the regulations in 1996 to bring the Norwegian legislation in accordance with the GPA.

THE BASIC PRINCIPLES

1. The detailed rules of the regulations apply to procurements with an expected total contract value above certain threshold values.

The threshold values after the entry into force of the GPA are:

- NOK 1,100,000 ex VAT for central government entities• supplies and service procurements. This threshold value is brought about by the GPA;

¹The following publications (in Norwegian) are available for consultation in the Intellectual Property and Investment Division (office 3057): the Public Procurement Act (Lov om offentlige anskaffelser m.v. - Ajourført med endringer, senest ved lov av 15. mars 1996 nr. 15); the Public Supplies Regulation (Forskrift om tildeling av kontrakter om offentlige varekjøp -Fastsatt ved kgl.res. av 4. desember 1992 med endringer, sist ved kgl res av 13. september 1996); the Public Services Regulation (Forskrift om tildeling av kontrakter om offentlige tjenestekjøp - Fastsatt ved kgl.res. av 1. juli 1994 med endringer, sist ved kgl res av 13. september 1996); the Public Works Regulation (Forskrift om tildeling av offentlige bygge- og anleggskontrakter -Fastsatt ved kgl.res. 4. desember 1992 med endringer, sist ved kgl res av 13. september 1996); and the Regulation of Procurement Procedures of Entities Operating in the Water, Energy, Transport and Telecommunications Sectors (Forskrift om innkjøpsregler for oppdragsgivere innen vann- og energiforsyning, transport og telekommunikasjon (forsyningssektorene) -Fastsatt ved kgl.res. av 16. desember 1994 med endringer, sist ved kgl res av 13. september 1996)

- NOK 1,650,000 ex VAT for other Public sector entities• supplies and service contracts;
- NOK 41,500,000 ex VAT for all covered entities• works projects;
- NOK 3,300,000 ex VAT for utilities entities• supplies and service contracts other than in the telecommunications sector;
- NOK 4,950,000 ex VAT for supplies and service contracts awarded by telecom utilities.

There are detailed rules concerning the calculation of estimated contract values regarding these thresholds. These have been explained in document GPA/W/12/Add.6.

2. No discrimination on the grounds of nationality of suppliers and service providers from GPA Parties is allowed when conducting public procurement.

In addition, there is a principle of equal treatment of suppliers, even where only national suppliers and service providers are involved in the competition for a specific contract.

3. International publicity is warranted by publicizing Contract Notices, Contract Award Notices and Periodic Indicative Notices etc. in the Official Journal of the EC (OJEC) and in the database Tenders Electronic Daily (TED).

4. International competition is assured by tender procedures; negotiated procedures are only allowed in exceptional situations. There are more flexible rules regarding notices and the use of negotiated procedures in the Utilities sector.

5. There is obligatory use of objective, non-discriminatory criteria in both the

- selection of candidates and for
- the award of contracts.

The selection criteria to be used and the documentation that can be asked for are regulated in detail by the Regulations.

The award criteria must in principle be of direct economic relevance to the procuring entity. Criteria such as local employment conditions, national content and local, national tax revenue or general environmental aspects may not be considered. Aesthetic and functional aspects may however be duly taken into account.

6. Any firm that participates in a public procurement procedure may bring an action against the contracting entity before the local Court of Justice concerning alleged breaches of the rules. In addition there is a challenge procedure available for suppliers and service providers through the EFTA Surveillance Authority.

APPLICABILITY OF THE REGULATIONS

Several conditions have to be fulfilled if a procurement is to be covered by the regulations:

1. The procurer must be a (central, regional, local) government authority or a •body governed by public law• in the Public sector, or, only in the Utilities sector, a public undertaking or a private undertaking enjoying special rights.

2. In the Utilities sector, it is also necessary to establish that the procurement is connected to one or more of the covered activities in the sectors of

- provision of water, electricity, gas or heat,
 - the exploration and exploitation of oil, gas and coal fields,
 - the provision of air, land and sea transport terminal facilities,
 - the provision of public transport networks or
 - the provision of public telecommunication services.
3. The procurement must be a commercial contract, not e.g. •in-house•.
 4. In the Public sector, it has to be decided which of the three regulations applies.
 5. Exemptions have to be checked, such as
 - many research and development service contracts;
 - contracts awarded by international organizations such as the UN or in connection with common bilateral projects etc.;
 - when a service or works procurement consists of several lots, individual lots below a value ECU 80,000/1 mill. respectively accounting for up to 20% of the total project cost can be exempted.

In the Utilities sector, there are several additional exemption rules.

PROCUREMENT PROCEDURES TO BE USED

1. Tender procedures

In the Public sector, the principle is that tender procedures with a prior Tender Notice have to be used.

The contracting authority can choose freely between open and selective tender procedures.

In open tender procedures, which consist of one round, any undertaking established in a country party to the EEA Agreement or the GPA can participate. The qualitative selection of candidates and the selection of the winning tenderer (two separate evaluations) are done one directly after the other.

In selective tender procedures, which consist of a •selection round• and a separate •tender round•, any firm can request to be invited to tender, but only the candidates selected by the contracting authority on the basis of their general qualification for the type of contract to be performed, are sent the tender documents and asked to bid.

2. Negotiated procedure

The negotiated procedure, also consisting of a selection round and an •offer/ negotiation round•. Here, the contracting authority can negotiate freely with the qualified suppliers on the basis of their offers. It can only be used in exceptional cases in the Public sector.

In certain situations, the contracting authority can use the negotiated procedure with prior notice, especially when procuring services and works.

In exceptional situations defined narrowly by the regulations the negotiated procedure without prior notice can be made use of, for instance in emergency situations or when supplies are procured only for research and development purposes.

However, the other rules of the regulations do still apply in such cases, e.g. the obligation to publish a contract award notice, and the principle of equal treatment.

3. The Utilities sector

In the Utilities sector, both tender procedures and the negotiated procedure with a prior call for competition can always be used. Furthermore, the list of exceptional situations which allow the use of the negotiated procedure without prior call for competition is much longer, covering e.g. supplies procured at a commodity exchange.

In addition, procuring entities can operate qualification systems which only are made known in one single annual notice. A procurement falling into a category the entity operates a qualification system for will not be individually announced. Selective tender procedures or negotiated procedures are used within the qualification systems.

4. Design contests

When procuring services, procuring entities in the Public and Utilities sector can organize design contests (with prior notices) and can negotiate with the winner/winners of the design contest in order to arrive at a final agreement.

5. Minimum time limits

The regulations state certain minimum time limits to be respected by the procuring entities. They can be reduced in cases of justified haste or when the entity has published a so-called Periodic Indicative Notice about its procurement plans in the following year. The time limits are calculated from the day the notice is sent by the procuring entity. It takes up to 12 days to publish them in the Official Journal.

Tenders are only to be accepted when they arrive at the procuring entities' office within the set deadline. This means that the amount of time available to tenderers is less ample than it might seem to be.

The time limits must not be used in order to discriminate against foreign suppliers. This means that it can be necessary to give tenderers more time when the object of the contract is very complicated or very large.

RULES ON THE USE OF TECHNICAL SPECIFICATIONS

It is not compulsory to use technical specifications.

If specifications are used, the principle is that European technical specifications or their national identical copies have to be used. There are, however, a number of exceptions.

Individual brand names can only be used when there is absolutely no other method of describing the required commodities, and must be followed by the words 'or equivalent'.

The GPA has introduced an explicit rule on the use of professional advice in the preparation of technical specifications for a specific procurement. Such advice may not be accepted from firms which may have a commercial interest in the procurement itself if this would preclude competition.

RULES ON TRANSPARENCY - JUSTIFICATION

Procuring entities have to prepare and keep reports covering certain information for every procurement, which the EFTA Surveillance Authority can ask for in the course of monitoring or infraction procedures.

The procuring entity is obliged to justify its award decision vis-à-vis any unsuccessful tenderer who so demands in writing, within 15 days. It must give reasons both for why the unsuccessful tenderer was not chosen, and as to the relevant advantages of the winning tender, but not disclose any public or commercial secrets.

PROTECTION OF COMMERCIAL SECRETS

Any tenderer has the right vis-à-vis the procuring entity that commercial secrets, contained in the information he gives in the course of a tender procedure, be kept secret from other competitors. The interests of transparency and protection of commercial secrets have to be weighed against each other by the procuring entity on an individual basis in each case.

REVIEW PROCEDURES AND SANCTIONS

Any firm that participates in public procurement procedures can complain about alleged breaches of the rules. The supplier is first of all encouraged to take up the matter with the entity concerned directly. If this does not give any results, the formal procedure is to bring an action against the contracting entity before the competent national Court of Justice.

In the Public sector, the review procedures open for three types of sanctions if the supplier is established in an EEA/GPA country:

- Rapid interim measures (court injunctions) temporarily suspending procurement procedures during the challenge procedure.

However, the national review bodies can weigh the interest of the complainant in securing the contract against the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay, and deny injunctions where the public interest outweighs the supplier's interest.

After a contract has been awarded, the national remedies procedures do not open for injunctions.

- The setting aside/nullification of acts and decisions taken by the procuring entity in breach of the regulations. This type of sanction does not allow the re-opening of procurement procedures after the contract has been awarded.
- The award of damages to the offended supplier or suppliers. The damages will not necessarily be limited to •negative interest• (the costs and losses incurred by participating in the award procedure). It is also possible to demand damages for the lost profit, or at least a part of it (positive interest).

In the Utilities sector, the same applies with the following special elements:

- Instead of allowing for rapid interim measures that stop an ongoing procurement procedure, Norway has chosen to open for imposing on the procuring entity a conditional fine •high enough to dissuade• the entity from committing or continuing the act which is claimed to be in breach of the rules.

•In order for damages to be adjudged, the complaining supplier only has to prove that he •would have had a real chance• of being awarded the contract, had the discrimination not occurred. No greater burden of proof must be laid on the complainant. In the Utilities sector, the Norwegian Act on Public Procurement only allows for damages for bid costs (negative interest) to be awarded to offended undertakings.

4. ANSWERS TO CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. General elements

1) Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The Agreement has been transposed into national law. It does not apply directly.

2) In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

No.

3) In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Annex 3 entities apply the legislation laid down by the Government.

4) Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

There are no differences.

5) To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Every contract above the relevant thresholds in the Regulations has to be published in the database Tenders Electronic Daily (TED) according to the EEA Agreement. Otherwise, information technology is not much used in government procurement. This will however increase in the future due to several projects in the field of information technology such as the SIMAP, PROPLAN, EDIRAM and DOFFIN projects. The latter projects have been described in the documents GPA/IC/W/7/Add.6/Suppl.1 and GPA/W/24/Add.1.

II. Specific elements

6) Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

• 5A in each of the Regulations on the Public sector and • 13 nr 1 in the Utilities Regulation.

7) Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

According to the Regulations the tender notice has to follow certain models. The tender notice shall give details of the project, say where and when the tenders shall be delivered and call for tenderers or suppliers who wish to be considered to make tenders (SPR • 19, 20, SR • 19, 20, WR • 21, 22, UR • 26, 27).²

²SPR • The Supplies Regulation, SR • The Service Regulation, WR • The Works Regulation, UR • The Utility Regulation

8)Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

The Norwegian legislation does not provide for this opportunity at sub-central level, just in the Utilities sector (• 18 No 1c in the Utilities Regulation).

9)In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

Only in the Utilities sector it is allowed to use a permanent list of suppliers, UR • 34. In the Public sector the suppliers have to be selected on a contract-to-contract basis.

10)Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

All categories of entities may use the negotiated procedure under certain conditions. These are:

- (a)-In the case of irregular tenders in response to an open or restricted tender procedure or in the case of tenders which are unacceptable under national provisions in so far that the original terms for the contract are not substantially altered (SPR • 10 No 2, SR • 10 No 2a, WR • 10 No 2a)
- when the nature of the works/services or the risks attaching thereto do not permit overall pricing (only work and services, SR • 10 No 2b, WR • 10 No 2c)
- when the art of the service makes it difficult to make the necessary specifications for an open or a restricted procedure (only services, SR • 10 No 2c)
- when the works are only for research and development purposes (only work, WR • 10 No 2b)
- instead of a tender procedure, UR • 17 No 1.

In these cases a tender notice shall be published.

(b)Negotiated procedure without a prior tender notice can be used in the following cases:

- In the absence of tenders or appropriate tenders (SPR • 10 No 3a, SR • 10 No 3a, WR • 10 No 3a, UR • 17 No 2a)
- when for technical or artistic reasons, or for reasons connected with protections of exclusive rights there is only one supplier (SPR • 10 No 3c, SR • 10 No 3c, WR • 10 No 3b, UR • 17 No 2c)
- when it is strictly necessary and for reasons of extreme urgency brought up by reasons unforeseen for the procurer, the time limits for open, restricted or negotiated procedure cannot be kept (SPR • 10 No 3d, SR • 10 No 3d, WR • 10 No 3c, UR • 17 No 2d)

- when the products involved are manufactured purely for the purpose of research, experiment, study or development (only goods, SPR • 10 No 3b, UR • 17 No 2b)
- for additional deliveries by the original supplier under certain conditions (only goods, SPR • 10 No 3e, UR • 17 No 2e)
- when the service contract concerned is part of the follow-up of a design contest under certain conditions (only services, SR • 10 No 3c, UR • 17 No 2l)
- for additional works/services not included in the project initially considered or in the contract first concluded under certain conditions (only works and services, SR • 10 No 3e, WR • 10 No 3d, UR • 17 No 2f)
- for new work consisting of a repetition of similar works entrusted to the undertaking to which the same procurer awarded a similar contract under certain conditions (only works and services, SR • 10 No 3f, WR • 10 No 3e, UR • 17 No 2g)
- for supplies quoted and purchased on a commodity market (only the Utility sector, UR • 17 No 2h)
- for contracts to be awarded on the basis of a framework agreement under certain conditions (only the Utility sector, UR • 17 No 2j)
- for bargain purchases under certain conditions (only the Utility sector, UR • 17 No 2j)
- for purchases of goods under particularly advantageous conditions under certain conditions (only the Utility sector, UR • 17 No 2k).

11) Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be not less than X days. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The Norwegian legislation has established time limits as set out in the EEA and GPA Agreements. These include 12 days for sending the notices and publishing them through the publication Office in Luxembourg. The time limits hence are:

- (a) In open procedures the time limit for receipt of tenders shall not be less than 52 days from the date of dispatch of the notice (SPR • 15 No 1, SR • 16 No 1, WR • 16 No 1, UR • 24 No 1).
- (b) The time limit in open procedures may be reduced to 36 days where the procurer has published an indicative notice making known the contracts it intends to award (only work and services, SR • 16 No 1, WR • 16 No 1, UR • 24 No 1).
- (c) In restricted procedures and negotiated procedures the time limit for receipt of requests to participate shall be not less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice (SPR • 17 No 1, SR • 17 No 1, WR • 17 No 1).

In the Utility sector the time limit shall as a general rule not be less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice, but under no circumstances less than 22 days or 15 days under certain conditions (UR • 24 No 2).

- (d) The time limit in restricted procedures and negotiated procedure may be reduced to 26 days where the procurers have published an indicative notice making known the contracts they intend to award (only work and services, SR • 17 No 4, WR • 17 No 3)

12) To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The entities are allowed to permit tenders to be submitted in any languages, including the official languages of WTO (SPR • 33, SR • 42, WR • 39, UR • 43).

Among the large Norwegian public procurers about 75% permit tenders to be submitted in other languages than Norwegian. Most common is to permit tenders to be submitted in Swedish, Danish and English.

III. Challenge procedures - Article XX

13) Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Any firm that participates in public procurement procedures may complain about alleged breaches of the rules. The supplier is first of all encouraged to take up the matter with the entity concerned directly. If this does not give any results, the formal procedure is to bring an action against the contracting entity before the competent national Court of Justice (the county court). All of the normal national legislation on civil court procedures applies.

In the Public sector, the review procedures open for three types of sanctions (PPA • 3, 4 and 5³):

-Rapid interim measures (court injunctions) temporarily suspending procurement procedures during the challenge procedure.

However, the national review bodies can weigh the interest of the complainant in securing the contract against the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay, and deny injunctions where the public interest outweighs the suppliers' interest.

After a contract has been awarded, the national remedies procedures do not open for injunctions.

-Nullification of acts and decisions taken by the procuring entity in breach of the regulations. This type of sanction does not allow re-opening of procurement procedures after the contract has been awarded.

-Award of damages to the offended supplier or suppliers. The damages will not necessarily be limited to •negative interest• (the costs and losses incurred by participating in the award procedure). It is also possible to demand the positive interest or at least a part of it in damages (lost profit).

In the Utilities sector, the same applies with the following special elements:

-Instead of rapid interim measures that stop an ongoing procurement procedure, the procuring entity may get a conditional fine high enough to dissuade the entity from committing or continuing the act which is claimed to be in breach of the rules.

³PPA • the Public Procurement Act

-In order for damages to be adjudged, the complaining supplier has to prove that he would have had a real chance of being awarded the contract, had the discrimination not occurred.

14) To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is •not less than 10 days•. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

There are no special time limits in the area of public procurement.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a •court• or an •impartial and independent review body•? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

-If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

A complaint about formal faults in a tendering procedure may be brought before a national Court of Justice (PPA • 3).

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Public Procurement Act, the Law Courts Act and the Civil Dispute Act.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

-Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The supplier can ask for rapid interim measures (court injunctions) temporarily suspending the procurement procedure if the interests of the complainant outweigh the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay before the conclusion of the contract, PPA • 4 (not the Utility sector).

Before the conclusion of the contract, the court may also annul decisions taken during the procurement process, PPA • 3 (not the Utility sector).

In the Utilities sector the Court may instead fine the procuring entity with a conditional fine high enough to dissuade the entity from committing or continuing the act which is claimed to be a breach of the rules (PPA • 4).

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

No such system is established, but the court may award damages to the offended supplier if there have been infringements of the Act/Regulations.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The time periods for the stages of the challenge process will depend on the different cases, but a court injunction is possible to get almost immediately (1-2 days).

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The costs to conduct a challenge procedure vary. The legal fee is NOK 2,970 (the Legal Fee Act • 8), but in addition to that come the costs of getting legal counsel.

It is possible to get legal fee and legal aid free of charge, but only under special conditions. In most cases the complainant must cover the expenses to conduct a challenge procedure.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

NORWAY

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of Norway, the responses given and the comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of 8 March and 29 September 2000.¹ Norway's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in documents GPA/10, dated 10 January 1997.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES

I. IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Question from Canada

In Norway's Notification of National Implementing Legislation - GPA/10, we have been unable to locate any reference to the implementation of Norway's Notes 10, 11 and 12 to Norway's General Notes in Appendix I of the GPA. What procedures are being used by Norway to implement these notes? Please provide data on the number and value of procurements that have been excluded from the provisions of the Agreement as a result of these notes since the inception of the Agreement.

Notes 10, 11 and 12 have been implemented through various general provisions found in legislation in force prior to the enactment of the Act of 27 November 1992 no. 116 on Government Procurement.

More specifically, Note 10 must be read in the context of Section 11 of the Royal Decree of 17 May 1972, as last amended by the Royal Decree of 7 October 1988 relating to "Instructions regarding security". Its Section 11 restricts access to certain classified documents to persons who are duly authorized for such access.

Note 11 is implemented through Section 3 of the Act of 27 November 1992 no. 116 on Government Procurement, which empowers the King in Council of State (i.e. the Norwegian cabinet) to make decisions as mentioned in Note 11.

Note 12 is implemented through the Act of 17 July 1925 relating to Spitzbergen. From Section 2, second paragraph read in conjunction with the first paragraph, it follows directly that statutory provisions of an administrative nature do not apply to Svalbard. Moreover, in paragraph 10.3.5 of the Proposition to the Storting no. 65 (1993-94) on the Ratification of the

¹ The minutes of these meetings have been circulated in documents GPA/M/13 and 14.

Agreement establishing the World Trade Organization, it is specifically stated that the provisions of the Act of 27 November 1992 no. 116 on Government Procurement shall not apply to Svalbard.

We have not been able to quantify the value or the number of procurement cases exempted under Notes 10 and 12. No exemptions have been made under Note 11.

II. NON-DISCRIMINATION

Question from the United States

In the section Summary of the Norwegian Legislation on Public Procurement from Norway's Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/10), it is stated that the Regulation of Procurement Procedures of Entities Operating in the Water, Energy, Transport and Telecommunications Sectors (the "Utilities Sector Regulation") has been "transposed into national legislation".² However, Article 36:2 and Article 36:3 of the Utilities Sector Regulation call for discrimination against countries other than the Contracting Parties to the EEA Agreement (as amended by Annex XVI of the EEA Agreement).

To what extent does Norway apply Article 36 of the Utilities Sector Regulation in procurements in the Water, Energy, Transport and Telecommunications sectors? To what extent does paragraph "n" of the Sectoral Adaptations of the Utilities Sector Regulation in Annex XVI of the EEA Agreement, which indicates that "the operation of paragraph (3) [of Article 36] is without prejudice to the existing degree of liberalization towards third countries" and that "[t]he application of this regime will be jointly reviewed during 1996", effect Norway's application of Article 36 of the Utilities Sector Regulation?

Article 36 allows discrimination against third countries. However, it is explicitly stated in the Norwegian transposition to the Agreement, that discrimination can only take place as long as this does not violate other international agreements. When the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement applies, suppliers and service providers from Parties to the Agreement on Government Procurement cannot be discriminated against.

III. PROCUREMENT PROCEDURES

Question from the United States

Section 5 of Procurement Procedures to be Used from Norway's Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/10) states that time-limits are calculated from the day the notice is sent by the procuring entity and that it takes up to 12 days to publish them in the Official Journal. Please explain if the time-limit for the submission of bids for GPA covered contracts is calculated from the date the notice is sent by the procuring entity, or the date of publication in the Official Journal.

In national legislation, time-limits are calculated from the day the notice is sent by the procuring entity. The time-limit in the national legislation is 12 days longer than in the Agreement on Government Procurement, i.e. the rules concerning time-limits in the national legislation are in conformity with the Agreement on Government Procurement.

² In addition, the Utilities Regulation was cited under the "Answers to the Checklist of Issues" as the basis for non-discrimination commitments.

IV. TECHNICAL SPECIFICATIONS

Question from Canada

Under the heading "Rules on The Use of Technical Specifications", it is stated that "It is not compulsory to use technical specifications". If no technical specifications are used, how is the nature of the requirement made known to potential suppliers?

Buyers are allowed either to specify according to technical standards or according to function. If the buyers specify according to function, the bidders are allowed to offer different and possibly innovative technical solutions, which in many cases may lead to the most efficient solution.

V. BID CHALLENGE PROCEDURES

Question from the United States

The description of the three types of sanctions available in the Review Procedures and Sanctions section of the Answers to the Checklist of Issues of Norway's Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/10), appears to indicate that remedies are not available after the contract has been awarded. Please describe what possible remedies, if any, are available to suppliers protesting alleged breaches of the rules following the award of a contract.

If the rules following a procurement process have been violated, a supplier can complain and get economic compensation for the damages incurred by the violation. Following the award of the contract general Norwegian contract law applies, including the principle of recovery of losses.

Question from the United States

Within the Answers to the Checklist of Issues, Challenge Procedures, of Norway's Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/10), it is stated that there are no special time-limits to launch a complaint in domestic legislation in the area of public procurement. Please explain if this means that a complaint can be launched at any time.

Procurement cases are handled by the civil court system and rules of civil procedures apply. The general rule of expiration of claims is three years. This also applies to procurement complaints, i.e. remedies are available also after a contract has been awarded.

Question from Canada

In Section 4(I)(14)(i), which refers to the time-limit to launch a complaint, it is stated that "There are no special time-limits in the area of public procurement". Please elaborate on this statement. If there are no time-limits, how are bid challenges determined to be "timely"?

Complaints in procurement cases are handled by civil courts, where the general rules of civil procedure apply. There are no special statutes of limitations in procurement cases. The general statute of limitations, which is normally three years, therefore also applies to procurement complaints. The exact timing of a bid challenge may, however, influence remedies available.

Question from Canada

Please provide detail on how members are selected to the national Court of Justice and how procurement complaints are heard by the Court of Justice. In the event that a party is not satisfied with the decision regarding a procurement complaint that has been made by the Court of Justice, what is the route of appeal?

Procurement cases are handled by the civil court system under the general rules of civil procedure, administered by independent judges appointed by the King in Council of State. A party that is not satisfied with a court decision, may appeal to a higher court, and again, if the case is of sufficient legal or economic interest, to the Supreme Court.

Question from Canada

In Section 4(I)(14)(ii) it is stated that "A complaint about formal faults in a tendering procedure may be brought before a national Court of Justice". Please elaborate on what is considered to be a "formal" fault. What is the procedure for dealing with less formal faults or perceived faults in a tendering procedure?

Any alleged non-compliance with any rules on public procurement may serve as a basis for a complaint. There is no legal distinction between formal and less formal faults, and it will be up to the court to decide on remedies.

Question from Canada

With regard to Section 4(I)(14)(vii), is it necessary for a complainant to be represented by legal counsel in order to conduct a challenge procedure?

It is not necessary for a complainant to be represented by legal counsel in order to conduct a challenge procedure, as a party is free to represent oneself, except before the Supreme Court. However, in practice, most complainants will choose to be represented by legal counsel.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Singapore

The following communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of the Republic of Singapore in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996, relating to the procedures for the notification of national implementing legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. Summary of Legislation

A. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ENTITIES

A gazette dated 17 October 1997 gave notification that the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement came into force on 20 October 1997. Subsequently, the President of the Republic of Singapore gave assent to the Government Procurement Act 1997.

The Act sets out the Government Procurement Adjudication Tribunal for the purposes of hearing and determining challenges related to government procurement. The Tribunal consists of a Commissioner and a Deputy Commissioner, supported by a Registrar. The Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner and Registrar are appointed by the Minister for Finance.

The Tribunal is empowered to hear challenge proceedings from suppliers. The Act provides for lodgement of a Notice of Challenge, hearing of the challenge and the issue of a suspension order. The Tribunal shall issue its determination on a challenge within 45 days from the date of lodgement of the Notice of Challenge, unless there are exceptional circumstances justifying an extension of time.

The Act empowers the Tribunal to call witnesses, admit evidence and conduct proceedings. The Act also provides for the submission of information and the retention of documents.

B. SUB-CENTRAL ENTITIES

Singapore is a city-state and does not have any sub-central entities.

C. LEGISLATION ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

A copy of the Act is attached.

2. Contact Point

Requests and clarifications from another Party concerning Singapore's legislation shall be addressed to:

3. Responses to Checklist of Issues

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

It has been transposed into national law; at the same time it also applies directly. In other words, the procedures for a bid challenge are specifically spelt out in legislation, whilst a copy of the GPA plus Singapore's offer has been circulated to all GPA-covered entities in Singapore for compliance. A copy of the legislation is attached.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Singapore does not have sub-central entities.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Annex 3 entities follow the same procurement regime prescribed by the Ministry of Finance, Singapore.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

None. They all follow the same procurement regime.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Tender notices and tender awards information can be found at <http://www.gebiz.gov.sg>.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

The Agreement in its entirety applies to Singapore's procurement regime (see the notification attached).

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

The Agreement in its entirety applies to Singapore's procurement regime (see the notification attached).

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

The Agreement in its entirety applies to Singapore's procurement regime (see the notification attached). In practice, however, as can be seen from the GeBIZ Internet website, open tenders are the norm.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

Singapore does not maintain a permanent list of suppliers from which contracting authorities choose from for selective tendering procedures. Contracting authorities who wish to adopt selective tendering procedures have to do so on a contract-by-contract basis.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

GPEs are discouraged from negotiations with tenderers, especially over price. Minor variations in tender specifications, mostly to take into account practical difficulties in implementing complex solutions, are allowed.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The Agreement in its entirety applies to Singapore's procurement regime (see the notification attached).

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

Tenders are submitted in English (mandatory) and may or may not also be submitted in one of the other three official national languages (Malay, Tamil, and Chinese).

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Singapore's challenge procedures are found in the Government Procurement Act 1997 and in the accompanying Government Procurement (Challenge Proceedings) Regulations. The Government Procurement Adjudication Tribunal was established in accordance with the Act.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

The time-limit to launch a complaint is 15 days from the time the supplier knew or should have known of the basis of the protest.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Tribunal has the authority to decide how the hearing of a challenge is conducted and to decide how the case is disposed. It is an independent review body. The Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner of the Tribunal are appointed by the Minister for Finance, and the Registrar of the Tribunal is the Ministry of Finance.

If any of the contracting entities is not satisfied with a determination or order of the Tribunal, either party may challenge the decision of the Tribunal in Court.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The applicable law is Singapore law.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Pending the disposal of the challenge by the Tribunal, the complainant may apply to the Tribunal for a suspension order on the award of the contract. The Tribunal has 45 days from the date the Notice of Challenge is lodged to issue its determination.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

If the Tribunal determines that any part of the tender process did not comply with the provisions of the GPA, it may order the contracting authority to do one or more of the following:

- (a) set aside the decision or action taken;
 - (b) make a decision or action in accordance with appropriate procurement regulations in place of what had been set aside;
 - (c) amend the procurement document;
 - (d) pay the costs of participation in the qualification of suppliers or the costs of tender preparations.
- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

On receipt of a Notice of Challenge from any supplier, the Registrar will forward a copy of the Notice to the contracting entity concerned and arrange a hearing, giving 14 days notice of the hearing to the applicant and the contracting entity concerned.

At the same time, the supplier may, at any time after he has lodged a Notice of Challenge, apply to the Tribunal for a suspension order pending the disposal of the challenge.

The Tribunal shall issue its determination on a challenge within 45 days of the lodgement of the Notice of Challenge.

The Registrar must send certified copies of the determination or order to the applicant and the relevant contracting authority within seven days of making the determination or order.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The fee for bringing a challenge before the Tribunal is S$500, payable to the Registrar. In addition to this, there is a refundable deposit of S$5,000, which is released to the applicant upon completion of the proceedings.

(3) The deposit shall be used by the Registrar to pay any costs awarded by the Tribunal to the contracting authority concerned under section 21 in relation to the challenge.

(2) For the purposes of subsection (1), the Tribunal shall declare a challenge invalid if —

- (a) the procurement which is the subject of the challenge is not a procurement subject to the Act;
- (b) the regulation made under section 6 which the contracting authority concerned is alleged to have breached is inapplicable, by virtue of an order made under section 4, to the procurement or the act or measure in relation to a procurement, which is the subject of the challenge;
- (c) the procurement which is the subject of the challenge is a procurement which has been initiated before the commencement of this Act within the meaning of section 26;
- (d) the applicant is not a supplier entitled to bring a challenge under section 7(3);
- (e) the applicant did not lodge or serve the Notice of Challenge within the time prescribed by section 12(1), unless the Tribunal is satisfied that there has been no unreasonable delay on the part of the applicant; or
- (f) the Notice of Challenge does not comply with section 12(2).

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2)(e), the Tribunal shall take into account the date the applicant became aware, or ought reasonably to have become aware, of the facts constituting the basis of the challenge, and may, in granting any permission to the applicant to proceed with the challenge, impose such conditions as it considers just on the applicant.

(4) If the applicant fails to comply with any of the conditions imposed by the Tribunal under subsection (3), the Tribunal may declare the challenge invalid.

Suspension order

16. (1) The applicant may, at any time after he has —
- (a) lodged the Notice of Challenge with the Registrar;
 - (b) paid the fee referred to in section 12(1)(b) and the deposit to the Registrar; and
 - (c) served the Notice of Challenge on the relevant contracting authority, apply to the Tribunal for an order to suspend, pending the disposal of the challenge —
 - (i) the procedure leading to the award of the contract for the procurement which is the subject of the challenge; or
 - (ii) the implementation of any decision made while undertaking the procedure referred to in sub-paragraph (i).
- (2) The Tribunal may, in its discretion, make the order either unconditionally or upon such terms and conditions as the Tribunal thinks just.
- (3) The Tribunal shall not make an order under this section if —
- (a) such suspension is against the public interest; or
 - (b) the contract referred to in subsection (1)(i) has already been awarded at the date of hearing of the application for the order.

(4) If the Tribunal refuses to make an order under this section, the Tribunal shall give the reasons for its refusal in writing.

(5) Where an order under this section has been made, the contracting authority concerned may, at any time before the determination on the challenge referred to in section 18 is made, apply to the Tribunal for the order to be varied or rescinded.

(6) Subject to subsection (7), the Tribunal may, in its discretion, vary or rescind the order either unconditionally or upon such conditions as it thinks just.

(7) The Tribunal shall rescind the order if the continuance of such suspension is against the public interest.

(8) The Minister may issue a certificate that such suspension, or the continuance of such suspension, in a particular case is against the public interest, and such a certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the matters so certified.

Onus of proof, etc.

17. (1) The onus of proving the breach of duty which is the subject of the challenge shall be on the applicant.

(2) Except with the consent of the Tribunal and in accordance with such conditions as the Tribunal may determine, the applicant may not, at the hearing of the challenge, rely on any breach of duty other than that identified in the Notice of Challenge.

Determination on challenge

18. (1) The Tribunal shall issue its determination on a challenge within 45 days from the date of lodgement of the Notice of Challenge by the applicant unless there are exceptional circumstances justifying an extension of time.

(3) If the Tribunal makes a determination in favour of the applicant, the Tribunal may do one or more of the following:

- (a) order any decision or action taken by the contracting authority concerned in relation to the procurement which is the subject of the challenge to be set aside;

- (5) Notwithstanding subsection (3), if —
- (a) the Tribunal makes a determination in favour of the applicant; and
 - (b) the contract for the procurement has already been awarded, the Tribunal may only —
 - (i) make an order under subsection (3)(d); or
 - (ii) if the applicant did not incur any of the costs referred to in subsection (3)(d), award the applicant the costs of the challenge proceeding in accordance with section 21.

Determination and order to be in writing

- 19. (1) Every determination and order of the Tribunal shall be given in writing and shall include a statement of the Tribunal's reasons for the determination or order, as the case may be.
- (2) The Registrar shall, within 7 days of the making of the determination or order, send certified copies of the determination or order to the applicant and the relevant contracting authority.

Costs of challenge proceeding

- 21. (1) Subject to any regulations made under this Act, the costs of any challenge proceeding, including the costs of the Tribunal, shall be at the discretion of the Tribunal.

Procedure and powers of Tribunal

- 22. (1) Subject to the provisions of this Act and any regulations made thereunder, the Tribunal shall have the power to determine the procedure to be adopted for any challenge proceeding.
- (2) The Tribunal shall have the following additional powers:

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

SINGAPORE

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of Singapore, the responses given and the comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of 20 September 2000 and 3 May 2001.¹ Singapore's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in documents GPA/39, dated 22 August 2000 and GPA/39/Add.1 dated 4 October 2000.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM THE UNITED STATES

I. IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

In response to question I:1 of the Checklist of Issues, Singapore indicates that the requirements of the Agreement on Government Procurement are transposed in domestic law and apply directly. However, it appears that the Government Procurement Act ("the Act") only transposes provisions relating to bid challenge.

Aside from the bid challenge procedures, are other Agreement on Government Procurement requirements transposed in domestic law? If so, please provide citations to relevant laws.

If provisions of the Agreement on Government Procurement apply directly, please cite the domestic laws and regulations which require procuring entities to adhere to the procedural and other requirements of the Agreement on Government Procurement.

Gazette No. 3676, dated 17 October 1997, which was circulated at the Committee on Government Procurement on 29 September 2000 is the notification informing the entry into force of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement in Singapore. The Secretariat has since published the gazette as a WTO job. Paragraphs 2 and 3 of the gazette mention that the Government has provided a set of challenge proceedings, and these are the challenge proceedings cited in the Government Procurement Act. The rules and obligations on the part of procurement entities stem directly from the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement.

¹ The minutes of these meetings have been circulated in documents GPA/M/14 and 15.

Singapore's response to a number of the questions in GPA/39 is that "the Agreement in its entirety applies to Singapore's procurement regime".

In light of Singapore's response to question no. 1, above, please cite the national laws and regulations which require procuring entities to adhere to the specific Agreement on Government Procurement requirements referred to in GPA/39.

Please see the answer to question 1.

Article 6 of Part II of the Act states that: "The Minister may, for the purposes of implementing the Agreement on Government Procurement, make regulations to govern procurements subject to the Act".

This provision appears to provide authority, but not a requirement, to develop regulations for implementing the Agreement on Government Procurement. Has Singapore, in fact, developed regulations for implementing the procedural requirements of the Agreement on Government Procurement? Are there some Agreement on Government Procurement requirements that have not been specifically addressed in those regulations? How are Singapore's procurement regulations published?

The procedural requirements are implemented vide the Gazette No. 3676, dated 17 October 1997. All the requirements of the Agreement on Government Procurement automatically apply to all the listed entities as a result of this gazette.

II. BID CHALLENGE PROCEDURES

Part III, section 13 of the Act refers to the deposit by a bid challenge applicant of a sum in cash, or other form as deemed necessary by the Tribunal Registrar, which is to be used to pay any costs awarded by the Tribunal to the contracting authority. In addition, section 21 of the Act refers to the costs of any challenge proceeding, including the costs of the Tribunal, to be at the discretion of the Tribunal and that these costs may be recovered as if they were costs in a suit in the High Court and as if the determination of the Tribunal in relation to the cost were a decree made in the High Court.

Please indicate what types of costs are generally incurred by bid review applicants, the frequency that deposits are deemed inadequate for the costs of the review and the general amount of these costs. Please explain whether such costs may affect the ability of suppliers to challenge alleged breaches of the Agreement.

The clause cited above allows the Tribunal to decide on award of damages and costs in similar fashion to the Courts deciding on the award of damages and costs, either to the plaintiff or defendant. This way, both the supplier or the procuring entity need not go to the Court again to decide on any claims for damages or costs incurred. This will in effect reduce the time, resources and costs incurred by both suppliers and procuring entities in respect of any bid challenge. The Act however allows for both the supplier and the procuring entity to appeal to the Courts to review the Tribunal's decisions.

Communication from Switzerland

Addendum

During the review of the national implementing legislation of Switzerland at the Committee meeting of 23 February 1999, the representative of Switzerland made a statement, updating the communication made by Switzerland (GPA/15), in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1). Accordingly, the information contained in the respective sections of document GPA/15 should be modified as follows.

On page 3 of GPA/15, Swiss Telecom is referred to as one of the entities which falls under the scope of the Federal Ordinance on Government Procurement. However, Swiss Telecom is now Swisscom. Swisscom was privatized in 1998 and, therefore, is no longer within the scope of the Ordinance. Accordingly, the reference to Swiss Telecom on page 3 of GPA/15 should be deleted.

On page 3, footnote 3 mentions the thresholds that were calculated for 1997. The same thresholds applied in 1998 and 1999.

Page 6 contains an overview of the procedures for hearing and reviewing complaints and appeals. Procedures available to lodge complaints against the award of a contract are outlined. Notably, the procedures do not only apply against the award of a tender or of a contract where an appeal is possible but also against any decision having the effect of limiting market access. This means, for instance, that the tender notice is also subject to appeal. Therefore, for example, if a potential supplier sees discriminatory criteria contained in the tender notice, the supplier can make an appeal against the tender notice. Another case where an appeal is possible is in relation to a decision to list or not to list a supplier on a permanent list of suppliers. Furthermore, it is also possible to appeal against a decision regarding the selection of a supplier or the non-selection of a supplier in a selective tendering procedure. Finally the exclusion of a supplier, for instance, because of bid-rigging or because of corruption could also be the subject of an appeal.

On page 8 it is noted that there is likely to be change in the future in relation to Switzerland's use of information technology for government procurement following Switzerland's participation in SIMAP (the EU's project) and there are plans to edit the Swiss Official Trade Gazette electronically. The Swiss Official Trade Gazette is on the Internet at the address <http://www.shab.admin.ch>. From July 1999 on, all the tender notices and publications covered by the GPA are available on this website. Furthermore, since 11 January 1999, the Swiss Official Trade Gazette office has electronic access through the EC's TED and various trade notices are being published there.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Switzerland

The attached communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of Switzerland in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. SUMMARY OF THE SWISS LEGISLATION ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

Switzerland's international obligations in the area of public procurement have been transposed into national legislation through a federal law on government procurement and a federal ordinance on government procurement covering the entities on the national level and the entities operating in the water, energy and transportation sector owned or controlled by federal entities. Both have entered into force on 1 January 1996. On the cantonal level, an agreement has been concluded between the Swiss cantons covering the entities on the subfederal level and the entities operating in the water, energy and transportation sector which are owned or controlled by cantonal entities.

-Federal Law on Government Procurement of 16 December 1994 (SR¹ 172.056.1)

-Federal Ordinance on Government Procurement of 11 December 1995 (SR 172.065.11)

-Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement of 25 November 1994 (SR 172.056.4)

(a) Federal Law on Government Procurement of 16 December 1994

Scope: Procurement of goods (i.e. supplies), services and construction services mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 4 and Annex 5 of the GPA by:

Federal agencies mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 1 of the GPA with a value above the following thresholds²: supplies: Sw F 263,000; services: Sw F 263,000; construction services: Sw F 10,070,000.

Exemptions: The list of exemptions coincides with the exemptions according to Article XXIII of the GPA.

Content: The law provides for the implementation of the provisions of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) on the federal level. In line with these provisions, it guarantees non-discriminatory access to public procurement markets for suppliers established in Switzerland and in the signatories of the GPA or in other countries, as far as they grant reciprocity. Procurement above the thresholds has to be published and procured in an open or selective procedure. The award is given to the economically most advantageous offer, specified by objective criteria which must already be included in the publication. It furthermore provides for the possibility to challenge a procurement before an independent body for every relevant part of the procurement procedure. A tenderer whose offer has been rejected may claim damages, if the rejection has breached the regulations.

(b) Federal Ordinance on Government Procurement of 11 December 1995

¹Reference to the Swiss systematic law collection

²The thresholds have been adapted according to the Decision of the GPA Committee (document GPA/1 of 5 March 1996) and therefore amount for 1997 to: Sw F 248,950 for supplies and services on national level and Sw F 766,000 for supplies and services by entities in the sectors water, energy and transportation and Sw F 9,575,000 for construction services for all covered entities.

Scope: On the one hand, the ordinance gives some details on the provisions contained in the federal law. On the other hand, the ordinance regulates the procurement of goods, services and construction services by the federal agencies mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 1 of the GPA not attaining the thresholds. It also regulates the procurement of goods, services and construction services by Swiss Telecom, the Swiss Federal Railways as well as the procurement by entities in the military sector.

Content: The ordinance aims at full competition for the procurement of goods, services and construction services by setting clear rules on publications, opening and treatment of offers.

(c) Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement of 25 November 1994

Scope: Public procurement of goods, services mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 4 and construction services mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 5 of the GPA by: (a) cantonal entities mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 2 of the GPA and public enterprises owned or controlled by the cantons; (b) communities and other corporations under public law; (c) private or public entities which are active in the field of supply of water, energy and transport or in the telecommunications sector and which are controlled by cantonal or local agencies mentioned under (a) and (b); (d) other organizations covered by GPA or by other international agreements; (e) any procurement that is subsidized by 50% or more by the Swiss Federal Government or by entities mentioned under (a). Thresholds³: Sw F 403,000 for goods (supplies) and services; Sw F 10,070,000 for construction services; Sw F 806,000 for procurement of goods and services in the field of supply of water, energy and transport, and telecommunication.

Exemptions: The same exemptions apply as in Article XXIII of the GPA and in the Federal Law on Government Procurement.

Content: The agreement implements the provisions of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) on the subfederal level. In line with these provisions, it guarantees non-discriminatory access to public procurement markets, through non-discriminatory tendering procedures, by setting clear rules on publications, opening and treatment of offers. It furthermore provides for the possibility to challenge the award of a procurement before an independent cantonal body.

Procurement procedure

Public procurement on a federal level

• Procurements governed by the Federal Law and Ordinance on Government Procurement

The following procedures are foreseen:

³The thresholds have been adapted according to the Decision of the GPA Committee (document GPA/1 of 5 March 1996) and therefore amount for 1997 to: Sw F 383,000 for supplies and services on subfederal/cantonal level and Sw F 766,000 for supplies and services by entities in the sectors water, energy and transportation and Sw F 9,575,000 for construction services for all covered entities.

- public or open tendering procedure under which all interested suppliers may submit a tender;
- selective or restricted tender procedures: upon public invitation all interested suppliers may submit an application for participation. Participation is limited to a certain number of selected suppliers (at least three), and these suppliers are invited to submit a tender;
- private contract or single tender under the conditions mentioned in the GPA;
- invitation procedure (no publication, direct invitation; if possible three suppliers have to be invited); this procedure applies to some procurement contracts below the GPA thresholds and to some procurement contracts covered by GPA exemptions.

Public procurement on cantonal level

•Procurement governed by the Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement

The following procedures are foreseen:

- public or open tendering procedure under which all interested suppliers may submit a tender;
- selective or restricted tender procedures: upon public invitation all interested suppliers may submit an application for participation. Participation is limited to a certain number of selected suppliers, and only these suppliers are invited to submit a tender;
- private contract or single tender under the same conditions as foreseen in the GPA.

Publication

•Procurement under the Federal Law of Government Procurement and under the Ordinance on Government Procurement

- Invitations to participate in a tendering procedure and awards in public or selective procedure or in private contracting procedure are to be published. Publication in at least two (of the three) official languages (except for construction services, where at least publication in the official language of the site is required). In case there is publication in Italian and German only, a summary in French, English or Spanish has to be attached. The publication is mandatory in the •Swiss Official Trade Gazette• and may be also published in any other publication.

•Procurement under the Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement

- Invitation is published. Publication of public or selective tenders at least in •the official cantonal publication•. Publication in at least one official language (German, French or Italian). Publications in Italian or German have to be accompanied by a summary in French, Spanish or English.

Minimum set of information required to be published

•Procurement under the Federal Law and Ordinance on Government Procurement

- The following minimum set of information is required to be published: procuring entity (name, address), description of the service to be procured, delivering place and time, conditions of participation (economic and technical conditions and required financial guarantees), place and time for submission of the tender, language used in the procurement procedure, the address where to get tender documentation and the amount payable for this documentation, awarding criteria (if there is no tender documentation) whether the entity intends to hold negotiations, indication on whether the procurement falls under the provisions of the GPA, indication of challenging procedures and entity.
- Summary in English, French or Spanish contains the following information: the service to be procured, time-limits for submission of applications for participation or for submission of bids, enquiry point.

•Procurement under the Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement

- Equivalent minimum set of information required as under the federal law, following the obligations of the GPA;
- If the publication is not in French, a summary in French has to contain the following information: the service to be procured, time-limits for submission of applications for participation or for submission of bids, enquiry points.

Opening of tenders

•Procurement under the Federal Law on Government Procurement

- At least two representatives of the procuring entity register and open the tenders. In the case of procurement of construction services, the opening procedure has to be summarized in written form. The record should include at least the following information: names of persons attending the opening procedure, names of tenderers, submission dates of offers, prices offered, variety of offers.

•Procurement under the Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement

- At least two representatives of the procuring entity open the offers. The opening procedure has to be summarized in written form. The record includes at least the following information: names of persons attending the opening procedure, names of tenderers, submission of dates of offers, prices offered. All tenderers have the right to examine the records.

Award criteria

The economically most advantageous offer. To measure the value of an offer, criteria such as delivery dates, quality, price, efficiency, overhead expenses, service to clients, environmental impact can be considered. Criteria taken into account have to be published in advance. For standardized goods the award can be based on the lowest price only.

Procedures for hearing and reviewing complaints/appeals

Procedures available for parties, domestic and foreign, to lodge complaints against the award of a contract

-institutional status

Federal level: against decisions concerning a procurement falling under the scope of the Federal Law, complaint/appeal can be made to the •Federal Appeals Commission•. This Commission is an independent judicial authority which takes a final decision on the case.

Cantonal level: cantonal authority (in most cases: administrative court).

-time-limits for complaints/appeals

Federal level: 20 days from publication of decision.

Cantonal level: 10 days from publication of decision.

-type of remedy that may be granted

Federal level: the Commission can take procedural decisions, e.g. take precaution measures, such as giving suspensive effect to a complaint. It decides itself on the case or reverts the case for decision with binding recommendations to the contracting entity. If a contract has been already concluded, the award cannot be revoked and the Commission for appeal can only state that federal law has been violated. Only expenses caused by the tender and the behaviour of the procuring entity are being reimbursed.

Cantonal level: remedy equivalent to federal level.

2. OTHER REGULATIONS RELATED TO GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

(a)Law on National Budget of 6 October 1989 (SR 611.0)

(b)Ordinance on National Budget of 11 June 1990 (SR 611.01)

Scope: Principles for managing the budget such as legality, urgency, efficiency and economy.

(c)Federal Law (SR 725.11) of 8 March 1960 and Ordinance on National Highways of 18 December 1995

Scope: Principles for government procurement are laid down. Furthermore the cantonal legislation is applicable. Although the cantons are competent in this domain, they need the approval of the Swiss Federal Highways Office (which is supervising the construction of national highways) before a contract is awarded.

(d)Law on the Establishment of a Swiss Common Market of 6 October 1995

Scope: Persons, whether national or foreign, domiciled in Switzerland, shall have, in pursuit of their commercial activities, equal access to the market all over the Swiss territory. In particular, the law aims at improving professional mobility within Switzerland, strengthening the competitiveness of the Swiss economy, supporting cantons in their efforts to harmonize conditions for market access. Concerning public procurement, Article 5 states the principle of non-discrimination and the obligation of public tendering of procurement of a •certain significance•. The law provides for a challenge procedure against any restrictions to market access.

4. ANSWERS TO THE CHECKLIST

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1)Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The Agreement has been transposed into national/subfederal law by the Federal Law on Government Procurement and the Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement.

Although Switzerland follows the monistic theory with respect to the relation of national and international law, implementation of the Agreement by federal and inter-cantonal instruments was necessary (e.g. to introduce the challenge procedure).

2)In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Yes. However, according to the Swiss constitution, any inter-cantonal agreement has to be approved by the federal government in order to ensure that the agreement does not violate federal law.

3)In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

These are either covered by national or cantonal legislation.

4)Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The implementing legislation for sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities falling under sub-central level legislation, has to be adopted by all 26 cantons.

In substance and with respect to the GPA, there are only minor differences in the implementing legislation (e.g. the time-limit for complaints is 20 days on federal and 10 days on subfederal level).

5) To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Invitation to submit offers and information on contract awards for supplies above the thresholds on central government level is published in the database TED (Tender Electronic Daily) of the EC. Otherwise information technology is not yet much used in the process of government procurement. This is likely to change in the future: Switzerland participates in the EU project SIMAP for electronic tendering and there are plans to edit the •Swiss Official Trade Gazette• or at least the part relating to government procurement publications electronically.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6) Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

-Federal Law on Government Procurement: Article 1, paragraph 2.

-Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement: Article 1, paragraph 2, lit. b.

7) Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

For open and selective tendering, a tender notice has to be published. The regulations on national and sub-central level describe in detail the information to be provided such as name and address of the procuring entity, the type of procedure (open or selective), place of delivery, content of contract, date of execution or delivery, place and time-limit for the offer, amount of securities (if required), all technical and economic requirements, award criteria, if no specific documentation is being handed out and further information.

8) Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Swiss implementing legislation does also provide for this opportunity: according to Article 18, paragraph 2 of the Federal Law on Government Procurement, Annex 3 entities owned or controlled by federal entities and the automobile services of PTT can publish notices simultaneously with a qualification system. The Inter-cantonal Agreement also foresees this possibility for Annex 2 entities and Annex 3 entities owned or controlled by cantonal entities.

9) In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

Entities are allowed to make use of permanent lists of suppliers. Suppliers and service providers must at any time have the possibility to ask for inclusion in the list. The respective entity has to examine the request within due time. If the procuring entity refuses to accept a supplier on the list, it has to deliver a contestable decision. It is possible to challenge this decision before the Federal Appeals Commission or the cantonal administrative courts independent body. Suppliers and service providers which are not yet on the list have to be included in the procurement procedure, if the procurement is not being delayed by their inclusion in the list. If the list is not limited to a period of three years, the list and the conditions to be fulfilled by suppliers with a view to their inscription on those lists and the methods according to which each of those conditions are verified by the entity concerned have to be published annually.

10) Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

The Federal Law on Government Procurement foresees the possibility of negotiations (Article 20) under the conditions that in the tender notice suppliers have been informed about possible negotiation procedures or if none of the offers appears to be the economically most advantageous.

The Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement does not foresee this possibility (Article 11 lit. c).

11) Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be •not less than X days•. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

Time-limits have been established in the domestic legislation as set out in the GPA (Article 19 Ordinance on Government Procurement for central government procurement and paragraphs 17 and 18 of the Procurement Directives to the Inter-cantonal Agreement).

12) To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The Federal Law on Government Procurement does not foresee any limitation of languages allowed for tenders. It is the practice to accept tenders to be submitted in one of the official Swiss languages, which are German, French (WTO language) and Italian. For certain very technical tenders also English has been accepted.

Paragraph 21 of the Procurement Directives to the Inter-cantonal Agreement lays down the obligation to submit tenders in the language of the procedure.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13) Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Under the coverage of the Law on Government Procurement, suppliers having an interest in a nullification or modification of a decision of a covered entity may appeal against alleged breaches. A special independent judicial authority (•Federal Appeals Commission•) has been set up which decides definitively on the case. The appeal does not automatically have suspensive effect. If asked for by the complainant, suspensive effect can be given to the appeal. But this is only possible as long as the contract has not yet been awarded. Time-limit to hand in appeals is 20 days. The Commission for appeals can either decide itself or revert the case to the respective entity with instructions. If the respective entity has already concluded a contract with another supplier, the Commission can only state whether the law has been violated.

Only damages (negative interest) can be claimed. The claim has to be handed in with the respective entity. Here the Federal Appeals Commission decides definitively also in this case.

Under the coverage of the Inter-cantonal Agreement, appeal can be made against decisions of sub-central entities or Annex 3 entities falling under the Inter-cantonal Agreement before a cantonal administrative court or independent review body according to cantonal law (each of the 26 cantons has to define in its cantonal law the independent review body). The time-limit is 10 days. The appeal has no automatic suspensive effect, but such effect can be granted if required and justified. The independent cantonal authority can decide on the matter itself or revert the case with or without instructions. If a contract has already been concluded, compensation in the amount of the negative interest can be claimed.

14) To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is not less than 10 days. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

See under 13 above.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a court or an impartial and independent review body? If the latter:

An independent review body (Federal Appeals Commission) according to the law on government procurement for challenge procedures involving central government entities or Annex 3 entities falling under the law on government procurement and an independent review body or an administrative court according to cantonal law.

- How are its members selected?

Federal Appeals Commission: members are appointed by the Federal Council (Swiss Government) for a period of four years.

Cantonal courts or review bodies: members of administrative courts are generally appointed by the cantonal parliament, members of an independent review body sometimes by the cantonal government.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

These decisions are not subject to judicial review but they have procedures as described in Article XX GPA paragraph 6.

-If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

For procurement under the Federal Law on Government Procurement: Federal Law on Government Procurement and federal law on the administrative procedure (systematic collection of Swiss legislation number: 172.021).

For procurement under cantonal law: Inter-cantonal Agreement, implementing cantonal law on government procurement, Law on the Establishment of a Swiss Common Market and cantonal legislation on administrative procedure.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

-Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The supplier who has the right to appeal may ask for suspension of the procurement process if the contract with another supplier has not yet been concluded. In such a case, the interest of the complainant has to outweigh the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay.

For procurement under cantonal law, some cantonal procedural laws provide for automatic suspensive effect which can be withdrawn by the court.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The court or independent review body may decide itself in the case or revert it to the respective entity with instructions. Compensation for loss or damages suffered covers only the negative interest, that means that the supplier should get compensation for his expenses, not compensation for the contract he has not been awarded.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

Information on time-periods for the stages of the challenge process is difficult to obtain. There are no fixed time-limits for the different stages. Interim measures can be obtained in a very short period (if necessary within one or two days).

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Costs have to be borne by the unsuccessful party in general. The successful party bears no cost and can even get compensation for the costs.

Monitoring of the enforcement of the GPA

Commission for the implementation and monitoring of the international obligations of Switzerland in the area of government procurement

In order to monitor the compliance with international obligations, the Federal Council (Swiss Government) has established an independent authority, whose services are available for suppliers and service providers from countries members to the GPA, if they face systemic difficulties with the way the Swiss authorities implement the GPA.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Switzerland

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of Switzerland, the responses given and the comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of 23 February and 5 October 1999.¹ Switzerland's notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in documents GPA/15, dated 30 July 1997, and GPA/15/Add.1, dated 15 September 1999.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM CANADA; THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY; HONG KONG, CHINA; AND THE UNITED STATES

I. TENDERING PROCEDURES

Question from Canada

On page 4 of its Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/15) Switzerland notes that its federal legislation provides for:

"... selective or restricted tender procedures: upon public invitation all interested suppliers may submit an application for participation. Participation is limited to a certain number of selected suppliers (at least 3), and these suppliers are invited to submit a tender;"

On page 9 of the same document, in paragraph 9, Switzerland describes the procedures for adding additional suppliers to a permanent list of suppliers and notes:

"... Suppliers and service providers which are not yet on the list have to be included in the procurement procedure, if the procurement is not being delayed by their inclusion in the list."

Would Switzerland please explain how additional suppliers are accommodated when the procurement has been limited to a pre-set number of selected suppliers after the pre-set number has been invited to submit a tender?

The first text is misleading and should read: "... selective or restricted procedures: ... Participation may be limited ...". This means that in a restricted procedure, the tendering entity may decide, in order to ensure that the tender procedure is executed efficiently, to limit the number of participants to a minimum of three.

¹ The minutes of these meetings have been circulated in documents GPA/M/11 and 12.

The procedure referred to on page 8 is different and refers to the establishment of a suppliers' list. In such a case, if a tendering entity plans to use such a list to invite tender's submissions, new applicants can be included provided their clearance and inscription in the list can take place without delaying the procedure.

Question from Hong Kong, China

Whether the entities, in Switzerland, covered by the GPA have in place a system for qualification of suppliers and if so, what is the deadline for suppliers that are not yet qualified to obtain the qualification in order to be considered in a particular tender?

According to our information, there are only very few entities covered by the GPA having in place a system for qualification of suppliers up to now. Therefore, limited experience exists as to the functioning and use of such a system. With regard to a precise deadline for suppliers not yet qualified to obtain the qualification in a particular tender procedure, no exact time-limit is foreseen in Swiss procurement law. In principle, suppliers and service providers by law have the possibility to ask for inclusion in such a list at any time, provided this doesn't cause unreasonable procedural delays.

Question from the United States

The response in Switzerland's submittal that addresses the issue of negotiation states that the Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement does not foresee this possibility. Can this response be understood to mean that negotiation does not take place at the cantonal level? If negotiation does take place at the cantonal level, under what conditions?

At the federal level, the possibility of negotiation exists. However, at the cantonal level, it is correct that such a possibility does not exist.

II. PUBLICATION

Question from the European Community

According to Article IX of the GPA, notices of proposed procurement shall be published in the appropriate publication listed in Appendix II. To what extent does Switzerland consider that the information provided by Appendix II in regard to Switzerland respects all of the transparency conditions laid down in Article IX, particularly in view of the fact that none of the 26 cantonal publications are mentioned?

It was considered necessary to name each of the official publications for the 26 Cantons in Appendix II. The Swiss Official Trade Gazette is the publication used for notices of intended procurement of entities of the central government in Annex 1 of Appendix I. Publication of notices of intended procurement of entities under Annex 2 of Appendix I - entities at the sub-central level - can be found in the official publication of each of the 26 Cantons.

A list of the addresses of the 26 cantonal publications is contained in the Annex to this document. As there is only one such official publication in each Canton, it was not seen as necessary to indicate the title of each publication. However, in order to render the Appendices of the GPA more transparent, Switzerland is ready to add the names of the 26 official cantonal publications to Appendix II of the GPA as soon as all of the other signatories of the GPA having sub-federal entities are ready to do so, and supports such a decision to be taken by the GPA Committee.

Moreover, increasingly, summaries of cantonal notices which are contained in the relevant cantonal gazettes are published in the Swiss Official Trade Gazette which is available on the Internet.

In the future, Switzerland foresees that the Swiss Official Trade Gazette will become more and more important, particularly in relation to publication on a municipal level. For the time being, the cantonal gazettes are not on the Internet. While some cantons are seeking to do this, it may take some time more before this is achieved.

III. BID CHALLENGE PROCEDURES

Questions from United States

The response in Switzerland's submittal under the section "Procedures for hearing and reviewing complaints/appeals" states that at the cantonal level, the cantonal authority to which complaints against the award of a contract can be lodged is in most cases an administrative court. Please list the canton and describe the cantonal authority to which complaints can be lodged for those cantons that utilise an authority other than an administrative court.

The relevant cantons are Solothurn and Schaffhausen. In the Canton of Solothurn, the cantonal authority having jurisdiction as to the complaints against the award of a contract is the "Cantonal Valuation Commission" (Kantonale Schätzungskommission). This commission is an independent judicial body. In the Canton of Schaffhausen, the respective authority is the Court of Appeal (Obergericht).

The response in Switzerland's submittal notes that there are no fixed time-limits for the different stages of the challenge process. Can this be understood to mean that there is no specific time requirement to initiate challenge procedures and notify the procuring entity from the time when the basis of the complaint is known or reasonably should have been known, as stated in Article XX:5 of the GPA?

No, at the federal level, the time-limit to initiate challenge procedures is 20 days from the time when the basis of the complaint is known or reasonably should have been known. At the cantonal level, the respective time-limit is 10 days. Since, in general, the published invitation to tender or the published award of contract announcement form the basis of the complaint, the respective time-limit has to be calculated from the day of publication in the official gazette. As to the referred passage in the Swiss notification cited by the United States, it is the different stages of the challenge procedure after a complaint has been initiated that, in general, are not subject to a specific time-limit, neither at the federal nor at the cantonal level.

The last page of Switzerland's notification in GPA/15 states that the Federal Council has established an independent authority, "whose services are available for suppliers and service providers from countries members to the GPA, if they face systemic difficulties with the way the Swiss authorities implement the GPA". Please provide information about this body, including the scope of its authority and its operational procedures, and where suppliers wishing to avail themselves of this body can obtain additional information.

The concerned independent authority is the "Government Procurement Commission Swiss Confederation-Cantons". It is based on decisions of the respective federal and cantonal authorities and is composed of representatives from Cantons and from the Confederation. Its aim basically is to advise on and support the coherent implementation of the international obligations of Switzerland in the domain of public procurement on all levels. The Commission has advisory competence and can mediate in specific cases. The main task of this body is the exchange of information and opinions between representatives of the federal authorities and the cantonal authorities concerning the implementation of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement and to discuss specific questions touching upon the application and surveillance of these provisions. Moreover, the Commission addresses individual cases as well, namely difficulties arising from the application of the procurement rules in practice, raised by suppliers, authorities or members of the Commission. The efforts taken to urge the relevant entities to act according to the respective legal framework have turned out to be quite effective.

It has been announced that in December 1998, Switzerland and the European Community reached a bilateral agreement which included an agreement on public procurement. Reportedly, pursuant to the agreement, Switzerland will create an independent monitoring body and make provision for appeals on the lines of EU procedures. Please provide information on the expected impact and/or effects of this agreement on Switzerland's implementation of the WTO GPA. For example, will this agreement create an independent monitoring body that is open to foreign entities? And are the appeals procedures' described in Switzerland's notification expected to change for GPA-covered contracts?

The implementation of the bilateral agreement with the EU is being discussed on the federal and the cantonal level. Regarding the specific question of the monitoring body, the relevant authorities are evaluating whether it would be appropriate if the Commission mentioned in the previous answer would be entrusted with these tasks. As to the impact of this agreement on the existing appeals procedures, no changes of the mechanism according to Article XX of the Agreement on Government Procurement are to be expected.

Question from Canada

On page 11, in paragraph 14(vii), Switzerland notes that the costs of bid challenge are borne by the unsuccessful party. Would Switzerland please clarify whether the government, if it were the unsuccessful party, would be responsible for costs?

Costs have in general to be borne by the unsuccessful party. The procedural costs of purely administrative nature have to be distinguished from other costs such as party compensation. In case the government is the unsuccessful party, no procedural costs are charged in general. With a view to a party's expenditures in the conduct of a challenge procedure, the Federal Appeals Commission may decide for compensation of necessary and reasonably high costs arisen from the challenge. Such compensation in favour of the successful party has to be borne by the unsuccessful party, no matter if it is the government or a bidder.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from the United States

The following communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of the United States in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

1. Basic Legislation on Government Procurement, and Legislation Giving Effect to the Agreement

The Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S. Code §§ 3501 et seq.) approves the trade agreements resulting from the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations and provides for implementation and entry into force of those agreements. The Act, through amendments to the Trade Agreements Act of 1979 (19 U.S. Code §§ 2511 et seq.), authorizes the President to implement United States obligations under the Agreement on Government Procurement. Pursuant to the Act, the Agreement on Government Procurement entered into force for the United States on 1 January 1996.

The Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) System codifies and publishes uniform policies and procedures for acquisition by all United States executive agencies (central government entities). The FAR System consists of the FAR, which is the primary legal document, and agency-specific acquisition regulations that implement or supplement the FAR.

Copies of the following laws and regulations relating to government procurement have been submitted:

- The Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S. Code §§ 3501 et seq.)
- The Trade Agreements Act of 1979, as amended (19 U.S. Code §§ 2511 et seq.)
- Federal Acquisition Regulation (48 Code of Federal Regulation parts 1-99)
- Armed Services Procurement Act (10 U.S. Code §§ 2301 et seq.)
- Federal Property and Administrative Services Act (40 U.S. Code §§ 471 et seq. and 41 U.S. Code §§ 251 et seq.)
- The Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S. Code §§ 401 et seq.)

These statutes can be located electronically by accessing the Federal Acquisition Virtual Library of the United States Government's Acquisition Reform Network. The Internet site for the Acquisition Reform Network is: <www.arnet.gov>.

2. Additional Legislation Giving Effect to the Agreement

Each state listed in Annex 2 of the United States schedule for coverage under the GPA has statutes and regulations applicable to government procurement in that state.

3. Contact Point for Information Regarding Laws, Regulations, Final Judicial Decisions, Administrative Rulings or other Measures Relevant to the Agreement

CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

Pursuant to the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (Public Law 103-465), the Government Procurement Agreement (GPA) entered into force for the United States on 1 January 1996. The Uruguay Round Agreements Act approved the agreements resulting from the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations, including the GPA, and implements those agreements in United States law. Although no statutory amendments were required to implement the obligations of the GPA, certain amendments to the Federal Acquisition Regulation were necessary.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

The federal laws and regulations cited above in section 1 of the Summary govern procurement by federal government agencies and generally do not apply to state government procurements. Where state governments are expending grant monies from the federal government or have been allocated monies directly by the federal government, those state governments must comply with certain federal statutory requirements. Each state has its own laws and regulations pertaining to government procurement.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or subcentral level?

The following Annex 3 entities are subject to the federal procurement laws and regulations cited above in section 1 of the Summary: the Power Marketing Administrations of the Department of Energy (except the Bonneville Power Administration); and the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation. Due to the commercial nature of the activities carried out by certain Annex 3 entities, procurements by the other Annex 3 entities are not subject to the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act and the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act. These entities are instead subject to specific laws governing each such entity.

In accordance with the Tennessee Valley Authority Act (16 U.S. Code §831h), the Tennessee Valley Authority's (TVA) procurements are subject to the Tennessee Valley Authority Procurement Standards and Guidelines, which contain a statement of procurement policy and a body of interpretive regulations governing TVA procurement. The Bonneville Power Administration's procurement operations are conducted under the Bonneville Power Administration Act, 16 U.S. Code §832 et seq. and 16 U.S. Code §474(d)(20), as well as the Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act, 16 U.S. Code §838i(b), and the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act, 16 U.S. Code §839f(a) and 839f(b). These entities follow procurement procedures that are similar to those contained in the FAR.

The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey is a municipal corporate entity and subdivision of the States of New York and New Jersey. The Port Authority has written instructions in the form of administrative procedures and memoranda for its purchasing agents. The New York Power Authority is required by state law to follow comprehensive guidelines detailing operating policy and instructions regarding procurement contracts.

All federal government entities in Annex 3 are subject to the Trade Agreements Act of 1979.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the subcentral level and for Annex 3 entities?

With respect to entities at the subcentral level, state government procurements are governed by laws enacted by the individual states. These laws establish transparent government procurement procedures and are aimed at establishing a level playing field for suppliers. One of the principal differences that exists between federal government and state government laws is the degree of centralization of procurement. The federal government generally conducts procurements on a more centralized basis than do the states. States also vary among themselves as to the extent to which their procurements are decentralized. In addition, states have different designated publication for advertising procurement opportunities.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Information technology (IT) is used throughout the government procurement process, as in all other administrative processes. Information is passed from requirements offices to buying offices and paying offices via computer. Solicitations are prepared using computers that link directly to data bases of standard contract clauses. Contracts are managed through extensive computer systems. Wherever possible, the paper process has been supplanted by an IT solution. The United States Government has begun to use electronic commerce to streamline, consolidate and eliminate processes wherever possible through the following initiatives:

Commerce Business Daily on the Internet

With certain exceptions, agencies are required to publish notices of procurement opportunities in excess of US$25,000 in the Commerce Business Daily (CBD). The CBD is distributed by the United States Government Printing Office in paper form, and is also available on the Internet. The Internet site, known as CBDnet, is the official online listing of government contracting opportunities published in the CBD. CBDnet provides convenient and universal user access to these notices through a single point of entry. In addition, CBDnet provides users with three search engines to conduct: (1) text searches; (2) field searches; and (3) searches by classification code. Access to CBDnet is free. The site can be accessed at <http://cbdnet.access.gpo.gov/index.html>. The United States Government is working towards enhancements that, among other things, will permit sellers to download solicitations and related documents from the Internet for local printing and editing and to receive automatic email notification about procurement opportunities in specific categories of interest.

Conducting Small Dollar Purchases through Electronic Commerce

Each year the Federal government makes approximately 22 million purchases from the private sector worth about US$200 billion. Federal government agencies are currently finding that electronic commerce is especially beneficial in helping them conduct smaller dollar purchases, in light of the high volume of transactions (often for the same supplies or services) and the amount of associated transaction processing that can be improved by the application of current electronic commerce and related technologies.

Among other things, agencies are using purchase cards (credit cards for business) to make micro-purchases (purchases of US$2,500 or less). Purchase cards are also used to support other smaller dollar ordering from "electronic catalogs" to fulfill needs better, faster and more cheaply.

Improved Integration of Procurement and Payment Procedures

In March 1998, the President's Management Council's Electronic Processes Initiatives Committee issued a Strategic Plan for Electronic Commerce for Buyers and Sellers. The Plan sets forth policy principles for making and successfully managing investments in electronic commerce and a variety of focused activities to facilitate the use of electronic commerce to strengthen and integrate buying and paying process in government agencies. The Strategic Plan can be accessed at <http://policyworks.gov/epic>.

The Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996 requires that all Federal payments be made electronically by 1999.

Making Procurement Information Available on the Acquisition Reform Net (ARNET)

Many agencies have developed their own "home pages" on the Internet to broadcast electronically a variety of procurement information such as requests for information, draft requests for proposals (RFPs), RFPs, and other acquisition information such as advanced procurement planning and forecast information to industry. The Office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP) has requested agencies to link their home pages to ARNET, a central site on the Internet's World Wide Web (<http://www.arnet.gov>) which currently provides procurement officials in the public and private sectors with a vast amount of procurement information, including best practices guides, policy letters, and training courses.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

The Trade Agreements Act of 1979 (TAA), as amended by the Uruguay Round Agreements Act, authorizes the President to waive the application of any discriminatory government procurement laws for all procurements that are subject to the GPA. 19 U.S. Code § 2511. Under the authority granted by the TAA, the President has ordered federal agencies that are covered by the GPA to comply with GPA obligations. Executive Order 12260 (1980). Accordingly, Part 25 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation specifies that the restrictions of the Buy American Act do not apply to procurements that are subject to the GPA. 48 CFR 25.402.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Consistent with Article IX:2, Part 5 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation requires that a notice of proposed procurement be published in the Commerce Business Daily for each procurement expected to exceed US$25,000. 48 CFR 5.201. Certain exceptions apply, including where perishable subsistence supplies are being purchased or where a situation of unusual and compelling urgency exists that would result in serious injury to the Government if a notice were published. All state governments require publication of an invitation to participate; most state governments require that this takes the form of a notice of proposed procurement.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the subcentral level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Some states use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate under Article IX:3. These notices are sometimes used in addition to notices of proposed procurements, affording suppliers multiple opportunities to learn of procurement opportunities.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

A federal government agency may establish a source list if the head of that agency prepares a written justification explaining the circumstances necessitating use of such a list. Potential foreign suppliers from GPA Parties have the opportunity to be included in source lists. Entities must specifically justify and document the need for establishing such lists and all interested suppliers must be provided an opportunity to be included in such lists. Moreover, potential suppliers who are not included in a list must be allowed to participate in the procurement if those suppliers can make timely and responsive offers.

Most GPA-covered states require suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis. Some GPA-covered states utilize qualified or registered vendor lists. The existence of such lists is advertised and additions to the lists are generally encouraged in the interest of broadening the competitive field.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Negotiation is permitted for federal government entities as set forth in Part 15 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation. The regulation contains the specific requirements regarding negotiated contracts.

Most GPA-covered states allow for negotiations in procuring goods and services under certain conditions, as set forth in applicable state law.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be “not less than X days”. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The Federal Acquisition Regulation requires that: (1) a notice of proposed procurement be published in the Commerce Business Daily (CBD) at least 15 days prior to issuance of a solicitation for bids; and (2) prospective suppliers must be given at least 30 days from the date of issuance of the solicitation to submit bids or proposals. Thus, United States law requires that a notice of proposed procurement be published a minimum of 45 days prior to the deadline for receipt of bids or proposals. The FAR provides, however, that shorter time-frames may be established for procurements of commercial items or for procurements valued at or below US$100,000. For procurements subject to the GPA, the FAR requires that the time period be not less than 40 days unless the procurement was previously publicized in the CBD not less than 40 days in advance of the deadline. In this circumstance, the time-period may be reduced to not less than 10 days.

State governments have established the necessary solicitation response time limits to conform with the minimum time-limits set forth in the GPA for GPA-covered procurements, either pursuant to state laws or through administrative practice.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The Federal Acquisition Regulation requires that tenders for federal government procurements subject to the FAR be submitted in English.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES -- ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The United States General Accounting Office is authorized under 31 U.S. Code §3552 to hear protests. The GAO has promulgated procedures for the filing of protests; these regulations are found at Title 4 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Part 21. In addition, suppliers and potential suppliers may protest directly to the procuring agency. In 1995, President Clinton ordered all agencies to establish alternative dispute resolution procedures for bid protests in Executive Order No. 12979 (60 Fed. Reg. 55171 (1995)). Thus, all agencies are directed to create systems that allow for inexpensive, informal, procedurally simple, and expeditious resolution of protests. Suppliers may also take protests to United States federal courts under 28 U.S. Code §1491, although most suppliers prefer to use the GAO and procuring agency procedures because they are less costly and less disruptive to the procurement process.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

The United States General Accounting Office (GAO) requires that all protests other than those based on solicitation improprieties must be filed no later than ten (10) calendar days after the protester knew or should have known of the basis of the protest. For any competitive procurement for which debriefings are required, protesters must wait to file their protests until after the debriefing has been held (yet within five calendar days of the debriefing). If a protest is filed before the debriefing, GAO will dismiss the protest without prejudice. Protests based upon alleged improprieties in a solicitation which are apparent prior to bid opening or the time set for receipt of initial proposals, must be filed prior to bid opening or the time set for receipt of initial proposals. In procurements where proposals are requested, alleged improprieties which do not exist in the initial solicitation but which are subsequently incorporated into the solicitation must be protested not later than the next closing time for receipt of proposals following the incorporation.

The time limits established for launching complaints varies among states covered by the GPA. Most have limits of ten (10) calendar days; however, some have limits of up to fourteen (14) calendar days. Some states have specific rules applicable only to contracts covered by the GPA in order to comply with GPA obligations.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The General Accounting Office, an arm of the United States Congress, is vested with the authority to review protests in accordance with Title 31 of the United States Code, §3552. The GAO has promulgated procedures for the filing of protests and they are found at Title 4 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Part 21.

Protesters may request GAO to reconsider decisions based upon new facts, unavailable at the time of the initial protest. Technically, GAO's recommendations themselves are not reviewable by a court. However, protestors may always seek judicial review under the Administrative Procedures Act of actions taken by any United States Government agency, including an agency's implementation of a GAO decision.

States vary with respect to the nature of bid challenge bodies. Authority to review protests in most GPA-covered states is vested either in an independent review entity, or with an independent arm of the procuring agency or the state administrative offices. Decisions are generally subject to judicial review, usually through the state court system.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

See answer to question (ii).

In general, the applicable body of law by reference to which the challenge body in GPA-covered states will examine complaints is the relevant state statutes and rules, and the decisions of the state courts.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Where a protest is filed with the GAO, the contracting agency may be required to withhold award and to suspend contract performance.

When the agency has received notice from the GAO of a protest filed directly with the GAO, a contract may not be awarded unless authorized by the head of the contracting activity and upon a written finding that: (1) urgent and compelling circumstances which significantly affect the interest of the United States will not permit awaiting the decision of the GAO; and (2) award is likely to occur within 30 days of the written finding.

When the agency receives notice of a protest from the GAO within ten days after contract award or within five days after a debriefing, the contracting officer must immediately suspend performance or terminate the awarded contract unless the head of the contracting activity decides that: (1) contract performance will be in the best interests of the United States; or (2) urgent and compelling circumstances that significantly affect the interests of the United States will not permit waiting for the GAO's decision.

Many GPA-covered states allow for the temporary restraint or suspension of the procurement process (including performance of the contract award) pending resolution of bid protests. A few states require an appeal bond to stay a contract award. In addition, courts can generally issue a stay of the procurement process.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

If the GAO determines that a solicitation, cancellation of a solicitation, termination of a contract, proposed award, or award does not comply with statute or regulation, it must recommend that the contracting agency implement any combination of the following remedies:

- refrain from exercising options under the contract;
- terminate the contract;
- recompute the contract;
- issue a new solicitation;
- award a contract consistent with statute and regulation; or

- such other recommendation(s) as GAO determines necessary to promote compliance.

If the GAO determines that a solicitation, proposed award, or award does not comply with statute or regulation, it may recommend that the contracting agency pay the protester the costs of:

- filing and pursuing the protest, including attorneys' fees and consultant and expert witness fees; and
- bid and proposal preparation costs.

Remedies for successful bid challenges in the majority of GPA-covered states include the cancellation and rebidding of the procurement, along with other remedies as provided under relevant state law.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The GAO will generally decide on a protest within 100 days after it is filed. In protests where the GAO uses express option procedures (an accelerated schedule as requested by a party to the protest), the GAO shall issue a decision on a protest within 65 days after it is filed.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

There are no charges for filing a protest with the GAO.

The majority of GPA-covered states do not impose a fee to file a challenge to a contract award. Each party is generally required to pay its own administrative and legal fees, if incurred.

REVIEW OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

UNITED STATES

The present document reproduces the questions put to the delegation of the United States and the responses given and comments made during the review of national implementing legislation at the Committee's meetings of 23 February 1999 and 29 September 2000.¹ The United States' notification of its national implementing legislation in accordance with the Committee's Decision in GPA/1/Add.1 has been circulated in document GPA/23, dated 15 July 1998.

REPLIES TO THE QUESTIONS FROM CANADA AND THE EUROPEAN COMMUNITY

I. GENERAL

Question from Canada

Would the United States please explain how its legislation and regulations ensure non-discriminatory treatment and the elimination of offsets for covered procurement, including the elimination of all Buy America requirements and any provisions for sub-contracting or sub-contracting plans from domestic suppliers?

FAR Section 25.402(a) implements the waiver of most Buy America requirements for suppliers and products of GPA participants and other designated countries. This waiver does not apply to programmes and requirements specifically excluded from GPA coverage, including General Note 1 to Appendix I, relating to small business and minority set-asides, and the notes to Annexes 2 and 3 referred to in the response to Question 1, above.

Question from Canada

In its response to Canada's question concerning non-discriminatory treatment, the United States does not address the elimination of the provisions for subcontracting or subcontracting plans for United States small business. It is noted that United States legislation and regulations require the provision of subcontracting plans for United States small business in GPA-covered contracts. Would the United States explain how these provisions are consistent with Article III of the GATT; and with Article III of the WTO GPA - Non-discrimination and Article XVI of the WTO GPA - Offsets? Please address this issue both in respect of foreign suppliers who are providing goods and services that are not of United States origin and foreign suppliers providing goods and services that are partially of United States origin.

¹ The minutes of these meetings have been circulated in documents GPA/M/11 and 14.

Small and minority business set-asides are excluded from the coverage of the Agreement on Government Procurement under General Note 1 to the United States' Appendix I. We also note that, under the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR 19.702(a)), subcontracting plans are requirements that apply only to "apparently successful offerors" and "bidders selected for award"; they are not factors that influence the initial competitive selection of the "apparently successful offeror".

Question from the European Community

What steps has the United States Government taken to ensure implementation of Article XXIV:7(c) of the GPA, in particular in relation to resisting new restrictions and seeking to eliminate existing ones which (a) Congress, or (b) subfederal authorities covered under Annexes 2 and 3 have imposed, or seek to impose?

In the context of the United States commitment to promoting full and open competition, the Administration consults with the Congress on legislative proposals relating to United States procurement policies and practices. During the negotiations leading to the conclusion of the Government Procurement Agreement and subsequently, the Administration has consulted regularly with relevant state-level agencies and associations and with individual states, as appropriate, on issues related to the implementation of the Agreement.

At a federal level, there are inter-agency procedures which allow the collection of Administration comments on proposed legislation. This is the primary way in which consultation with Congress proceeds on these types of issues. To facilitate implementation by the covered states, the Administration (particularly through the Office of the United States Trade Representative), has established regular consultative procedures with a number of national associations of state representatives. Specifically, it has coordinated with the National Association of State Procurement Officials (NASPO) in producing and disseminating a "Guide for State Procurement Officials Application of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement". NASPO is also consulted in relation to issues raised by the Committee and issues that arise in relation to the implementation of the GPA. Also, there are fairly frequent communications with individual states on an ad hoc basis on either proposed state level legislation or questions relating to other governments' coverage under the GPA.

II. TENDERING PROCEDURES

Question from the European Community

Article VI states that technical specifications prescribed by procuring entities shall, where appropriate, be based on international standards, where such exist. To what extent, if possible expressed as a proportion of all contract awards, do contracting entities refer to international standards, where such standards exist?

There is no way to statistically determine to what extent technical specifications contained in procurement notices or involved in tendering procedures rely on international standards. However, recently, the United States has taken steps to reduce to a minimum procurement and regulatory agencies' reliance on government-unique standards. The National Technology Transfer and Advancement Act of 1995 (PL 104-113) provides that "all Federal agencies and departments shall use technical standards that are developed or adopted by voluntary consensus bodies ...". Such standards include those developed by both domestic and international voluntary consensus standards-setting bodies.

This policy is implemented through Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Circular A-119, dated 10 February 1998, which adds that: "in the interests of promoting trade and implementing the provisions of international treaty agreements ... [agencies] should consider international standards in procurement and regulatory applications" (Section 6.h). Agencies which do not use available voluntary consensus standards must submit to OMB written explanations of the reasons for using government-unique standards (Section 6.b). Circular A-119 also requires that Federal agencies give preference to performance standards when such standards may reasonably be used in lieu of proscriptive standards.

Question from the European Community

To what extent do United States contracting entities resort to limited tendering procedures as provided for in Article XV? How is correct and full application of Article XV monitored?

United States regulations provide that: "with certain limited exceptions ... contracting officers shall promote and provide for full and open competition in soliciting offers and awarding Government contracts". In particular, Part 6 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) prescribes policies and procedures to promote full and open competition in the procurement process and to set out the conditions under which limited tendering is permitted. FAR Part 6 provides that, when procurement officers depart from full and open competition procedures, they must justify their use of this authority. Each justification must contain sufficient facts and rationale to justify the use of the specific authority cited. As a minimum, each justification must include at least twelve elements of specific information about the contracting opportunity and the justification.

Complete statistics on the use of limited tendering procedures for contracts covered by the GPA are not currently available. In recent years, however, available statistics show that contracts awarded under limited tendering procedures have accounted for about 10 per cent of all Federal procurement contracts exceeding US$50,000.

III. PUBLICATION

Question from the European Community

According to Article IX of the GPA, invitations to participate regarding intended procurement shall be published in the appropriate publication listed in Appendix II. We note that only one of at least 37 relevant information sources relating to Annex 2 entities is indicated. The United States is therefore requested to comment on its implementation of the transparency requirements of Article IX. To what extent have efforts been made to bring together in one location on the Internet (for example, through links) all relevant information sources at the federal and subfederal level?

All federal procurement offices, with some exceptions provided for under the GPA, are required to announce proposed procurement actions over US$25,000 in the Commerce Business Daily (CBD). These notices are accessible to all domestic and foreign suppliers either through the printed version of the CBD, or through the CBDNet, a free of charge Internet-based system (www.CBDNet.gpo.gov). In addition, detailed information on procurement policies, practices and procedures and opportunities for all federal entities is available on the National Air and Space Administration's federal procurement "jump-station" (<http://nais.nasa.gov/fedproc/home.html>).

In terms of sub-central publications, the Internet home page of the National Association of State Purchasing Officers (NASPO) contains hyperlinks to the central procurement entities of each of the states covered by the GPA (<http://www.naspo.org/state/stateweb.html>). Those links provide information on state procurement rules and procedures, current procurement opportunities and contract awards.

Question from the European Community

How does the United States Government ensure in its procurement notices, as well as those of covered subfederal entities, that foreign suppliers are made aware that contracts fall under the Agreement and are not subject to restrictions such as Buy America or set-asides?

Section 5.207(e) of the United States Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) provides that, for each announcement of proposed procurement action published in the Commerce Business Daily, one or more standardized "numbered notes" may apply to the proposed contract action. Each numbered note represents specific conditions or information that applies to the proposed contract action. The purpose of the numbered notes is to eliminate the unnecessary duplication of information that appears in various announcements. When a note applies to an announcement, the contracting official references the note at the end of item 17 in the synopsis.

For contracts covered under the GPA, federal procurement offices indicate whether one or more of the items under the acquisition is covered by indicating that Note 12 applies to the procurement.

For all acquisitions covered by the WTO GPA, federal government agencies evaluate offers for an eligible product without regard to the restrictions of the Buy American Act. With regard to set asides, General Note 1 of Appendix I of the United States provides that the GPA will not apply to set asides on behalf of small and minority businesses. For additional information on set asides, please refer to the response to question 7, below.

Question from Canada

Would the United States please explain how its legislation and regulations provide for its notices of proposed procurement to meet each of the requirements of Article IX? Would the United States please explain where the information on coverage of individual procurements by the Agreement, as provided for in paragraph 11 of Article IX, may be located?

Part 5 (Publicizing Contract Actions) of the United States Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) implements the requirements of Article IX. FAR Section 5.207(e) provides that, for each announcement of proposed procurement action published in the Commerce Business Daily, one or more standardized "numbered notes" may apply to the proposed contract action. Each numbered note represents specific conditions or information that applies to the proposed contract action. The purpose of the numbered notes is to eliminate the unnecessary duplication of information that appears in various announcements. When a note applies to an announcement, the contracting official references the note at the end of item 17 in the synopsis.

For contracts covered under the GPA, federal procurement offices indicate whether one or more of the items under the acquisition is covered by indicating that Note 12 applies to the procurement.

IV. COVERAGE

Question from the European Community

The GPA applies to purchases of a number of FSC categories "subject to the United States Government determinations under the provisions of Article XXIII, paragraph 1" (see Annex 1):

- How does the United States Government make such a determination? For example, do guidelines exist in relation to the invocation of national security?

- More specifically, are studies carried out each time Article XXIII, paragraph 1 is invoked to determine whether this is justified?
- Are studies carried out to justify the continuation of such restrictions each time they are renewed?
- When Congress imposes Buy American restrictions in the annual appropriations bills, does DOD/the Administration comment on such provisions before the President signs the bills?

Detailed guidelines for invoking national security exceptions for acquisitions normally subject to the provisions of the GPA are set forth in regulation. For example, Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement (DFARS) subpart 225.403(c)(1)(A) states "If a department or agency considers an individual acquisition of a product to be indispensable for national security or national defense purposes and appropriate for exclusion from the provisions of Federal Acquisition Regulations (FAR) subpart 25.4 (FAR Chapter 25 implements United States international trade commitments), it may submit a request with supporting rationale to the Director of Defense Procurement (USD(A&T)/DP)". The Director of Defense Procurement is the Department of Defense's senior procurement official. Her staff carefully evaluates requests for exemptions from the requirements of FAR 25.4 to ensure that it thoroughly demonstrates national security or national defense considerations are justified. In addition, the request may be reviewed by other agencies as necessary. There are administrative procedures within the federal Administration that provide for coordination in such cases.

In the absence of appropriate documentation, requests for exceptions to the requirements of FAR 25.4 are not approved. As part of normal administrative review procedures, appropriate personnel from the responsible executive agencies may review such exceptions and make appropriate recommendations.

As indicated in the response to question 5 above, the Administration has the opportunity to comment on proposals before the Congress at various points in the legislative cycle.

Question from the European Community

According to General Note 1 to the Appendix I of the United States, the GPA does not apply to set-asides on behalf of small and minority businesses. Please explain how in practice a contract is set aside. How does the United States define a small business? How does the United States define a minority business? Can the United States provide any statistics in relation to purchases from small and minority businesses (for example, what percentage of total above-threshold procurement is set aside for such businesses)?

The regulatory procedures for small business and minority set-asides are set out in FAR Part 19.502-2. Procurements are set aside when there is a reasonable expectation that offers at fair market value will be received from at least two responsible small business concerns. In the absence of that reasonable expectation, the contracts are not to be set aside. That is, if it is impossible to identify small or minority businesses that are interested in bidding on those type of contracts, a contract will not be set aside.

FAR Part 19.001 defines a "small business" as a business, including its affiliates, that is independently owned and operated, not dominant in the field of operation in which it is bidding on government contracts, and qualified as a small business under the size standards and other criteria that are established on a sector-by-sector basis by the Small Business Administration. The size standards are listed in FAR Part 19.002.

The Code of Federal Regulations defines minority businesses as businesses of "disadvantaged individuals" that have been subjected to racial or ethnic prejudice or cultural bias because of their identities as members of groups and without regard to their individual qualities. The social disadvantage must stem from circumstances that are beyond such individuals' control.

Statistics on how the use of set-asides relates to GPA coverage are not yet available. Efforts are being made to develop such statistics. The initial indication is that the amount of set-asides affecting GPA coverage is likely to be small - that is probably in the range of 5 per cent. However, this is currently being verified.

Question from the European Community

Does the Federal Administration, or any other body, monitor or in any other way verify (whether on a routine or an ad hoc basis) that entities covered under Appendix I carry out procurements in accordance with GPA requirements?

Implementation of the GPA is done directly through regulation which has legal effect. All entities that are covered by those regulations must comply. All Federal procurement entities are required to comply with the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR), Defense Federal Acquisition Regulation Supplement (DFARS) and other applicable laws and regulations which implement United States commitments under the GPA and other international agreements.

The Administration is not aware of any compliance problems. If complaints are raised, the Administration will vigorously investigate them. As described in the "Notification of National Implementing Legislation" (GPA/23), any departures from regulatory requirements can be addressed through established review procedures. In addition to performing its bid challenge functions, the United States General Accounting Office (GAO) conducts ad hoc investigations of Federal procurement agencies' implementation of United States law and regulations, including the Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR).

Question from the European Community

For each of the 37 States fully or partially covered in Annex 2, please indicate whether the Federal Administration has taken steps to verify that the procurement regime(s) of that State is in conformity with GPA requirements.

The United States has a regular consultative procedure. As part of the process of preparing the United States "Notification of National Implementing Legislation" (GPA/23), the Administration conducted a survey of the 37 states covered by the GPA in order to assess their implementation of GPA requirements. In addition, the Administration has consulted closely with the National Association of State Procurement Officials (NASPO) and the individual NASPO 37 state representatives on issues related to GPA implementation. This consultation indicated that all 37 States are fully compliant with the requirements of the Agreement.

Detailed information on each of the states is available through the NASPO website. That website provides links to each of the state procurement agencies and each has on their websites, notification of opportunities and also explanation of procurement practices, laws etc.

Question from the European Community

For each of the 37 States fully or partially covered in Annex 2, were any statutory amendments to laws or regulations required to implement the obligations of the GPA?

The Administration is not aware of any legislative changes that were necessary to comply with GPA requirements. Some states have issued policy and administrative guidance to ensure conformance with specific GPA provisions, such as those relating to time-limits in Article XI.

Question from the European Community

In the checklist of issues – questions 6-14 – information with regard to implementation at State level is provided only in the form of a general statement. However, it is our understanding that individual States have autonomy in determining their procurement policies and practices and that considerable variations between them may exist. Please therefore provide responses to questions 6-14 for each of the 37 States covered under Annex 2.

As noted in the response to question 2, such information can be obtained on the individual states' web-sites, which are listed on the NASPO home page (<http://www.naspo.org/state/stateweb.html>) or through the list of NASPO State Directors (<http://www.naspo.org/stdirect.html>).

Question from Canada

Regarding section 1.2 on page 2 of its Notification of National Implementing Legislation, can the United States provide more detail on the circumstances in which federal procurement laws and regulations are applicable to state government, under what authority, and what are the statutory requirements that state governments must meet?

As noted in Section 1.2 of GPA/23, Federal procurement laws and regulations generally do not pertain to state government procurements. However, Federal statutory requirements apply to state government procurements when those procurements involve the expenditure of certain Federal grants or other financial allocations. Those requirements are addressed in Note 1 and Note 5 to Annex 2, and Note 1 to Annex 3.

Question from the European Community

According to note 1 to Annex 2, subfederal entities can apply restrictions that promote general environment quality in that State. The United States is requested to provide examples of such restrictions.

Many US states have established purchasing practices that are intended to promote general environmental quality. A widely utilized example of such a practice is the adoption of procurement laws and regulations that encourage the use of recycled products, or products made with recycled material. Such laws often grant a specific percent price preference for recycled products or products containing recycled materials.

Question from the European Community

Can the United States Government confirm that, while contracts for R&D services are excluded from its offer in Annex 4, the purchase of supplies or the execution of construction services which are necessary for those R&D services to be supplied, are covered by the Agreement? Are there any conditions that have to be met for foreign-owned firms to participate in the award of such supply or construction services contracts?

When the procurement of such supplies or construction services is a component of an R&D contract or a contract for procurement of one of the other services listed in Annex 4, General Note 4 to Appendix I is applicable.

Question from the European Community

Can the United States Government confirm that the United States coverage of contracts for construction services includes supplies which can be considered an intrinsic part of a construction contract and without which the construction could not be completed?

In general, coverage of contracts for construction services includes supplies which can be considered an intrinsic part of a construction contract. However, the United States Appendix I sets out several potential exceptions to this rule which may apply to procurements by Annex 2 and Annex 3 entities, specifically Note 1 and Note 5 to Annex 2 and Note 1 to Annex 3. These relate to the use of funds by sub-central entities.

Question from Canada

Can the United States explain how its legislation and regulations provide for the procurement of architectural services and for the procurement of engineering services to be carried out in accordance with the Agreement on Government Procurement?

United States regulations for the procurement of architectural and engineering services are contained in FAR Subpart 36.6. These regulations require that entities publish a notice of all requirements for architectural or engineering services (36.601-1) and that those services be procured through competitive procedures (36.601-2). Other relevant requirements include provisions to ensure that the evaluation process is objective and based on the technical merits of each proposal, and to ensure that appropriate records of award decisions are maintained.

Questions from Canada

(a) In its response concerning the procurement of architect-engineer services, the United States references FAR 36.602 - Selection of Firms for Architect-Engineer Contracts, subpart 36.602 - 1 (Selection Criteria) makes reference in subpart (a)(5) to "location in the general geographic area of the project and knowledge of the locality of the project...". Would the United States please explain whether it considers this provision to be consistent with the GPA and specifically with GPA Articles III - Non-discrimination and XVI - Offsets, and if so, how?

Sub-part 36.602-1 addresses the unique nature and the particular requirements of architect-engineer service contracts by setting out a number of factors that procuring entities should consider in evaluating the capability of potential suppliers to fulfill such contracts. Decisions are based on an evaluation, on a case-by-case basis, of a range of factors relevant to particular architect-engineering contracts, and do not discriminate among firms which are capable of fulfilling each specific procurement need.

(b) We note FAR subpart 36.104 refers to procurement being carried out under the Brooks Architect-Engineers Act as being outside the scope of FAR 36. Is the Brooks Architect-Engineers Act used for GPA-covered procurement and, if so, would the United States please explain whether it considers the procurement carried out in accordance with the Act to be consistent with the GPA?

The Brooks Architect-Engineers Act requires full and open competition for contracts subject to the Act. The procurements carried out in accordance with this Act are therefore consistent with domestic legal requirements and the requirements of the Agreement on Government Procurement.

V. BID CHALLENGE

Question from Canada

Would the United States explain whether it considers its legislation in 41 U.S.C. section 253 j(d) (1994) to be consistent with the GPA. The section restricts the scope of bid challenge concerning delivery orders under IDIQ's (indefinite delivery indefinite quantity) to instances where there is an increase in "the scope, period, or maximum value of the contract under which the order is issued".

As the United States has explained in consultations relating to the use of IDIQ contracts and similar procurement instruments (see, for example, paragraph 8 of Job No. 2795), task or delivery orders occur after the awarding of an IDIQ contract and are not subject to the tendering, award and challenge procedures of the Agreement on Government Procurement. Of course, the procedures for tendering and the awarding of IDIQ contracts are subject to the relevant Agreement on Government Procurement provisions, including the bid challenge procedures, provided the contract itself is covered.

Although we do not consider individual transactions that follow the award of an IDIQ contract to be subject to the Agreement on Government Procurement provisions for tendering and contract award, we nevertheless provide, as Canada's question notes, challenge procedures relating to changes in the scope, period or maximum value of an IDIQ contract. We believe this is necessary, given the unique nature of IDIQ contracts, in order to strike a balance between ensuring that contract terms are honoured and preserving the efficiency that these types of contracts are intended to provide.

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

On 31 May 2001, a new Act on Public Procurement was passed by the Icelandic Parliament, Act No. 94/2001. This Act had been under preparation for some time. The purpose of the Act is, inter alia, to ensure equal treatment of bidders on public procurement and to encourage active competition and efficiency in public operations. With this new and comprehensive Act on Public Procurement, No. 94/2001, the EU/EEA directives on public procurement were fully implemented into the national legislation. Before that they were published as special regulations based on the general laws on the acceptance of the EEA agreement. Furthermore, in Act No. 94/2001 the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) was transposed into the national legislation.¹

Below is the following list of national legal instruments in force today in the field of public procurement:

1. Act No. 94/2001, on Public Procurement. Lög um opinber innkaup nr. 94/2001.

¹ The complete texts of the basic legislation (laws and regulations) on government procurement, including an English translation of Act No. 94/2001 can be consulted in the WTO Secretariat (Office 3062).

2. Regulation No. 513/2001, on threshold figures regarding public procurement in the EEA and in accordance with the WTO Government Procurement Agreement. Reglugerð nr. 513 um viðmiðunarfjárhæðir vegna opinberra innkaupa á Evrópska efnahagssvæðinu og samkvæmt samningi Alþjóðaviðskiptastofnunarinnar (WTO) um opinber innkaup.
3. Regulation No. 705/2001, on the procurement procedures of entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors. Reglugerð nr. 705/2001 um innkaup stofnana sem annast vatnsveitu, orkuveitu, flutninga og fjarskipti.
4. The Public Projects Procedures Act, No. 84/2001. Lög um skipan opinberra framkvæmda nr. 84/2001.
5. Regulation on Public Projects Procedures, No. 715/2001. Reglugerð um skipulag opinberra framkvæmda nr. 715/2001.
6. Act No. 65/1993, on the execution of tenders. Lög um framkvæmd útboda nr. 65/1993.
7. Parliamentary resolution on membership to the WTO Government Procurement Agreement. Pingsályktun um aðild að samningi um opinber innkaup (Pskj. 871- 565.mál).

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

The entities covered by Annex 1 and Annex 2 in Iceland's offer, that is central and municipality level, are covered by Act No. 94/2001. By definition all central entities that are covered by Act No. 94/2001 are also covered by the GPA.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

The rules on public procurement for entities covered by Annex 3 are stipulated in Regulation No. 705/2001, on the procurement procedures of entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors, that is based on Act No. 94/2001. The Agreement has been implemented in this regulation.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

In regard to implementing the Agreement into laws at the municipality and the central level there are no differences. As stated above, Annex 3 is implemented with Regulation No. 705/2001, with reference to Article 6(2) of Act No. 94/2001.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

According to Article 48 of Act No. 94/2001, a contracting authority may decide that tenders may be submitted in other than written form, if it can be ensured that unauthorised parties do not learn of the contents of the tender and if its reception and reception time can be verified. A purchaser may receive and respond to queries by tenderers as referred to in Article 41 by means other than written, for example, by fax, e-mail, telegram or other equally secure manner. Reference can also be made to Article 18 of Regulation No. 705/2001.

I. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

According to Article 8 in Act No. 94/2001, holders of rights according to the Act are all individuals and legal entities domiciled in any of the Member States in the EEA. The same applies to other individuals and legal entities that have such rights on the basis of international treaties to which the Icelandic Government is a party. Titles 2 and 3 of the Act reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement. It should also be mentioned that Article 11 of the Act stipulates the fundamental rule that in the case of public procurement, contracting authorities shall ensure equal treatment of bidders.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Act No. 94/2001 does not provide for this opportunity. Article 59 of the Act (notification of total procurement) states that contracting authorities shall publish, as early as possible during each financial year, an estimate of total procurement of supplies, services or work, as listed in Annex A, for the ensuing 12 months, if the total amount of procurement reaches the threshold amounts for total procurement published by the Minister in a regulation as provided for in the first Paragraph of Article 56. Further reference is made to Articles 64 and 65 of the Act regarding time-limits. However, Regulation No. 705/2001 provides for this opportunity. Reference is made to Article 12 of Regulation No. 705/2001 which deals with the notification of total procurement.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

This opportunity is provided for in Regulation No. 705/2001. However, Act No. 94/2001 does not provide for this opportunity.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

According to Act No. 94/2001, entities are not allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers. According to Article 18 of Act No. 94/2001, in all other instances than those provided for by Articles 19 (negotiated procedure with prior publication of a contract notice) and 20 (negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice), the open procedure or the restricted procedure shall be applied. A pre-qualification process shall always be applied prior to the restricted procedure. A pre-qualification process is subject to the rules on open procedure as applicable. According to Article 34 of the Act in restricted and negotiated procedures, pre-qualification shall be applied to select those parties invited to submit tenders. In the case of restricted procedures, or negotiated procedures as provided for in Article 19, pre-qualification shall be advertised in a conspicuous manner with the intention of providing all parties who can provide the supply, service or work in question, the opportunity of participating in the pre-qualification. In the case of restricted procedures, the number of participants selected to be invited to tender may be limited. As a rule, participants shall not be fewer than five or more than 20 in number. The number of participants selected must, in all cases, be sufficient to ensure genuine competition in the procedure. If the number of participants to be selected in pre-qualification is to be limited, mention must be made of such in the tender documents. In the case of negotiated procedures as provided for in Article 19, the number of participants to be selected in pre-qualification to submit tenders shall not be fewer than three, as long as the number of participants is sufficient. In restricted or negotiated procedures, the parties selected for participation by a pre-qualification shall be invited to submit a tender in a notification sent to all of them concurrently. The notification shall be accompanied by tender documents and accompanying documentation, where applicable.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Article 19 of the Act deals with negotiated procedure with prior publication of a contract notice. Article 20 of the Act deals with negotiated procedure without prior publication of a contract notice. Article 21 of the Act deals with negotiated procedure in a design contest. Article 22 of the Act deals with framework agreements. Further reference is made to these articles.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

Articles 64 and 65 of the Act contain the time-limits for tendering and delivery. These provisions reflect the various minimum time-limits established in the relevant EU/EEA Public Procurement Directives, as well as the time-limits set out in the Agreement (GPA). Further reference is made to Articles 64 and 65 of the enclosed Act.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

According to Article 23 of the Act, the following shall be included in tender documents, as applicable: 1. Language or languages in which the tenders shall be submitted. Usually the tenders are submitted in Icelandic but in English when dealing with larger procurements, e.g. within the EEA.

II. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Articles 75-82 of the Act concern the Tender Complaints Committee. The role of the Tender Complaints Committee is to resolve promptly and impartially complaints by individuals and legal entities concerning claimed violations of this Act and rules adopted pursuant to it. The Committee shall work independently. Its rulings and decisions as provided for in this Act may not be referred to other public authorities, cf. Article 75. The challenge procedure is laid down in Articles 76-81 of the Act. Finally, Article 82 of the Act states that the Tender Complaints Committee may adopt detailed rules, which must be approved by the Minister of Finance, on the submission of documents, procedures before the Committee and publication of its rulings.²

² A copy of these rules can also be consulted in the WTO Secretariat (Office 3062).

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

Article 78 of the Act deals with time-limit for lodging a complaint. According to Article 78(1), a complaint must be lodged in writing with the Tender Complaints Committee within four weeks of the complainant having learned, or having been able to learn, of the decision, action or failure to act which he considers a violation of his rights.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Tender Complaints Committee is responsible for the challenge procedure. As stipulated in Article 75(1) of the Act, the Tender Complaints Committee shall be comprised of three persons appointed by the Minister of Finance for a four-year term. Alternates shall be appointed in the same manner. The chairman of the Committee and alternate must fulfil the legal requirements made of district court judges. Other members of the Committee must have comprehensive commercial knowledge and experience. Committee members must be independent of interests of the state or other public authorities. As stated previously, the Committee shall work independently. Its rulings and decisions as provided for in this Act may not be referred to other public authorities. However, the Committees decisions are subject to judicial review in front of the national district courts (Héraðsdómur) and the Supreme court (Hæstiréttur).

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Tender Complaints Committee works in accordance with Act No. 94/2001 and examines complaints with reference to Act No. 94/2001 and subsequent secondary legislation on public procurement. Reference is made to the list of national legal instruments in force today in the field of public procurement. It should also be mentioned that it is stated in Article 79(5) of the Act that handling of questions (before the Committee) shall in other respects comply with the Public Administration Act, No. 37/1993.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?
- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Article 80 of the Act authorises a temporary suspension of contract procedures. This is regarded as a rapid interim measure to preserve commercial opportunities. The Article stipulates that if the Committee is of the opinion that there is considerable likelihood of a violation against the Act, or rules adopted pursuant to it, in a certain procurement it may, at the demand of a complainant, suspend the tender or awarding of the contract until a final decision has been reached on the complaint. The party against whom the complaint is directed shall as a rule be given a brief time-limit for expressing an opinion concerning possible temporary suspension of the tender or awarding of a contract. Derogation may be made from this provision in the case of a clear and obvious violation of this Act or rules adopted pursuant to it. A party involved may demand that the Committee give written grounds for a decision as provided for in this Article if such grounds did not accompany the decision when notice of it was given.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

Article 81 of the Act deals with the remedies available to the Tender Complaints Committee. The Article states that the Committee may with a ruling invalidate or alter a decision by the contracting authority for public procurement, cf. however Article 83. The Committee may instruct the contracting authority to tender certain procurement, advertise a tender once again or alter a tender notice, description of tender or other aspect of tender documents. The Committee may express its opinion on the liability of the contracting authority for damages towards the complainant, but shall not express itself concerning the amount of damages. The Committee may decide that the party against whom a complaint is directed shall pay the complainant the cost of lodging the complaint. If a complaint is clearly unjustified or lodged for the purpose of delaying the implementation of public procurement the Committee may rule that the complainant pay legal costs of the case, which shall accrue to the national treasury. If a ruling of the Committee as provided for in the first paragraph is not complied with, it may levy per diem fines on the party at which the ruling is directed. Fines may amount to up to ISK 500,000 for each day which elapses without compliance with the Committee's ruling. If a ruling is referred to a court the per diem fines shall not commence until final judgement is pronounced. Per diem fines as provided for in the fourth paragraph shall accrue to the national treasury. Per diem fines and a ruling on legal costs, as provided for in the third paragraph, are enforceable by execution without prior court judgement. Article 84 of the Act furthermore stipulates liability for damages.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The time-periods for the stages of the challenge procedure are laid down in Articles 78-81 of the Act. As stated previously, Article 78(1) stipulates that a complaint must be lodged in writing with the Tender Complaints Committee within four weeks of the complainant having learned, or having been able to learn, of the decision, action or failure to act which he considers a violation of his rights. Article 79(1) states that the complainant shall as a rule be given a brief time-limit in which to express himself on the comments from the respondent. Article 79(4) states that the Complaints Committee must deliver its ruling on a complaint as rapidly as possible, and no later than one month after it receives the documents referred to in Articles 78 and 79.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

It is free of charge to conduct a challenge procedure. However, it is stated in Article 81 of the Act that the Committee may decide that the party against whom a complaint is directed shall pay the complainant the cost of lodging the complaint. If a complaint is clearly unjustified or lodged for the purpose of delaying the implementation of public procurement the Committee may rule that the complainant pay legal costs of the case, which shall accrue to the national treasury.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Liechtenstein

The following communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of the Principality of Liechtenstein in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996, relating to the procedures for the notification of national implementing legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. Summary of Liechtenstein's Legislation on Public Procurement

Liechtenstein's international obligations in the area of public procurement have been implemented in its national legislation by the following acts:

- Law on Public Procurement: Gesetz über die Vergabe öffentlicher Bau-, Liefer- und Dienstleistungsaufträge (Gesetz über das öffentliche Auftragswesen, ÖAWG), LGBl.¹ 1998 No. 135, LR² 172.051.
- Regulation on Public Procurement: Verordnung über die Vergabe öffentlicher Bau-, Liefer- und Dienstleistungsaufträge (Verordnung über das öffentliche Beschaffungswesen, ÖAWV), LGBl. 1998 No. 189³, LR 172.051.1.

Both law and regulation entered into force on 1 January 1999.

These provisions not only implement the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA)⁴ but also the relevant directives of the European Economic Area (EEA). To a large extent, GPA rules coincide with those of the EEA.

The Law and Regulation cover procurements above and below thresholds. In the GPA context, the procurement rules apply to procurements above the thresholds. The thresholds currently amount to:

Annex 1

Goods	Sw F 248,950
Services	Sw F 248,950
Construction	Sw F 9,575,000

Annex 2

Goods	Sw F 383,000
Services	Sw F 383,000
Construction	Sw F 9,575,000

Annex 3

Goods	Sw F 766,000
Services	Sw F 766,000
Construction	Sw F 9,575,000

The thresholds have to be published according to Article 4 of the Law on Public Procurement:

- Publication of the thresholds: Kundmachung vom 10. Oktober 2000 der Schwellenwerte nach dem Abkommen über den Europäischen Wirtschaftsraum (EWRA) sowie nach dem Übereinkommen über das öffentliche Beschaffungswesen (WTO-Übereinkommen), LGBl. 2000 No. 196⁵, LR 172.051.11.

² Systematic collection of the Liechtenstein legislation.

³ Copy available for consultation in the WTO Secretariat.

⁴ The GPA entered into force for Liechtenstein on 18 September 1997. See also the publication of the Agreement in LGBl. 1998 No. 8, copy available for consultation in the WTO Secretariat.

⁵ Copy available for consultation in the WTO Secretariat.

The Law on Public Procurement (ÖAWG) guarantees non-discriminatory access to public procurement markets in Liechtenstein for Liechtenstein suppliers and suppliers established in a contracting party to the GPA or other countries as far as they grant reciprocity and in accordance with applicable international obligations (i.e. GPA, EEA or special agreements between Liechtenstein and another country). See also the answer to question 6 of the checklist.

The following procedures are foreseen:

- Open procedure: all interested suppliers may submit a tender.
- Restricted procedure: upon public invitation, all interested suppliers may submit an application for participation. Participation is limited to a certain number of selected suppliers (at least five, but not more than twenty) which are invited to submit a tender.
- Negotiated procedure: at least three interested suppliers (if possible) are invited for negotiations on a contract. Effective competition has to be granted among the invited suppliers.

Procurements above the thresholds have to be published and procured in an open or restricted procedure. A negotiated procedure is permissible in particular situations (see the answer to question 10 of the checklist).

The award is given to the economically most advantageous offer, specified by objective criteria which must already be included in the publication or in the tender documentation. To measure the value of an offer, criteria such as delivery dates, quality, price, efficiency, overhead expenses, service to clients or environmental impact can be considered.

The possibility to challenge a procurement is given. A tenderer whose offer has been rejected may claim damages, if the rejection was inconsistent with the regulations.

The Regulation on Public Procurement (ÖAWV) regulates details of the provisions contained in the corresponding law, such as valuation of contracts, procurement procedures (publication, technical specifications, types of procedures time-limits), award of contracts and provisions on information and statistical reporting.

4. Responses to Checklist of Issues

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

Liechtenstein follows the monistic theory with respect to the relation of national and international law. The Agreement was, however, implemented through a Law on Public Procurement, a Regulation on Public Procurement and the Publication of the thresholds.⁶ The national implementing legislation aimed at establishing a single, transparent and user-friendly procurement regime in accordance with all international obligations of Liechtenstein in this area.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

No. The above-mentioned provisions cover state level and sub-central levels, i.e. local entities.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

The national legislation mentioned in the answer to question 1 also applies to Annex 3 entities.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The implementing legislation is the same for state and local levels and covers also Annex 3 entities.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Every contract above the relevant thresholds has to be published in the database Tenders Electronic Daily (TED) according to the EEA Agreement. Besides that, information technology is not much used yet.

⁶ Gesetz über die Vergabe öffentlicher Bau-, Liefer- und Dienstleistungsaufträge (Gesetz über das öffentliche Auftragswesen, ÖAWG), LGBl. (Liechtenstein Law Gazette) 1998 No. 135.

Verordnung über die Vergabe öffentlicher Bau-, Liefer- und Dienstleistungsaufträge (Verordnung über das öffentliche Beschaffungswesen, ÖAWV). LGBl. 1998 No. 189.

Kundmachung vom 10. Oktober 2000 der Schwellenwerte nach dem Abkommen über den Europäischen Wirtschaftsraum (EWRA) sowie nach dem Übereinkommen über das öffentliche Beschaffungswesen (WTO-Übereinkommen), LGBl. 2000 No. 196 (most recent publication).

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

Article 3 of the Law on Public Procurement (ÖAWG):

The Article says that if according to the international law reciprocity is granted, national and foreign suppliers are to be treated equally. Cases in which an international obligation for equal treatment exists without reciprocity shall remain reserved.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

For public procurement above thresholds, tender notices have to be published. According to Article 14 of the Law, such a notice shall contain in particular the following information:

- name and address of the procuring entity;
- subject-matter of the contract;
- address and time-limits for the submission of tenders;
- type of procedure;
- address(es) where documents relating to the contracts may be requested;
- if the contract falls under the WTO GPA Agreement.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Pre-information notices are published in addition to invitation to tender notices. Pre-information notices are not binding, but for information purposes only (Article 14 of the Regulation). In works contracts, contracting entities publish indicative notices containing the essential characteristics of the works contracts they intend to award. In services and supplies contracts, contracting entities shall make known through indicative notices to be published as soon as possible after the beginning of the budgetary year, the intended total procurement during the next 12 months.

According to Article 16 of the Law/Article 17 of the Regulation, different forms for a call for competition are possible in the sectors (water, energy, transport and telecommunication): a notice stating the intention to award a particular contract, a pre-information notice or a notice on the existence of a qualification system. Details with regard to the establishment of a qualification system are regulated in Article 38 of the Regulation.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

In the sectors, contracting entities may establish and operate a system of qualification of suppliers, contractors and service providers (Article 43 of the Law, Article 38 of the Regulation). Suppliers, contractors and service providers must at any time have the possibility to ask for an inclusion in such a list. The system operates on the basis of objective criteria and rules. Updating of the rules is possible. Refusal of qualification or bringing the qualification to an end must be reasoned and applicants or service providers have to be notified. If the list is not limited to a period of three years, the list and conditions to be fulfilled and the methods of verification of those conditions have to be published annually. At present, no entity in the utilities sector has established a qualification system.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

According to Article 22, paragraph 2 of the Law, entities may use the negotiated procedure, but only in particular situations. These situations are specified in Article 23 and especially Article 24, paragraphs 2 and 3 of the Regulation:

With prior publication of a contract notice:

- in case of irregular tenders or tenders which are unacceptable under Liechtenstein law in response to an open or restricted procedure;
- in exceptional cases, when the nature of the works/services or the risks attaching thereto do not permit overall pricing;
- when the works involved are carried out for the purpose of research, experiment and development;
- when the nature of services to be procured is such that contract specifications cannot be established with sufficient precision to permit the award of the contract by using open or restricted procedures.

Without prior publication of a contract notice:

- in the absence of tenders or suitable tenders in response to an open or restricted procedure insofar as the original terms for the contract are not substantially altered;
- when for technical or artistic reasons, or for reasons connected with the protection of exclusive rights, there is only one supplier or contractor;
- when it is strictly necessary for reasons of extreme urgency brought about by unforeseeable events;
- for new works/services consisting of the repetition of similar works/services entrusted to the contractor/service provider to which the same contracting authorities awarded an earlier contract, under certain conditions;
- for additional works/services (up to a limit of 50 per cent of the amount of the main contract) becoming necessary for the carrying out of the work/for the performance of the service through unforeseen circumstances, if the non-separation is justified by technical or economic reasons;
- when the products involved are manufactured for the purpose of research, experiment, study and development;
- for additional deliveries by the original supplier, justified by the risk of technical incompatibility of disproportionate technical difficulties;

- when the contract follows a design contest and must be awarded to the successful candidate or one of the successful candidates.

In the sectors, entities have free choice between open, restricted and negotiated procedures (see Article 22, paragraph 4 of the Law).

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The Liechtenstein legislation has established time-limits as set out in the EEA and GPA Agreements (see Articles 30 et seq. of the Regulation):

In open procedures, the time-limit for receipt of tenders shall not be less than 52 days from the date of dispatch of the notice. This time-limit may be reduced to 36 days if a pre-information notice according to Article 14 of the Regulation has been published (only for works and services).

In restricted procedures and negotiated procedures, the time-limit for receipt of requests to participate shall not be less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice. The time-limit for receipt of tenders may not be less than 40 days from the date of dispatch of the written invitation. This time-limit may be reduced to 26 days if a pre-information notice (indicative notice to make known the contracts they intend to award, according to Article 14 of the Regulation) has been published. In case of justified urgency, those time-limits may be reduced to not less than 15 days for the receipt of request, and not less than 10 days for the receipt of tenders.

In the sectors, the time-limits for open procedures are the same as indicated above. In restricted and negotiated procedures, the time-limit for receipt of requests to participate shall be, as a general rule, not less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice, but in no case less than 22 days. The time-limit for receipt of tenders may be fixed by mutual agreement between the contracting entity and the selected candidates. If such an agreement is not reached, the time-limit shall be, as a general rule, 22 days, but under no circumstances less than 10 days from the date of the invitation to tender.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The legislation does not exclude that tenders may be submitted in another language other than German. It is up to the entities to define which other languages are accepted (see Article 15, paragraph 2 lit. i of the Law). In practice, such other languages might be English or French.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Any supplier who participates in a particular public procurement procedure may complain about alleged breaches of the rules.

After the award of the contract, the entity has to inform the winning tenderer and the unsuccessful tenderers within 14 days (Article 41 of the Regulation) by an award note (Vergabevermerk, see Article 46 of the Law). This note has to contain the following information:

- the name of the contracting entity;

- the award of the contract;
- the value of the winning award;
- the type of procedure;
- a short reasoning for the award, if necessary;
- the procedure for the service of an award order (Vergabeverfügung).

Unsuccessful tenderers may request an award order. Such a request has to be made not later than 10 days after the service of the award note (Article 47 of the Law).

According to Article 53 of the Law, complaints against decisions or orders of contracting entities may be lodged with the Government within 14 days from the service. If the awarding entity is the Government, the complaint has to be lodged with the Administrative Tribunal (Verwaltungsbeschwerdeinstanz).

Only negative damages (damnum emergens) may be claimed.

Article 55 of the Law sets out the necessary contents of the petition of appeal, such as the name of the contracting entity, the procedure in question and the decision which is the subject of appeal, a statement of the facts of the case including the interest of the appellant in the conclusion of the contract, information on the alleged incurred or imminent damage and the reasons for the alleged unlawfulness.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

According to Article 53 of the Law it is 14 days.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

If the awarding entity is not the Government itself, the first appellate instance is the Government.

A decision by the Government is subject to appeal before the Administrative Tribunal (Verwaltungsbeschwerdeinstanz). The Administrative Tribunal is a court which consists of a chairperson, a vice-chairperson and four appeal judges and their substitutes elected by the Parliament. The chairperson is to be appointed by the Prince on the proposal of the Parliament.

- How are its members selected?

See above.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

Decisions of the Government are subject to appeal before the Administrative Tribunal. Its decisions are final. Complaints against alleged breaches of rights accorded by the constitution are to be lodged with the State Tribunal (Staatsgerichtshof).

- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

Not applicable.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

It is the Law and Regulation on Public Procurement, interpreted in the light of applicable international law, and the general procedural provisions contained in the Administrative Procedure Act (Gesetz über die allgemeine Landesverwaltungspflege (die Verwaltungsbehörden und ihre Hilfsorgane, das Verfahren in Verwaltungssachen, das Verwaltungszwangs- und Verwaltungsstrafverfahren), LVG, LGBl. 1922 No. 24, LR 172.020).

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

According to Articles 58 and 59 of the Law, a supplier who has the right to appeal may apply for provisional measures which include the possibility to ask for a suspension of the procurement process. An interim injunction may lead to the suspension of the procurement process if the interest of the appellant outweighs the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The Government or the Administrative Tribunal may nullify decisions or orders of contracting entities which are found to be contrary to the applicable legislation (see Article 60 of the Law). They can also instruct the concerned entity to eliminate certain discriminatory conditions.

Compensation for loss and damages suffered may be claimed (Article 61 of the Law). Only expenses related to the procurement and challenge procedures are covered.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

Information on time-periods for the stages of the challenge process are difficult to obtain. There are no fixed time-limits for the different stages of the process.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

In proceedings before the Government, the costs depend on the complexity of the case according to which the fee may be fixed between Sw F 150 and 300.

In proceedings before the Administrative Tribunal, the costs depend on the value in dispute (court fees and lawyer's tariff).

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Singapore

The following communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of the Republic of Singapore in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996, relating to the procedures for the notification of national implementing legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. Summary of Legislation

A. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ENTITIES

A gazette dated 17 October 1997 gave notification that the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement came into force on 20 October 1997. Subsequently, the President of the Republic of Singapore gave assent to the Government Procurement Act 1997.

The Act sets out the Government Procurement Adjudication Tribunal for the purposes of hearing and determining challenges related to government procurement. The Tribunal consists of a Commissioner and a Deputy Commissioner, supported by a Registrar. The Commissioner, Deputy Commissioner and Registrar are appointed by the Minister for Finance.

The Tribunal is empowered to hear challenge proceedings from suppliers. The Act provides for lodgement of a Notice of Challenge, hearing of the challenge and the issue of a suspension order. The Tribunal shall issue its determination on a challenge within 45 days from the date of lodgement of the Notice of Challenge, unless there are exceptional circumstances justifying an extension of time.

The Act empowers the Tribunal to call witnesses, admit evidence and conduct proceedings. The Act also provides for the submission of information and the retention of documents.

B. SUB-CENTRAL ENTITIES

Singapore is a city-state and does not have any sub-central entities.

C. LEGISLATION ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

A copy of the Act is attached.

2. Contact Point

Requests and clarifications from another Party concerning Singapore's legislation shall be addressed to:

Ministry of Finance
Expenditure and Procurement Policies Unit
100, High Street 03-01
The Treasury
Singapore 179434

Tel: (65) 800-272-0118 (toll-free)

Fax: (65) 3328-509

3. Responses to Checklist of Issues

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

It has been transposed into national law; at the same time it also applies directly. In other words, the procedures for a bid challenge are specifically spelt out in legislation, whilst a copy of the GPA plus Singapore's offer has been circulated to all GPA-covered entities in Singapore for compliance. A copy of the legislation is attached.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Singapore does not have sub-central entities.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Annex 3 entities follow the same procurement regime prescribed by the Ministry of Finance, Singapore.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

None. They all follow the same procurement regime.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Tender notices and tender awards information can be found at <http://www.gebiz.gov.sg>.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

The Agreement in its entirety applies to Singapore's procurement regime (see the notification attached).

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

The Agreement in its entirety applies to Singapore's procurement regime (see the notification attached).

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

The Agreement in its entirety applies to Singapore's procurement regime (see the notification attached). In practice, however, as can be seen from the GeBIZ Internet website, open tenders are the norm.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

Singapore does not maintain a permanent list of suppliers from which contracting authorities choose from for selective tendering procedures. Contracting authorities who wish to adopt selective tendering procedures have to do so on a contract-by-contract basis.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

GPEs are discouraged from negotiations with tenderers, especially over price. Minor variations in tender specifications, mostly to take into account practical difficulties in implementing complex solutions, are allowed.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The Agreement in its entirety applies to Singapore's procurement regime (see the notification attached).

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

Tenders are submitted in English (mandatory) and may or may not also be submitted in one of the other three official national languages (Malay, Tamil, and Chinese).

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Singapore's challenge procedures are found in the Government Procurement Act 1997 and in the accompanying Government Procurement (Challenge Proceedings) Regulations. The Government Procurement Adjudication Tribunal was established in accordance with the Act.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

The time-limit to launch a complaint is 15 days from the time the supplier knew or should have known of the basis of the protest.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Tribunal has the authority to decide how the hearing of a challenge is conducted and to decide how the case is disposed. It is an independent review body. The Commissioner and Deputy Commissioner of the Tribunal are appointed by the Minister for Finance, and the Registrar of the Tribunal is the Ministry of Finance.

If any of the contracting entities is not satisfied with a determination or order of the Tribunal, either party may challenge the decision of the Tribunal in Court.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The applicable law is Singapore law.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Pending the disposal of the challenge by the Tribunal, the complainant may apply to the Tribunal for a suspension order on the award of the contract. The Tribunal has 45 days from the date the Notice of Challenge is lodged to issue its determination.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

If the Tribunal determines that any part of the tender process did not comply with the provisions of the GPA, it may order the contracting authority to do one or more of the following:

- (a) set aside the decision or action taken;
 - (b) make a decision or action in accordance with appropriate procurement regulations in place of what had been set aside;
 - (c) amend the procurement document;
 - (d) pay the costs of participation in the qualification of suppliers or the costs of tender preparations.
- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

On receipt of a Notice of Challenge from any supplier, the Registrar will forward a copy of the Notice to the contracting entity concerned and arrange a hearing, giving 14 days notice of the hearing to the applicant and the contracting entity concerned.

At the same time, the supplier may, at any time after he has lodged a Notice of Challenge, apply to the Tribunal for a suspension order pending the disposal of the challenge.

The Tribunal shall issue its determination on a challenge within 45 days of the lodgement of the Notice of Challenge.

The Registrar must send certified copies of the determination or order to the applicant and the relevant contracting authority within seven days of making the determination or order.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The fee for bringing a challenge before the Tribunal is S$500, payable to the Registrar. In addition to this, there is a refundable deposit of S$5,000, which is released to the applicant upon completion of the proceedings.

(3) For the purposes of subsection (2)(e), the Tribunal shall take into account the date the applicant became aware, or ought reasonably to have become aware, of the facts constituting the basis of the challenge, and may, in granting any permission to the applicant to proceed with the challenge, impose such conditions as it considers just on the applicant.

(4) If the applicant fails to comply with any of the conditions imposed by the Tribunal under subsection (3), the Tribunal may declare the challenge invalid.

Suspension order

16. (1) The applicant may, at any time after he has —
- (a) lodged the Notice of Challenge with the Registrar;
 - (b) paid the fee referred to in section 12(1)(b) and the deposit to the Registrar; and
 - (c) served the Notice of Challenge on the relevant contracting authority, apply to the Tribunal for an order to suspend, pending the disposal of the challenge —

- (2) The Tribunal may, in its discretion, make the order either unconditionally or upon such terms and conditions as the Tribunal thinks just.
- (3) The Tribunal shall not make an order under this section if —
- (a) such suspension is against the public interest; or
 - (b) the contract referred to in subsection (1)(i) has already been awarded at the date of hearing of the application for the order.

(4) If the Tribunal refuses to make an order under this section, the Tribunal shall give the reasons for its refusal in writing.

(5) Where an order under this section has been made, the contracting authority concerned may, at any time before the determination on the challenge referred to in section 18 is made, apply to the Tribunal for the order to be varied or rescinded.

(6) Subject to subsection (7), the Tribunal may, in its discretion, vary or rescind the order either unconditionally or upon such conditions as it thinks just.

(7) The Tribunal shall rescind the order if the continuance of such suspension is against the public interest.

(8) The Minister may issue a certificate that such suspension, or the continuance of such suspension, in a particular case is against the public interest, and such a certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the matters so certified.

Onus of proof, etc.

17. (1) The onus of proving the breach of duty which is the subject of the challenge shall be on the applicant.

(2) Except with the consent of the Tribunal and in accordance with such conditions as the Tribunal may determine, the applicant may not, at the hearing of the challenge, rely on any breach of duty other than that identified in the Notice of Challenge.

Determination on challenge

18. (1) The Tribunal shall issue its determination on a challenge within 45 days from the date of lodgement of the Notice of Challenge by the applicant unless there are exceptional circumstances justifying an extension of time.

(2) Subsection (1) shall not apply if the challenge has been disposed of under section 15.

(3) If the Tribunal makes a determination in favour of the applicant, the Tribunal may do one or more of the following:

- (a) order any decision or action taken by the contracting authority concerned in relation to the procurement which is the subject of the challenge to be set aside;
- (b) order the contracting authority to make a decision or take action, in accordance with the applicable regulations made under section 6, in place of that which has been set aside under paragraph (a);
- (c) order the contracting authority to amend any document pertaining to the procurement;
- (d) order the contracting authority to pay to the applicant the costs of participation in the qualification of suppliers, or the costs of tender preparation, reasonably incurred by the applicant for the purposes of the procurement.

(4) An order made under subsection (3)(b) may specify the decision or action which the contracting authority is to make or take.

- (5) Notwithstanding subsection (3), if —
- (a) the Tribunal makes a determination in favour of the applicant; and
 - (b) the contract for the procurement has already been awarded, the Tribunal may only —

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Japan

The attached communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of Japan in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

Government Procurement in Japan has placed no restrictions on place of origin or nationality of supplier, and has been carried out on the principle of non-discrimination, and in principle on a basis of open tendering. As a Party to the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (hereinafter "the Agreement"), Japan is implementing government procurement through fair, open and transparent procedures.

Central government entities which procure in accordance with the provisions of the Agreement are 32 state organs, all their internal sub-divisions, independent organs, attached organizations and other organizations and local branch offices provided for in the National Government Organization Law. All these entities are covered by the Accounts Law and relevant regulations. Sub-central government entities listed in Annex 2 of the Agreement comprise 47 prefectures and 12 cities designated by the Cabinet Order. These entities are governed by the Local Autonomy Law and relevant regulations. All of these laws and regulations are consistent with the provisions of the Agreement.

With regard to Annex 3 entities which include 70 public corporations, procedures of procurement contracts covered by the Agreement are introduced into their accounting or internal statutes. Consistency of their procurement procedures with the Agreement is secured through responsible ministers' control over the corporations.

The following is an outline of the major relevant laws and regulations.

A. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT

- (a) "The Accounts Law" (Law No.35, March 31, 1947)

This Law stipulates the basic contents of the nation's accounting duties pertaining to contractual duties, contractual methods, tendering methods, contractual forms and other matters.

- (b) "Cabinet Order Concerning the Budget, Auditing and Accounting" (Imperial Ordinance 165, April 30, 1947)

"Special Provisions for the Cabinet Order Concerning the Budget, Auditing and Accounting" (Imperial Ordinance 558, November 22, 1946)

"Regulations on the Management of Contract Administration" (Ministry of Finance Ordinance No.52, August 20, 1962)

This Cabinet Order stipulates the detail of the rules and procedures provided for in the Accounts Law, including the conditions for the use of selective tendering and single tendering.

- (c) "Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services" (Cabinet Order No.300, November 18, 1980)

This Cabinet Order provides for special rules and procedures necessary to implement the Agreement in addition to the laws and regulations mentioned in (1) and (2) above.

- (d) "Ministerial Ordinance Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services" (Ministry of Finance Ordinance No.45, November 18, 1980)

This Ministerial Ordinance is applied to the procurement contracts subject to the provisions of the Cabinet Order referred to in (3) above. The Ordinance stipulates such specifics as information to be published in "Kanpo" in the qualification procedures, matters to be described in tender documentation and matters regarding the notification of the determination of successful tenderers.

- (e) "On the establishment of the Office of Government Procurement Review (Cabinet Decision of 1 December 1995)

The Office of Government Procurement Review (hereinafter the "OGPR") was established within the Prime Minister's Office to implement the provisions of the Agreement on Government Procurement regarding challenge procedures. The Government Procurement Review Board (the "GPRB") held under the OGPR processes and considers complaints in a fair and neutral manner with regard to the procurement by the entities other than sub-central government entities. The GPRB reviews complaints in accordance with the specific procedures set out by the OGPR by applying the provisions of the Agreement and the measures otherwise designated by the head of the OGPR.

B. SUB-CENTRAL ENTITIES COVERED BY THE AGREEMENT

- (a) "Local Autonomy Law" (Law No.67, April 17, 1947)

This Law stipulates an overview of the matters concerning the organization and operation of local government bodies (including the rules on procurement contracts) and the basic relations between the central government and the local governments.

- (b) "Ordinance for Enforcement of the Local Autonomy Law" (Cabinet Order No.16, May 3, 1947)

This Ordinance provides for the detailed rules and procedures to implement the provisions of the Local Autonomy Law, including matters on procurement contracts.

- (c) "Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services in Local Government Entities" (Cabinet Order No.372, November 1, 1995)

This Cabinet Order establishes special rules and procedures necessary to implement the Agreement on Government Procurement in addition to the laws and regulations mentioned in (1) and (2) above.

- (d) To implement the provisions of the Agreement with respect to challenge procedures, prefectural governments and designated cities have established their respective procedures to process complaints regarding the procurement subject to the Agreement.

2. CONTACT POINT

Requests from another Party concerning Japan's national legislation shall be addressed to:

First International Organizations Division
Economic Affairs Bureau
Ministry of Foreign Affairs

3. RESPONSES TO THE CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

A. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The Agreement has been transposed into relevant national laws and regulations with regard to central and sub-central government entities. All of those laws and regulations are consistent with the provisions of the Agreement. With regard to Annex 3 entities, the Agreement also has been transposed into their respective accounting or internal statutes whose consistency with the Agreement is secured through responsible ministers' control over the corporations.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

In Japan, government procurement is conducted based on procurement contracts entered into by each procuring entity in a decentralized manner. Sub-central government entities as specified in Annex 2 of the Agreement are, therefore, autonomous from central government in the implementation of the Agreement.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Public corporations or government-related corporations covered by the Agreement are listed in Annex 3 of the Agreement. Annex 3 entities are autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement. They include 70 corporations, as of October 1, 1999. These entities are established by relevant laws following an inspection by the Management and Co-ordination Agency, and are endowed with proper legal personality. Laws establishing these corporations provide for ministerial general control over the entities. Consistency of the procedures for procurement contracts with the Agreement is therefore secured through the ministerial general control over them.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The central level, the sub-central level and Annex 3 entities have their respective procurement procedures. However, there are no significant differences in their procurement procedures which are fully consistent with the provisions of the Agreement.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

With a view to facilitating access to information on government procurement, an electronic data base containing the information published in accordance with paragraphs 1 and 9 of Article IX, paragraph 1 of Article XVIII and paragraph 1 of Article XIX, is available, either at such places as local branch offices and Business Support Center of Japan External Trade Organization (JETRO) Information Service Division or through on-line information and data base retrieval services (<http://www.jetro.go.jp/>).

B. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

The procedures regarding government procurement under the Accounts Law do not provide for the restriction of the qualification for participation in tendering procedures on the basis of the nationality of the suppliers, or the country of production of the good or provision of service. Therefore, there are no provisions in our legislation which restrict the participants on the basis of the nationality or the country of production. Our legislation observes the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of the Agreement.

The Local Autonomy Law and relevant regulations regarding sub-central government entities, from a viewpoint of ensuring fairness and strict neutrality, equal opportunity and economic advantage, basically provide for such procurement procedures in line with the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of the Agreement. Furthermore, the Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services in Local Government Entities prohibits sub-central government entities from restricting the participants in tendering procedures on the basis of the place of their business offices.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

According to the implementing legislation with respect to central government entities, the invitation to participate shall take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. Where specified procurement contract shall be subject to open tendering procedures, Article 74 of the Budget Settlement of Account and Accounting Regulations as read in accordance with Article 5 of the Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services, which provides that the information of the procurement shall be notified by Kanpo not later than forty days from the day before the deadline for submission of tenders.

Where selective tendering procedures are to be adopted for a specified procurement contract, Article 7 of the Cabinet Order provides that a notice of the proposed procurement shall be published as in cases covered by Article 74 of the Regulations as read in accordance with Article 5 of the Cabinet Order.

Article 167-6 of the Ordinance for Enforcement of the Local Autonomy Law, as well as Articles 6 and 7 of the Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services in Local Government Entities, provide for the qualification for the participation in tendering procedures, those items to be noticed regarding the tendering procedures, and others.

These provisions premise that the invitation to participate in tendering procedures takes the form of a notice of proposed procurement.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Our implementing legislation does not provide for such opportunity for sub-central government entities as well as central government entities.

Annex 3 entities follow the same guidance in noticing procurement procedures, including such items as a notice of planned procurement, as the central government entities do.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

Article 4 of the Cabinet Order and Article 95 of the Regulations provide that the contracting officer, etc., must draw up a list of parties who meet the qualifications for participation in selective tendering procedures when the conclusion of a specific procurement contract by selective tendering procedures is foreseen. Thus permanent lists of suppliers are used in the case of selective tendering procedures.

Sub-central government entities are not prohibited from using permanent lists of suppliers in the case of selective tendering procedures.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

The negotiation mentioned in Article XIV of the Agreement is not allowed in the procedures regarding government procurement under the Accounts Law and the Local Autonomy Law.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

Cabinet Order Stipulating Special Procedures for the Government Procurement of Products or Specified Services requires all central government entities to comply with the time-limits for tendering set out in Article XI.

The Ministry of Home Affairs, with official notice (November 1, 1995), requests sub-central government entities covered by the Agreement to comply with the time-limits for tendering set out in the Article.

As a voluntary measure to increase access opportunities for foreign suppliers to the Japanese market with regard to the procurement of products and services by the central government and Annex 3 entities, the Government of Japan extends, in principle, the period for the receipt of tenders from the date of a public notice for invitation to tender to 50 days (except construction services and design and consulting services).

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

In Japan, Japanese is the only official language. In tendering procedures, therefore, tenderers are required to submit tenders in Japanese, while there is no explicit reference to the language of tender submission in the implementing legislation.

C. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The Japanese Government established the Office of Government Procurement Review (OGPR) by the Cabinet Decision on December 1, 1995. The head of the OGPR is the Chief Cabinet Secretary and other members are the vice-ministers of ministries and agencies.

The OGPR decided "the Review Procedures for Complaints concerning Government Procurement" on December 14, 1995. These procedures were published on the Official Gazette. Also, the procedures were communicated to all parties through the WTO Secretariat. The most recent version of such communication is "Review Procedures for Complaints concerning Government Procurement in Japan (GPA/W/90)." This document is available through internet homepage of WTO.

In addition, all relevant information including the Procedures is generally available through the Economic Planning Agency's internet homepage: http://www.epa.go.jp/access/english/chance_main_e.html/

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

As explained above, all information is already generally available. However, we provide specific answers to all the questions for the Parties' convenience.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

The time limit to launch a complaint is not less than 10 days from when the basis of the complaint is known or should reasonably have been known to the supplier. (Review Procedures for Complaints Concerning Government Procurement 4. (1))

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Government Procurement Review Board is established and it is an impartial and independent review body with no interests in the outcome of the procurement.

The Chief Cabinet Secretary who is the head of OGPR designates the members of the Board. The Board is composed of scientists, scholars, and other members with experience in government procurement.

The decisions are not subject to judicial review.

However, the Board has the procedures listed in (a) to (g) of paragraph 6 of Article XX.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Board examines complaints whether the procurement is made in accordance with the Agreement.

In addition to its obligations under the Agreement, Japan has established voluntary measures incorporating more positive steps in the areas of government procurement of supercomputers, computer products and services, non-research & development satellites, telecommunications products and services, medical technology products and services and construction services. The Board makes reference to all these voluntary measures (Please see attachment 1). These measures are available through the internet homepage introduced above.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

In the case of a complaint prior to contract execution, the Board shall, in principle, promptly issue a written request to the procuring entity within 10 days of the filing that contract execution should be suspended pending resolution of the complaint.

In the case of a post-execution complaint filed within 10 days of the contract execution, the Board shall, in principle, promptly issue a written request to the procuring entity that contract performance should be suspended pending resolution of the complaint.

However, when the Board determines that urgent and compelling circumstances do not allow it to issue such request to the procuring entity, the Board shall immediately provide written notification of its decision with reasons to the complainant and the OGPR.

In addition, the procuring entity shall suspend the execution or performance of the contract immediately upon receiving the Board's request. If, however, the head of the procuring entity determines that he or she cannot obey the request due to urgent and compelling circumstances, the procuring entity may fail to suspend but shall immediately provide written notification of its decision with reasons to the Board.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

Where the Board finds that any provision of the Agreement or other measures were not followed, the Board shall accompany the report with written recommendations concerning appropriate remedies, which may include one or more of the following:

- that new procurement procedures be conducted;
- that re-procurement be conducted without changing conditions for procurement;
- that the procurement be re-evaluated;
- that the contract be executed with a different supplier;
- that the contract be terminated.

There is no financial compensation for loss or damages suffered.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

Persons or bodies wishing to file a complaint may do so with the Board within ten (10) days after the basis of the complaint is known. The Board will examine complaints received within seven (7) working days of filing and determine whether they will be accepted for review. If a complaint is accepted for review, the Board will immediately notify the complainant, OGPR, and the procuring entity of this in writing and publicly announce its decision through the Official Gazette, the Internet, and other means, soliciting the attendance of participants with interests in the complaint. The procuring entity is required to present a report to the Board; if the complainant or the participants disagree with this report, they may present statements to the Board or request a review by the Board, which the Board will subsequently undertake. Finally, a report by the Board on findings will be drawn up within ninety (90) days in case of standard review. This period can be shortened if the complainant or the procuring entity desire. This time limit may also vary according to the type of procurement. If the Board finds that procurement has been carried out in a manner inconsistent with any provision of the Agreement on Government Procurement or other applicable measures, it will draw up recommendations with the report. The procuring entity is required, as a rule, to follow the recommendations of the Board. (Please see the attachment 2.)

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The board requires no charge.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

ISRAEL

The communication reproduced below has been received from the Permanent Mission of Israel in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. Summary of the Israeli Legislation on Government Procurement

In 1992, the Mandatory Tenders Law (hereinafter "The Law") was enacted to oblige government entities to make procurements by way of public tenders. The Law is broader in scope and application than the Agreement on Government Procurement (hereinafter "the Agreement").

The Agreement applies directly under Israeli Law and is fully binding pursuant to Article 5A(b) of the Law which stipulates that "Regulations under this Law shall apply to the extent that they do not conflict with an undertaking of the State in an international agreement". Consequently, for tenders subject to the GPA, procuring entities must follow the provisions of the Agreement even if the regulations under the Mandatory Tenders Law provide otherwise.

Entities covered by the Law are central government entities, government authorities, statutory corporations and government companies, and therefore Israel's Annex 1 and 3 entities are covered by the Law.

The Law governs contracts for goods, real estate, performance of work and for the acquisition of services. Most of the procedures regarding government procurement are embodied in secondary legislation, regulations, which are enacted under authority provided for in the Law. There are currently four sets of regulations deriving from the Mandatory Tenders Law: the Mandatory Tenders Regulations - 1993; the Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Preference for Israel Products and Mandatory Business Cooperation) - 1995; the Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Defense Establishment Contracts) - 1993; and the Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Preference for Products from National Priority Areas) - 1998. The two latter sets of regulations apply only to defense tenders, and since defense procurement is excluded from Israel's GPA obligations, they are not relevant to this notification.

The Mandatory Tenders Regulations (Preference for Israel Products and Mandatory Business Cooperation) granting domestic products preferential treatment do not apply to suppliers from GPA Parties in tenders subject to the GPA. However, these regulations also impose an obligation of offset on foreign suppliers in contracts above a certain threshold, and this obligation does apply to suppliers from GPA Parties in accordance with Israel's offset commitment under the GPA.

In accordance with Article 7 of the Law, the Accountant General of the Ministry of Finance has published Finance and Business Regulations ("Takam") prescribing the procedural rules for conducting tenders. Section 3.3.12 of the regulations relates specifically to Israel's GPA obligations.

Regarding Israel's Annex 2 commitments, procurement by municipalities is governed by Section 197 of the Municipalities Ordinance (New Version) - 1967 and the implementing regulations with regard to Section 197, the Municipalities Regulations (Tenders) - 1987. Municipalities are obligated to invite tenders since Section 197 provides that "A municipality shall not enter into a contract for the transfer of any immovable property or goods, the supply of any goods or the execution of any work, save on the basis of announcement inviting tenders".

The Agreement is binding under Israeli law also in relation to municipalities pursuant to Article 24(a) of the Municipalities Regulations which states that "these regulations shall apply to the extent that they do not conflict with the States's obligations under international convention". To ensure that the municipalities follow the procedures required under the GPA, Article 24(b) of the Municipalities Regulations makes direct reference to the Accountant General's Finance and Business Regulations referred to above.

2. Basic Legislation (Laws and Regulations) on Government Procurement*

Unofficial English translations of the following laws and regulations relating to government procurement are hereby submitted:

3. Answers to Checklist of Issues

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

As noted above, the Agreement applies directly in Israeli law and is fully binding since Article 5A(b) of the Law stipulates that regulations made under the statute apply only so long as they do not conflict with the State's obligations under international treaties.

The Municipalities Regulations have a similar provision which makes the Agreement fully binding. Article 24(a) of the regulations stipulates that the regulations "shall apply to the extent that they do not conflict with the State's obligations under an international agreement".

* English only

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Entities at the sub-central level, which are included in Annex 2 of Israel's commitments are covered by the Municipalities Ordinance and its regulations. As noted above, Section 197 of this Ordinance requires the municipalities to publish a public tender for the purchase of goods and execution of any work. The Municipalities Regulations, which are the implementing regulations for Section 197, stipulate the procedures required for tendering, and in addition make reference to the Accountant General's Finance and Business Regulations.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Annex 3 entities include statutory bodies and companies controlled by the government. They are also subject to the Law and its regulations.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The implementing legislation for Annex 1 and Annex 3 is identical, the Mandatory Tenders Law, and their regulations. Annex 2 entities fall under the Municipalities Ordinance and the Municipalities Regulations.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

The Israeli Government Publications Office has a website where all tender notices are published in Hebrew. In addition, the website of the Ministry of Finance includes a tenders site in Hebrew.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

Regarding the Mandatory Tenders Law, the Law provides that every person be given an equal opportunity to participate in a tender. Moreover, since the Agreement applies directly through Article 5A(b), so do the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement. Regarding municipalities, the Agreement applies directly through Article 24(a) of the Municipality Regulations.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

For open tendering, a notice of proposed procurement must be published. Article 15 of the regulations implementing the Mandatory Tenders Law require the notice to be published in Hebrew and in Arabic newspapers and on an Internet site, and detail the information to be provided including the nature of the contract, its duration, preliminary conditions for participation in the tender, the time and place for receiving tender documentation and further details, documentation fees if any, and the last date and place for submitting bids. Moreover, the Accountant General's regulations also stipulate the public notice requirements, and state in addition, for example, that when the tender is subject to the Agreement, the notice of proposed procurement must also be published in one of two English daily newspapers, in accordance with Israel's Appendix II commitment.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

For entities at the sub-central level, a tender notice must be published. Since Article 24(b) of the Municipalities Regulations makes reference to the Accountant General's regulations, in which specific instructions are given regarding all notice requirements, the information required is identical to that of central government entities.

Annex 3 entities are subject to the Law and its regulations as described above (question 7).

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent list of suppliers or is there a requirement for list of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract bases?

The provisions of Articles 4, 16 and 17 of the Regulations of the Mandatory Tenders Law establish the conditions for conducting selective tendering procedures. Under these provisions, entities are allowed to make use of permanent lists of suppliers. The lists are open to the public, and any supplier may submit a written request to be included to the entity's tender committee. The supplier is added to the list if the tender committee deems him "fit" to be included in the list.

When selective tendering procedures are used, and the permanent list includes no more than ten suppliers, the procuring entity must approach all of them. If the lists includes more than ten suppliers, then the procuring entity must approach at least five of them.

Regarding entities included in Annex 2, under the regulations of the Municipality Act, the provisions for conducting selective tendering procedures relate to a lower threshold than that established under the Agreement. Therefore, these provisions are not relevant to the implementation of the Agreement.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Regarding Annex 1 and Annex 3 entities, Article 7 of the Mandatory Tenders Regulations foresee the possibility of negotiations subject to the conditions listed in the regulation, including the obligation of notice of the possibility of negotiation in the tender documents and in the public notice of the tender. Regarding Annex 2 entities, the Municipality Act Regulations do not foresee the possibility of negotiations.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be "not less than X days". Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information or any longer time-limits which have been established.

The Mandatory Tenders Law and its Regulations do not set time-limits as set out in the Agreement. However, since the Agreement is binding, the time-limits of the Agreement are binding as well. In addition, the regulations published by the General Accountant reflect the minimum time limits established by the Agreement.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

Israeli legislation does not put any limitations on languages allowed for the submission of tenders. Entities which publish tenders may permit the submission of tenders in other languages than in Hebrew, and in practice the submission of tenders in other languages (usually English) is permitted.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES – ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Israel has not established any special challenge procedures vis-à-vis Article XX, and any supplier, Israeli or foreign, with an interest in challenging the procurement procedure of an entity covered may appeal in a regular civil procedure to the District Court in the region where the tender was published.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

There is no specified time-limit for launching a complaint, and consequently a party may challenge a tender at any stage of the tender process.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The District Court in the region that the tender was published is responsible for the challenge procedure.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The applicable law is the Mandatory Tenders Law and its Regulations where relevant, and the Municipalities Ordinance and its Regulations where relevant, and, of course, the Agreement itself.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial conditions?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The District Court may issue an interim injunction that suspends the procurement process temporarily until the conclusion of the legal proceedings.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

If the Court determines that the complaint is valid, it will, in most cases, intervene in the tender procedure by deciding on the best proposal, issuing an order to the entity to cancel the tender, calling for a new tender, cancelling the contract with the winner, disqualifying one of the proposals, to issue a tender where the intention was not to contract by tender, etc.

In addition to the above-mentioned relief, a party may file a civil claim for damages against the tendering entity, and may even be compensated for lost profits.

(vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

There are no specific provisions on the length or cost of proceedings in public tendering cases and no data is maintained in this respect. However, the legal procedure used for tenders, "an originating summons", is by nature a shortened procedure in comparison to normal court procedures. Interim measures can be obtained within an average period of 7-14 days.

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The standard court fee is charged, which may vary. At present, it is not foreseen to do so free of charge.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Switzerland

Addendum

During the review of the national implementing legislation of Switzerland at the Committee meeting of 23 February 1999, the representative of Switzerland made a statement, updating the communication made by Switzerland (GPA/15), in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1). Accordingly, the information contained in the respective sections of document GPA/15 should be modified as follows.

On page 3 of GPA/15, Swiss Telecom is referred to as one of the entities which falls under the scope of the Federal Ordinance on Government Procurement. However, Swiss Telecom is now Swisscom. Swisscom was privatized in 1998 and, therefore, is no longer within the scope of the Ordinance. Accordingly, the reference to Swiss Telecom on page 3 of GPA/15 should be deleted.

On page 3, footnote 3 mentions the thresholds that were calculated for 1997. The same thresholds applied in 1998 and 1999.

Page 6 contains an overview of the procedures for hearing and reviewing complaints and appeals. Procedures available to lodge complaints against the award of a contract are outlined. Notably, the procedures do not only apply against the award of a tender or of a contract where an appeal is possible but also against any decision having the effect of limiting market access. This means, for instance, that the tender notice is also subject to appeal. Therefore, for example, if a potential supplier sees discriminatory criteria contained in the tender notice, the supplier can make an appeal against the tender notice. Another case where an appeal is possible is in relation to a decision to list or not to list a supplier on a permanent list of suppliers. Furthermore, it is also possible to appeal against a decision regarding the selection of a supplier or the non-selection of a supplier in a selective tendering procedure. Finally the exclusion of a supplier, for instance, because of bid-rigging or because of corruption could also be the subject of an appeal.

On page 8 it is noted that there is likely to be change in the future in relation to Switzerland's use of information technology for government procurement following Switzerland's participation in SIMAP (the EU's project) and there are plans to edit the Swiss Official Trade Gazette electronically. The Swiss Official Trade Gazette is on the Internet at the address <http://www.shab.admin.ch>. From July 1999 on, all the tender notices and publications covered by the GPA are available on this website. Furthermore, since 11 January 1999, the Swiss Official Trade Gazette office has electronic access through the EC's TED and various trade notices are being published there.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Hong Kong, China

The following communication has been received from the Hong Kong Economic and Trade Office in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

I. SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

A. CENTRAL GOVERNMENT ENTITIES

1. Article 106 of the Basic Law of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region of the People's Republic of China states: "The Hong Kong Special Administrative Region shall have independent finances". Article 110 states: "The monetary and financial systems of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region shall be prescribed by law". The Public Finance Ordinance (Chapter Two of the Laws of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region) provides the statutory framework for the control and management of the public finances of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

2. The government procurement process is governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations issued by the Financial Secretary/Secretary for the Treasury under the Public Finance Ordinance. These Regulations are supplemented by Financial Circulars and Finance Bureau Circular Memoranda issued by the Secretary for the Treasury from time to time. The procedures laid down in these Regulations and Circulars are fully consistent with the provisions in the Agreement on Government Procurement (the Agreement) of the World Trade Organisation. Chapters 2, 3 and 5 of the Stores and Procurement Regulations set out the procedures for the procurement of stores and services, as well as for contract administration. They cover all stores purchased or acquired on behalf of the Government (with certain exceptions as provided for in the Stores and Procurement Regulations); and services performed by contractors for and on behalf of Government (including construction and engineering works).

B. SUB-CENTRAL ENTITIES AND OTHER ENTITIES COVERED BY THE AGREEMENT

3. Sub-central government entities and Annex 3 entities have their own procurement systems and are not governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations. Upon Hong Kong's accession to the Agreement on 20 May 1997, these entities have amended their procurement procedures in order to meet the requirements of the Agreement which include non-discriminatory treatment of goods and services, qualification of suppliers, tender procedures, and tender specifications.

C. BASIC LEGISLATION (LAWS AND REGULATIONS) ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT ATTACHED

4. Copies of the following laws and regulations relating to government procurement have been submitted:

- Public Finance Ordinance (Chapter 2, Laws of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region);
- Stores and Procurement Regulations; and
- Rules of Operation of the Review Body on Bid Challenges (under the World Trade Organization Agreement on Government Procurement).

III. RESPONSES TO THE CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The procurement of stores and services by all central government entities of the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region is governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations. The principles underlying the government procurement system are consistent with the spirit and objectives of the Agreement. Certain provisions in these Regulations have been revised in May 1997 in order to fully align the government procurement procedures with the requirements of the Agreement.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Sub-central government entities have their own procurement systems and their procurement process is not governed by the Stores and Procurement Regulations. However, their procurement procedures generally follow those of the central government entities, except that the authority to accept tenders and to award contracts rests with the municipal authorities.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

The Annex 3 entities are not subject to the Stores and Procurement Regulations. They are autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement but their procurement procedures are consistent with the provisions in the Agreement.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The central level, the sub-central level and Annex 3 entities have their respective procurement procedures. However, there are no significant differences, in substance and with respect to the Agreement, in their procurement procedures.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

- (a) Central government entities

For central government entities, the following information concerning the procurement of goods and services is published on the Internet:

- (i) general information about government procurements, including the procurement policy, the general terms and conditions for procurement of goods and related services, and contact persons;
- (ii) invitations to tender, which include the information specified in Article IX:6, 8 and 11 of the Agreement;
- (iii) a forecast of major purchases and invitations to tender for construction and engineering works; and
- (iv) notices of awarded contracts, which include the information specified in Article XVIII:1 of the Agreement.

- (b) Sub-central government entities

These entities publish tender notices through the Internet. Such information includes that prescribed in Article IX:6, 8 and 11 of the Agreement.

- (c) Annex 3 entities

The Airport Authority and Kowloon-Canton Railway Corporation use information technology in government procurement, i.e. through the Internet. The Housing Authority also publishes tender notices through the Internet. As regards Hospital Authority and Mass Transit Railway Corporation, they are currently using manual form in government procurement, but they both have plans to make use of the Internet to publicize tender invitations and contract awards.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

All entities covered by the Agreement award contracts for supplying goods or services through open, fair and transparent procedures. There are equal opportunities for domestic and foreign suppliers and service providers. We do not discriminate between products on the basis of their country of origin. There are no discriminatory provisions in the procurement procedures against foreign suppliers, or foreign goods and services.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

In accordance with Article IX:2 of the Agreement, entities may publish an invitation to participate in an intended procurement in the form of a notice. For procurements through open and selective tendering procedures, all central government entities are required to publish tender notices in the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region Gazette. All tender notices contain the information specified in Article IX:6, 8 and 11 of the Agreement.

8. Article IX: 3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

There is no implementing legislation or other requirements on sub-central and Annex 3 entities providing for this opportunity. Some entities may issue a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate placed in the format of a notice of expression of interest to participate, or notice of tender invitation of the type of tendering method engaged, in compliance with Article IX:3 of the Agreement.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

In the case of selective tendering procedures, the central government entities may consider establishing permanent lists of qualified contractors/suppliers for particular services or articles, where there is a frequent need to invite tenders for such service or articles but not all contractors/suppliers in the market are considered to be capable of providing the required services or articles. Central government entities must seek the prior approval of the Secretary for the Treasury for the establishment of such permanent lists. In making the application, a central government entity should explain the reasons for establishing the proposed list and provide information on the source of the prospective applicants, qualification criteria, assessment panel and method of assessment. In accordance with Article VIII of the Agreement, the qualification criteria are limited to those which are essential to ensure the ability of contractors/suppliers to provide the required services or articles, and do not discriminate among foreign contractors/suppliers or between domestic and foreign contractors/suppliers. Any subsequent revisions to the qualification criteria require the prior approval of the Secretary for the Treasury. In accordance with Article IX:9 of the Agreement, central government entities maintaining permanent lists of qualified contractors/suppliers are required to publish annually the up-to-date list, the period of validity of the lists, the method of application and assessment and the method of renewal, where applicable, in the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region Gazette.

There is no requirement on sub-central and Annex 3 entities to select lists of suppliers on a contract-by-contract basis, although many in practice do so. The entities may use permanent lists of suppliers in selective tendering procedures in accordance with Articles VIII and IX:9 of the Agreement.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

(a) Central government entities

The central government entities may conduct negotiations with the tenderers in order to achieve the best value for money. The central government entities must seek the approval of the relevant tender boards before conducting the tender negotiations, except in the following circumstances where the heads of the central government entities are authorized to approve the conduct of negotiations:

- (i) when only one tenderer is invited with the prior approval of the Secretary for the Treasury;
- (ii) when only one tender is received, and the tendered sum of the only offer is too high;
- (iii) when only one of the tenders received is technically acceptable but the tenderer has asked for a high price, and/or made counter-proposals or qualifications which conflict with the original tender conditions or specifications;
- (iv) when the tendered sum of the lowest conforming tender is too high.

The central government entities must follow the provisions and guidelines set out in the Stores and Procurement Regulations when conducting tender negotiations. These provisions and guidelines are fully consistent with the provisions set out in Article XIV of the Agreement.

(b) Sub-central government entities

Similar procedures with central government entities except prior approval from the respective municipal councils is required before the negotiation.

(c) Annex 3 entities

Annex 3 entities may conduct negotiations in circumstances similar to those as set out in 10(a) above, plus the following:

- (i) when the scope of an existing contract needs to be expanded and the price rates for the existing items of work are not applicable to the additional items of work; or
- (ii) when additional works need to be undertaken to include equipment or standards that are unique to a specialist company or identical to existing works or must be compatible with existing systems or proprietary software.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be “not less than X days”. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time-limits which have been established.

(a) Central government entities

The Stores and Procurement Regulations require all central government entities to comply with the time-limits for tendering set out in Article XI, i.e. to allow at least 40 days for receipt of tenders and no less than 25 days for applications to be qualified to tender. Only in exceptional cases, the Secretary for the Treasury may approve a central government entity to reduce the period for receipt of tenders, having regard to the requirements set out in the Article XI:3 of the Agreement.

As to the delivery of goods and services, given that the time for delivery depends on the nature of the goods/services to be provided and the terms and conditions of individual cases, there is no across-the-board time-limit.

(b) Sub-central government and Annex 3 entities

Time-limits for tendering comply with Article XI: 3 of the Agreement whilst time-limits for delivery depends on the nature of the goods/services to be provided and the terms and conditions of individual cases.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

For central government entities, there is no explicit reference to the language of tender submission in all tender notices, invitations for applications to be qualified to tender, and tender documents. English can be used in all such documents.

For sub-central government and Annex 3 entities, English is accepted in tenders.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

A Review Body has been set up to hear all challenges against alleged breaches of the Agreement by central and sub-central Government entities as well as Annex 3 entities. A set of "Rules of Operation of the Review Body on Bid Challenges" (the Rules) and a set of "Guide to the Review Body on Bid Challenges" (the Guide) are published. The former is a set of detailed rules governing the operation of the Review Body on Bid Challenges (the Review Body) and will be issued to all the parties concerned in a challenge. The Guide is an abridged version of the Rules and is available for public consumption which can be obtained from the Secretariat of the Review Body. Preparatory work is in progress to enable the information to be available via the Internet.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

In accordance with the Rules, if a supplier believes that a breach of the Agreement has occurred, he shall, within 10 working days after he knew or reasonably should have known the basis of the challenge, lodge a challenge to the Review Body on alleged breaches of the Agreement by procuring entities for relevant procurements. The Review Body may receive and consider a late challenge if reasonable cause for the delay is shown, but in any event no later than 30 days after the supplier knew or reasonably should have known the basis of the challenge.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent Review Body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Review Body is an impartial and independent body set up administratively by the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

- The Review Body consists of one Chairman, one Deputy Chairman and ten members. They are selected from a wide spectrum of society and appointed by the Secretary for Trade and Industry. Both the Chairman and Deputy Chairman are required to have legal qualifications. The current chairmanship is held by the Chairman of the Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre, who is also a former High Court Judge.
- The decisions made by the Review Body are not subject to judicial review, but procedures as stipulated in Article XX.6 of the Agreement have been put in place.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Review Body will examine complaints by reference to the Agreement itself, and the Laws of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The Review Body may examine the need for and recommend rapid interim measures, which may result in suspension of the procurement process to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities. However, if the procuring entity, taking into account any overriding adverse consequences for the interests concerned, including the public interest, is unable to implement the decisions, it must provide in writing to the Review Body the reasons for not doing so.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What type of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

Our challenge procedures provide that if the Review Body finds that there has been a breach of the Agreement, it may recommend corrective measures or compensation, which will be limited to the cost of tender preparation or protest.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The Chairman of the Review Body shall decide, within 7 working days upon receipt of an application for challenge, whether a prima facie case is established for the challenge to be accepted for inquiry. If so, a Panel consisting the Chairman and two members will be formed, and may recommend rapid interim measures not later than 7 working days after the Panel is established. The Panel will determine the validity of a challenge within 90 days upon receipt of an application for challenge.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

There is no fee for filing a challenge with the Review Body. Parties may file materials and appear before the Review Body without legal representation. All administrative costs arising from the challenge procedures will be borne by the Government of the Hong Kong Special Administrative Region.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from the United States

The following communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of the United States in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

1. Basic Legislation on Government Procurement, and Legislation Giving Effect to the Agreement

The Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S. Code §§ 3501 et seq.) approves the trade agreements resulting from the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations and provides for implementation and entry into force of those agreements. The Act, through amendments to the Trade Agreements Act of 1979 (19 U.S. Code §§ 2511 et seq.), authorizes the President to implement United States obligations under the Agreement on Government Procurement. Pursuant to the Act, the Agreement on Government Procurement entered into force for the United States on 1 January 1996.

The Federal Acquisition Regulation (FAR) System codifies and publishes uniform policies and procedures for acquisition by all United States executive agencies (central government entities). The FAR System consists of the FAR, which is the primary legal document, and agency-specific acquisition regulations that implement or supplement the FAR.

Copies of the following laws and regulations relating to government procurement have been submitted:

- The Uruguay Round Agreements Act (19 U.S. Code §§ 3501 et seq.)
- The Trade Agreements Act of 1979, as amended (19 U.S. Code §§ 2511 et seq.)
- Federal Acquisition Regulation (48 Code of Federal Regulation parts 1-99)
- Armed Services Procurement Act (10 U.S. Code §§ 2301 et seq.)
- Federal Property and Administrative Services Act (40 U.S. Code §§ 471 et seq. and 41 U.S. Code §§ 251 et seq.)
- The Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act (41 U.S. Code §§ 401 et seq.)

These statutes can be located electronically by accessing the Federal Acquisition Virtual Library of the United States Government's Acquisition Reform Network. The Internet site for the Acquisition Reform Network is: <www.arnet.gov>.

2. Additional Legislation Giving Effect to the Agreement

CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

Pursuant to the Uruguay Round Agreements Act (Public Law 103-465), the Government Procurement Agreement (GPA) entered into force for the United States on 1 January 1996. The Uruguay Round Agreements Act approved the agreements resulting from the Uruguay Round of multilateral trade negotiations, including the GPA, and implements those agreements in United States law. Although no statutory amendments were required to implement the obligations of the GPA, certain amendments to the Federal Acquisition Regulation were necessary.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

The federal laws and regulations cited above in section 1 of the Summary govern procurement by federal government agencies and generally do not apply to state government procurements. Where state governments are expending grant monies from the federal government or have been allocated monies directly by the federal government, those state governments must comply with certain federal statutory requirements. Each state has its own laws and regulations pertaining to government procurement.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or subcentral level?

The following Annex 3 entities are subject to the federal procurement laws and regulations cited above in section 1 of the Summary: the Power Marketing Administrations of the Department of Energy (except the Bonneville Power Administration); and the St. Lawrence Seaway Development Corporation. Due to the commercial nature of the activities carried out by certain Annex 3 entities, procurements by the other Annex 3 entities are not subject to the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act and the Office of Federal Procurement Policy Act. These entities are instead subject to specific laws governing each such entity.

In accordance with the Tennessee Valley Authority Act (16 U.S. Code §831h), the Tennessee Valley Authority's (TVA) procurements are subject to the Tennessee Valley Authority Procurement Standards and Guidelines, which contain a statement of procurement policy and a body of interpretive regulations governing TVA procurement. The Bonneville Power Administration's procurement operations are conducted under the Bonneville Power Administration Act, 16 U.S. Code §832 et seq. and 16 U.S. Code §474(d)(20), as well as the Federal Columbia River Transmission System Act, 16 U.S. Code §838i(b), and the Pacific Northwest Electric Power Planning and Conservation Act, 16 U.S. Code §839f(a) and 839f(b). These entities follow procurement procedures that are similar to those contained in the FAR.

The Port Authority of New York and New Jersey is a municipal corporate entity and subdivision of the States of New York and New Jersey. The Port Authority has written instructions in the form of administrative procedures and memoranda for its purchasing agents. The New York Power Authority is required by state law to follow comprehensive guidelines detailing operating policy and instructions regarding procurement contracts.

All federal government entities in Annex 3 are subject to the Trade Agreements Act of 1979.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the subcentral level and for Annex 3 entities?

With respect to entities at the subcentral level, state government procurements are governed by laws enacted by the individual states. These laws establish transparent government procurement procedures and are aimed at establishing a level playing field for suppliers. One of the principal differences that exists between federal government and state government laws is the degree of centralization of procurement. The federal government generally conducts procurements on a more centralized basis than do the states. States also vary among themselves as to the extent to which their procurements are decentralized. In addition, states have different designated publication for advertising procurement opportunities.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Information technology (IT) is used throughout the government procurement process, as in all other administrative processes. Information is passed from requirements offices to buying offices and paying offices via computer. Solicitations are prepared using computers that link directly to data bases of standard contract clauses. Contracts are managed through extensive computer systems. Wherever possible, the paper process has been supplanted by an IT solution. The United States Government has begun to use electronic commerce to streamline, consolidate and eliminate processes wherever possible through the following initiatives:

Commerce Business Daily on the Internet

With certain exceptions, agencies are required to publish notices of procurement opportunities in excess of US$25,000 in the Commerce Business Daily (CBD). The CBD is distributed by the United States Government Printing Office in paper form, and is also available on the Internet. The Internet site, known as CBDnet, is the official online listing of government contracting opportunities published in the CBD. CBDnet provides convenient and universal user access to these notices through a single point of entry. In addition, CBDnet provides users with three search engines to conduct: (1) text searches; (2) field searches; and (3) searches by classification code. Access to CBDnet is free. The site can be accessed at <http://cbdnet.access.gpo.gov/index.html>. The United States Government is working towards enhancements that, among other things, will permit sellers to download solicitations and related documents from the Internet for local printing and editing and to receive automatic email notification about procurement opportunities in specific categories of interest.

Conducting Small Dollar Purchases through Electronic Commerce

Each year the Federal government makes approximately 22 million purchases from the private sector worth about US$200 billion. Federal government agencies are currently finding that electronic commerce is especially beneficial in helping them conduct smaller dollar purchases, in light of the high volume of transactions (often for the same supplies or services) and the amount of associated transaction processing that can be improved by the application of current electronic commerce and related technologies.

Among other things, agencies are using purchase cards (credit cards for business) to make micro-purchases (purchases of US$2,500 or less). Purchase cards are also used to support other smaller dollar ordering from "electronic catalogs" to fulfill needs better, faster and more cheaply.

Improved Integration of Procurement and Payment Procedures

In March 1998, the President's Management Council's Electronic Processes Initiatives Committee issued a Strategic Plan for Electronic Commerce for Buyers and Sellers. The Plan sets forth policy principles for making and successfully managing investments in electronic commerce and a variety of focused activities to facilitate the use of electronic commerce to strengthen and integrate buying and paying process in government agencies. The Strategic Plan can be accessed at <http://policyworks.gov/epic>.

The Debt Collection Improvement Act of 1996 requires that all Federal payments be made electronically by 1999.

Making Procurement Information Available on the Acquisition Reform Net (ARNET)

Many agencies have developed their own "home pages" on the Internet to broadcast electronically a variety of procurement information such as requests for information, draft requests for proposals (RFPs), RFPs, and other acquisition information such as advanced procurement planning and forecast information to industry. The Office of Federal Procurement Policy (OFPP) has requested agencies to link their home pages to ARNET, a central site on the Internet's World Wide Web (<http://www.arnet.gov>) which currently provides procurement officials in the public and private sectors with a vast amount of procurement information, including best practices guides, policy letters, and training courses.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

The Trade Agreements Act of 1979 (TAA), as amended by the Uruguay Round Agreements Act, authorizes the President to waive the application of any discriminatory government procurement laws for all procurements that are subject to the GPA. 19 U.S. Code § 2511. Under the authority granted by the TAA, the President has ordered federal agencies that are covered by the GPA to comply with GPA obligations. Executive Order 12260 (1980). Accordingly, Part 25 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation specifies that the restrictions of the Buy American Act do not apply to procurements that are subject to the GPA. 48 CFR 25.402.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Consistent with Article IX:2, Part 5 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation requires that a notice of proposed procurement be published in the Commerce Business Daily for each procurement expected to exceed US$25,000. 48 CFR 5.201. Certain exceptions apply, including where perishable subsistence supplies are being purchased or where a situation of unusual and compelling urgency exists that would result in serious injury to the Government if a notice were published. All state governments require publication of an invitation to participate; most state governments require that this takes the form of a notice of proposed procurement.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the subcentral level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Some states use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate under Article IX:3. These notices are sometimes used in addition to notices of proposed procurements, affording suppliers multiple opportunities to learn of procurement opportunities.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

A federal government agency may establish a source list if the head of that agency prepares a written justification explaining the circumstances necessitating use of such a list. Potential foreign suppliers from GPA Parties have the opportunity to be included in source lists. Entities must specifically justify and document the need for establishing such lists and all interested suppliers must be provided an opportunity to be included in such lists. Moreover, potential suppliers who are not included in a list must be allowed to participate in the procurement if those suppliers can make timely and responsive offers.

Most GPA-covered states require suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis. Some GPA-covered states utilize qualified or registered vendor lists. The existence of such lists is advertised and additions to the lists are generally encouraged in the interest of broadening the competitive field.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Negotiation is permitted for federal government entities as set forth in Part 15 of the Federal Acquisition Regulation. The regulation contains the specific requirements regarding negotiated contracts.

Most GPA-covered states allow for negotiations in procuring goods and services under certain conditions, as set forth in applicable state law.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be “not less than X days”. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The Federal Acquisition Regulation requires that: (1) a notice of proposed procurement be published in the Commerce Business Daily (CBD) at least 15 days prior to issuance of a solicitation for bids; and (2) prospective suppliers must be given at least 30 days from the date of issuance of the solicitation to submit bids or proposals. Thus, United States law requires that a notice of proposed procurement be published a minimum of 45 days prior to the deadline for receipt of bids or proposals. The FAR provides, however, that shorter time-frames may be established for procurements of commercial items or for procurements valued at or below US$100,000. For procurements subject to the GPA, the FAR requires that the time period be not less than 40 days unless the procurement was previously publicized in the CBD not less than 40 days in advance of the deadline. In this circumstance, the time-period may be reduced to not less than 10 days.

State governments have established the necessary solicitation response time limits to conform with the minimum time-limits set forth in the GPA for GPA-covered procurements, either pursuant to state laws or through administrative practice.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The Federal Acquisition Regulation requires that tenders for federal government procurements subject to the FAR be submitted in English.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES -- ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The United States General Accounting Office is authorized under 31 U.S. Code §3552 to hear protests. The GAO has promulgated procedures for the filing of protests; these regulations are found at Title 4 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Part 21. In addition, suppliers and potential suppliers may protest directly to the procuring agency. In 1995, President Clinton ordered all agencies to establish alternative dispute resolution procedures for bid protests in Executive Order No. 12979 (60 Fed. Reg. 55171 (1995)). Thus, all agencies are directed to create systems that allow for inexpensive, informal, procedurally simple, and expeditious resolution of protests. Suppliers may also take protests to United States federal courts under 28 U.S. Code §1491, although most suppliers prefer to use the GAO and procuring agency procedures because they are less costly and less disruptive to the procurement process.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

The United States General Accounting Office (GAO) requires that all protests other than those based on solicitation improprieties must be filed no later than ten (10) calendar days after the protester knew or should have known of the basis of the protest. For any competitive procurement for which debriefings are required, protesters must wait to file their protests until after the debriefing has been held (yet within five calendar days of the debriefing). If a protest is filed before the debriefing, GAO will dismiss the protest without prejudice. Protests based upon alleged improprieties in a solicitation which are apparent prior to bid opening or the time set for receipt of initial proposals, must be filed prior to bid opening or the time set for receipt of initial proposals. In procurements where proposals are requested, alleged improprieties which do not exist in the initial solicitation but which are subsequently incorporated into the solicitation must be protested not later than the next closing time for receipt of proposals following the incorporation.

The time limits established for launching complaints varies among states covered by the GPA. Most have limits of ten (10) calendar days; however, some have limits of up to fourteen (14) calendar days. Some states have specific rules applicable only to contracts covered by the GPA in order to comply with GPA obligations.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The General Accounting Office, an arm of the United States Congress, is vested with the authority to review protests in accordance with Title 31 of the United States Code, §3552. The GAO has promulgated procedures for the filing of protests and they are found at Title 4 of the Code of Federal Regulations, Part 21.

Protesters may request GAO to reconsider decisions based upon new facts, unavailable at the time of the initial protest. Technically, GAO's recommendations themselves are not reviewable by a court. However, protestors may always seek judicial review under the Administrative Procedures Act of actions taken by any United States Government agency, including an agency's implementation of a GAO decision.

States vary with respect to the nature of bid challenge bodies. Authority to review protests in most GPA-covered states is vested either in an independent review entity, or with an independent arm of the procuring agency or the state administrative offices. Decisions are generally subject to judicial review, usually through the state court system.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

See answer to question (ii).

In general, the applicable body of law by reference to which the challenge body in GPA-covered states will examine complaints is the relevant state statutes and rules, and the decisions of the state courts.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Where a protest is filed with the GAO, the contracting agency may be required to withhold award and to suspend contract performance.

When the agency has received notice from the GAO of a protest filed directly with the GAO, a contract may not be awarded unless authorized by the head of the contracting activity and upon a written finding that: (1) urgent and compelling circumstances which significantly affect the interest of the United States will not permit awaiting the decision of the GAO; and (2) award is likely to occur within 30 days of the written finding.

When the agency receives notice of a protest from the GAO within ten days after contract award or within five days after a debriefing, the contracting officer must immediately suspend performance or terminate the awarded contract unless the head of the contracting activity decides that: (1) contract performance will be in the best interests of the United States; or (2) urgent and compelling circumstances that significantly affect the interests of the United States will not permit waiting for the GAO's decision.

Many GPA-covered states allow for the temporary restraint or suspension of the procurement process (including performance of the contract award) pending resolution of bid protests. A few states require an appeal bond to stay a contract award. In addition, courts can generally issue a stay of the procurement process.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

If the GAO determines that a solicitation, cancellation of a solicitation, termination of a contract, proposed award, or award does not comply with statute or regulation, it must recommend that the contracting agency implement any combination of the following remedies:

- refrain from exercising options under the contract;
- terminate the contract;
- recompute the contract;
- issue a new solicitation;
- award a contract consistent with statute and regulation; or

- such other recommendation(s) as GAO determines necessary to promote compliance.

If the GAO determines that a solicitation, proposed award, or award does not comply with statute or regulation, it may recommend that the contracting agency pay the protester the costs of:

- filing and pursuing the protest, including attorneys' fees and consultant and expert witness fees; and
- bid and proposal preparation costs.

Remedies for successful bid challenges in the majority of GPA-covered states include the cancellation and rebidding of the procurement, along with other remedies as provided under relevant state law.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The GAO will generally decide on a protest within 100 days after it is filed. In protests where the GAO uses express option procedures (an accelerated schedule as requested by a party to the protest), the GAO shall issue a decision on a protest within 65 days after it is filed.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

There are no charges for filing a protest with the GAO.

The majority of GPA-covered states do not impose a fee to file a challenge to a contract award. Each party is generally required to pay its own administrative and legal fees, if incurred.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from the European Community

The following communication has been received from the Permanent Delegation of the Commission of the European Community in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

I. SUMMARY OF THE EC LEGISLATION ON PUBLIC PROCUREMENT

I.1 EC Level

(i) At EC level, general public procurement rules stem from the Rome Treaty. These rules have been completed by several Community Directives, specially with respect to procedural requirements.

The main EC Treaty articles having consequences for public procurement are Articles 6 (non-discrimination on grounds of nationality principle), 30 to 36 (the ban on quantitative restrictions on imports and all measures having equivalent effect), 52 & seq. (the right to establishment in the territory of another member State) and 59 & seq. (freedom to provide services).

Secondary legislation applies these general principles to concrete matters. Thus, there is a group of Council Directives laying down certain common rules with respect to Public Procurement. These directives need implementation at national level and their purpose is to coordinate the procedures to be followed in member States whenever a contract is to be awarded whose value exceeds a certain threshold.

The GPA was transposed into EC law by Council Decision N° 94/800/EC of 22 December 1994 (see section 4 below).

To a large extent, EC rules coincide with the GPA rules on public procurement. Some minor amendments are in the process of being adopted to align the EC directives with the GPA rules where differences would create reverse discrimination against EC suppliers.¹

For contracts below the thresholds, national rules are not bound by the EC directives, nor by the GPA, though the general rules of the Treaty still apply. This means that, below thresholds, national rules are not uniform, so that each member State has its own public procurement rules which must only respect the general principles laid down in the Treaty, in particular non-discrimination in respect of goods and services.

¹ See Council and Commission Common Position, OJ C111, 09.04.1997.

The directives fall into two groups, those governing the traditional areas of public procurement (Public Authorities directives or traditional sectors directives), and those dealing with water, energy, transport and telecommunications (Utilities directives or "excluded" sectors directives). Each group is completed by a Remedies directive. Although they differ in a number of respects, both groups apply the following principles: a ban on discrimination; open access to all EC suppliers, transparency of award procedures; a precise indication of which of the permissible award procedures has been chosen; compliance with technical requirements and transparency of the procedures for selecting contractors and awarding contracts, through the use of objective criteria which must be known beforehand.

(ii) The public authorities directives

Contracting authorities in the sense of these directives are the State, Regional or Local authorities, and bodies governed by public law. These authorities are covered in Annexes 1 and 2 of Appendix I of the GPA.

- Council Directive N° 93/36 coordinating procedures for the award of public supply contracts (The Public Supplies Directive).
- Council Directive N° 93/37 concerning the coordination of procedures for the award of public works contracts (the Public Works Directive). This directive covers contracts between a contractor and a contracting authority concerning the execution or both the execution and design of works related to building or civil engineering activities, in addition to ancillary supplies and services contracts necessary for their execution.
- Council Directive N° 92/50 relating to the coordination of procedures for the award of public service contracts (the Public Services Directive). This directive covers all contracts between a contracting authority and a service supplier which are not yet covered by other existing public procurement directives. Services are divided into two categories, priority services for which there is a complete set of rules, and other services for which the requirements are much less (see Articles 8-10). Priority services are listed in Annex IA of the directive. All the services listed in Annex 4 to Appendix I of the GPA are included in this category of priority services.
- Council Directive N° 89/665 on the coordination of the laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the application of review procedures to the award of public supply and public works contracts, and public services (the Remedies Directive). This directive obliges member States to ensure adequate procedures, including the authorization of competent review bodies to take the necessary measures to ensure effective remedies for undertakings lessed by infringements of Community law.

(iii) Utilities directives

- Council directive N° 93/38 coordinating the procurement procedures of the entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors (the Utilities Directive). This directive governs those contracts of authorities and public undertakings operating in the so-called "former excluded sectors" and other contracting entities operating on the basis of special or exclusive rights granted by a competent public authority. Therefore, this directive is relevant for contracts awarded by the contracting entities listed in Annex 3 to Appendix I of the GPA and which operate in the water, electricity, airports, ports and urban transport sectors. Rules applying to those sectors are more flexible than those for the traditional public procurement sectors.

- Council directive 92/13 coordinating the laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the application of Community rules on the procurement procedures of entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors (the Remedies Utilities Directive). This directive also obliges inter alia member States to establish adequate procedures to ensure effective remedies for infringements of Community law in the sectors concerned.

(iv) A booklet describing the EC rules governing the procedure in the award of public procurement contracts is attached.

I.2 Member State Level

At member State level, national legislation has implemented both GPA and EC rules.

(A) Austria. Procurement regulations above the thresholds for Central Government Entities are specified in the Federal Act "Bundesvergabegesetz 1997". Each of Austria's nine states ("Bundesländer") has adopted its own procurement act. The revised Bundesvergabegesetz implements the obligatory use of "ONORM A-2050" below the thresholds.

(B) Belgium. Legislation on public procurement of goods, works and services falls within the competences of the federal authorities, which have enacted an Act and implementing regulations (arrêtés royaux). This legislation applies to any public contract, regardless of its value, if they have a pecuniary interest.

Those texts are:

- Law of 24 December 1993 on public procurement and certain works, services and supplies contracts, including Royal Order of 10 January 1996 amending Title IV of Book I of that Law;
- Royal Order of 8 January 1996 on public procurement of works, supplies and services and on public works concessions;
- Royal Order of 10 January 1996 on public procurement of works, supplies and services in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors.

(D) Germany. The basis of the German procurement law is article 57a to 57c of the Haushaltsgrundsatzgesetz (Budgetary principle law). Article 57a defines the group of contracting authorities. Articles 57b and c are concerned with the review procedures used in cases of violation of procurement provisions. The contract award regulations that German contracting authorities must comply with are the following: Verdingungsordnung für Leistungen, VOL/A (Code for Awarding Public Supplies Contracts including services which are supplied commercially, but excluding public works contracts); Verdingungsordnung für Bauleistungen, VOB/A (Code for awarding public works contracts). Each code is divided into 4 sections. VOL/A: the first section contains provisions for national awards of supplies and services contracts below the EC thresholds; the second section contains provisions which implement the regulations of the EC public supplies Directive 93/36 and the EC public services Directive (92/50) as regards commercial and industrial services. Contracting authorities must comply with this section if the contract exceeds the EC thresholds; the third section contains provisions applicable to public contracting entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecom sector according to the EC Utilities Directive 93/38; the fourth section contains the implementation of the EC Utilities Directive for private contracting authorities. The VOB/A is similarly divided: first section, national regulations for the awards of public works contracts below the EC thresholds; second section, regulations which implement the EC public works Directive 93/37 and therefore are relevant to contracts above the EC threshold; third section, provisions which implement the EC Utilities Directive concerning public contracting authorities; fourth section, implementation of the EC utilities Directive for private contracting authorities. The Verdingungsordnung für freiberufliche Leistungen (VOF) contains the contract award regulations of the EC-Directive 92/50 for services which are provided by free-lancers.

(DK) Denmark. All directives have been implemented in Danish legislation. The basis for so doing is the Ministry of Housing and Building's Consolidation Act N° 600 of 30 June 1992, which enables the competent ministries to implement public procurement directives by ministerial orders. The specific implementing measures are the following: Ministerial order N° 201 of 27 March 1995 on the award of public works contracts in the European Communities (Directive 93/37); Ministerial order N° 510 of 16 June 1994 on coordination of procedures for public supplies (Directive 93/36); Ministerial order N° 415 of 22 June 1993 on the coordination of procedures for the award of contracts for public procurement of services within the European Communities (Directive 92/50); Ministerial order N° 558 of 24 June 1994 on tendering of purchases within water and energy supply as well as transport and telecommunications in the European Community (Directive 93/38 as far as works contracts are concerned, also implements the provisions of Directive 92/13 concerning attestation); Ministerial order N° 557 of 24 June 1994 on tendering of purchases within water and energy supply as well as transport and telecommunications in the European Communities (Directive 93/38 as far as supplies and services are concerned, also implements the provisions of Directive 92/13 concerning attestation); Consolidation Act N° 1166 of 20.12.1995 on the Review Board for Tenders (Tendering of works and supplies in the European Communities) combined with ministerial order N° 26 of 23 January 1996 on the Review Board for Tenders implement both Directive 89/665 and Directive 92/13).

The following regulations apply in Denmark also to contracts of a value inferior to the thresholds: Circular of 14 April 1989 issued by the Housing and Building Agency which prescribes that State construction contracts and construction contracts subsidized by the State shall be subject to a public tender; Circular of 1 March 1994 issued by the Ministry of Finance which imposes an obligation on central government institutions to undertake a market testing on a regular basis with a view to a possible contracting out of a given activity.

(E) Spain. Basic legislation. Law 13/1995 (18 May) of Public Procurement. Its scope covers the State, the Regions, the Local administration, the autonomous bodies and the entities subject to public law which have their own legal personality and are linked to any Public administration which have been created to satisfy the general interest or whose activity is mostly financed by public administrations, or whose direction is controlled by public administrations, or whose direction bodies are composed in their majority by persons appointed by public administrations or other entities of public law. Royal Decree 390/1996 (1 March), implementing the Law 13/1995. Also relevant are: Law 30/1992 (26 November) on the Legal regime of the Public Administrations and on the Common administrative procedure; Law 7/1985 (2 April) on the Local administration. Furthermore, there are some specific regulations enacted by the Regions.

(EL) Greece. As concerns contracts for supplies the value of which is lower than the threshold established by Directive 93/36, Greece applies Law N° 2286/94 and the Regulation of public procurement (Presidential Decree 394/96) implementing the general provisions of the Treaty. In most cases, an open or restricted tendering procedure takes place and in exceptional cases a negotiated procedure. For supplies contracts equal to or exceeding ECU 137_000 in value, for the entities of Annex 1 and ECU 200,000 in value for all the other entities of public sector, Greece applies the treaty and Directive 93/36 as incorporated in the Hellenic Legislation through consecutive presidential Decree 370/95. As concerns contracts for public works the value of which is lower than the threshold established by Directive 93/37, Greece applies Law N° 1418/84 (as modified notably by Law N° 2299/94, Law N° 2308/95, Law N° 2372/96 and by Presidential Decrees) implementing the general provisions of the Treaty. In most cases, an open or restricted tendering procedure takes place and - in exceptional cases - a negotiated procedure. For those public works contracts equal to or exceeding ECU 5 million in value, Greece applies the Treaty and Directive 93/37 as incorporated in the Hellenic legislation through consecutive presidential Decrees (notably 23/93 and 85/95). For all contracts for design and construction of public works, tendering and monitoring is carried out at three levels: central, peripheral and local level. As regards public services contracts, a legislation of a systematic and general nature is presently absent, pending the incorporation of Directive 92/50 into the Hellenic legislation. For the public services contracts with a value lower than the threshold of ECU 200.000, Greece applies Law N° 2362/95 (Arts. 8 & 23) which provides for public tendering. As an exception, the public procurement of services after a simpler procedure or a negotiated procedure is allowed. There also exists a special legislation for public works design contracts, which, however, has to be modified, pending the incorporation of the 92/50 Directive. The processes for public procurement of services for the entities operating in the utilities sectors, will be provided for in the forthcoming legislation incorporating Directive 93/38.

(F) France. Every contract awarded by the State, the territorial subdivisions and the public bodies must follow the rules established by the Code on Public Procurement, which comprises all the texts concerning the award of public contracts. Those rules are similar to those of the EC directives. The Code establishes the general principle of freedom of access for candidates to public contracts, and that of equality of treatment for both candidates and tenders. It sets out that contracts are awarded, in general, after a call for tenders, and limits the cases in which a negotiated procedure can be used.

(I) Italy. The Italian regime in force concerning public procurement has been regulated by four Legislative Decrees, that is to say, laws delegated from Parliament to Government. The first, Legislative Decree of 19 December 1991, N° 406 transposed the Works Directive. In addition, a Law of 11 February 1994, N° 109 (so-called Merloni Act) is also relevant to works. The second, Legislative Decree of 24 July 1992, N° 358 transposed the Supplies Directive. The third, Legislative Decree of 17 March 1995, N° 157 transposed into Italian legislation the Services Directive 92/50. The fourth, Legislative Decree of 17 March 1995, N° 158 transposed the Directives 90/531 and 93/38, concerning the so-called excluded sectors.

Furthermore, as regards remedies, there are some provisions applicable in other laws. Law N° 1034 of 6 December 1971, Law N° 142 of 19 February 1992 and the Civil Code.

(IRL) Ireland. There is no body of law governing public procurement in Ireland law except for that provided for under European Community, WTO and other international obligations. Ireland has implemented into law all EU public procurement Directives by means of secondary legislation, that is by way of "Statutory Instruments" which transpose the Directives directly into Irish law.

With respect to contracts below EU thresholds, there are no legally binding regulations but there are national government guidelines which public authorities are bound to follow. The national guidelines are published by the Department of Finance and were last issued in 1994. The guidelines sets out the requirements for dealing with sub-threshold and above-threshold EU contracts. The Guidelines apply to "Government Departments, local and regional authorities and other bodies dependent on State funding, in the award of public sector contracts (including the acquisition, letting and disposal of public property)". In addition, it is pointed out that commercial and non-commercial State bodies should comply with the broad principles of Government contracts procedures and that tax clearance procedures are obligatory in all cases. Although these guidelines do not have formal force of law, failure to apply them may obviously attract the censure of the Department of Finance, Parliament, auditors and the Media. In addition, purchasers are aware of the argument that failure to comply with the guidelines may be a breach of a representation or contractual obligation, to the effect that the purchaser will apply the proper published guidelines in consideration of the tenderer submitting his tender.

(L) Luxembourg. The main law is the Act concerning public supply and public works contracts (04.04.1974), based on the non-discrimination principles of the Treaty of Rome. EC directives have been implemented by special Regulations: one for the classical sectors (27.01.1994, as amended 31.05.1996), and one for the utilities (02.02.1996). An Act of 21.12.1989 transposed the remedies directive, which will be amended in what refers to the utilities remedies directive.

(NL) Netherlands. The EC directives have been implemented in The Netherlands through the Raamwet EEG-voorschriften aanbestedingen of March 13, 1993 (Staatsblad 1993, 212), entry into force 12 April 1993 (Framework legislation EEC regulation). Under this framework law there are the following two decrees for the relevant sectors:

- Besluit aanbestedingen nutssector (Staatsblad 1993, 305), entry into force 21 April 1993 (Decree on procurement in the sector of utilities). This decree applies to procurement in the sector of utilities.
- Besluit overheidsaanbestedingen (Staatsblad 1993, 305, as amended in 1994, Staatsblad 1994, 379), entry into force 1 July 1993 (Decree on government procurement). This decree applies to procurement of products, services and construction services.

The implementation is effected by a reference in the national legislation to the provisions of the EC directives which have to be applied.

Additionally, the Uniform Aanbestedingsreglement EG 1991 (UAR-EG, Staatscourant 228, 1991, as amended in 1995, Staatscourant 1995, 103) (Harmonised regulation on EC procurement) contains standard conditions and procedures for the central government with respect to construction services.

The two EC directives on remedies (89/665 and 92/13) are covered by existing national legislation (Civil Code). Therefore, no specific national legislation implementing these directives was needed.

(P) Portugal. Rules governing public procurement in Portugal are the Decreto-Lei N° 55/95 as modified by Decreto-Lei N° 80/96. The Decreto-Lei N° 64/94 governs the procurement of computer-related goods and services. The Decreto-Lei N° 405/93 refers to works.

(S) Sweden. Sweden has incorporated all the relevant EC directives in its Law on public procurement (Lagen (1992:1528) om Offentlig Upphandling, LOU), which has been revised accordingly (1993:1468) and reprinted in the register of promulgated laws (Svensk Författningssamling, SFS). The law has been additionally revised through amendments 1994:614, 1995:704 and 1996:433. Further amendments to the LOU and specific detailed regulations will enter into force on 1 January 1998. The LOU applies to the same procuring entities and covers all types of procurement (supplies, public works and services contracts) that are subject to Community legislation.

(SF) Finland. The Public Procurement Act (1505/92, of 23.12.1992, amend. 1523/94 of 29.12.1994) is a general framework-law that applies to almost all purchase, rental or corresponding transactions in respect of goods and services, or for tenders administered by the State authorities, local authorities or other contracting entities referred to in the Act. The contracting entities covered by the Act shall observe the Act in their procurement with the view to promoting competition and ensuring proper and non-discriminatory treatment of those who participate in a tendering procedure. Within all fields other than the utilities sector (water, energy, transport and telecommunications sector) the Act applies to procurements below the threshold values as well as to procurements in excess thereof.

There are also two implementing orders: order on the procurement of supplies, services and works in excess of threshold value (24.02.1995/243) and Order on the procurement in excess of threshold value by entities operating in the water, energy, transport and telecommunications sector (28.06.1994/567, amended 24.02.1995/244).

(UK) United Kingdom. The UK has implemented all the EC public directives by secondary legislation as follows: for public authorities, for supplies, Statutory Instrument (SI) 1995/201 implements 93/36/EEC, for works, SI 1991/2680 implements 93/37/EEC, for services, SI 1993/3228 implements 92/50/EEC; for utilities, 1996/2911 implements 93/38/EEC.

It should be noted that each of the above Statutory Instruments also implement the relevant enforcement rules. So the three SIs for the public sector (1995/201, 1991/2680 and 1993/3228) also implement 89/665/EEC the Compliance directive and for the utilities 1996/2911 implements 92/13/EEC, the Remedies directive.

In addition to these laws, the basic UK policy approach, which covers below threshold procurement as well, is set out in 'Public Purchasing Policy: Consolidated Guidelines,' (HM Treasury 1988). These provide that government purchasing should be conducted on the basis of achieving value for money through competition, which would not permit discrimination on grounds of nationality.

IV. RESPONSES TO THE CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

IV.1 General Elements

1. Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The Agreement was transposed into EC law by Council Decision N° 94/800/EC of 22 December 1994 concerning the conclusion on behalf of the European Community, as regards matters within its competence, of the agreements reached in the Uruguay Round multilateral negotiations (1986-1994). See OJ L336 pages 1 and 273, of 23.12.1994.

It was completed by Decision N° 95/215/EC of 29 May 1995 concerning the conclusion of an Agreement in the form of an exchange of letters between the European Community and the United States of America. See OJ L134 page 25, of 20.6.1995.

A Communication was also made to explain that art. 36 of Directive 93/38 establishing a Community preference has been waived as a consequence of the entry into force of the GPA for those fields covered by the GPA. See OJ C 332/9, of 9.12.1995.

Under EC law no further legal instruments are required to ensure full application of such agreement. In other words, following Council's Decision, the GPA forms an integral part of the EC law. All covered contracting entities have to comply with the requirements of the GPA, as is the case for the requirements of the Directives.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

National laws need to be adapted to the requirements of the Agreement as incorporated by Council Decision 94/800. This is done either at federal/central level or at sub-central level depending on the internal allocation of powers in each member State.

It must be noted that within the EC, federal/central level includes entities from the EU (Council and Commission) as well as entities at central and federal level of the different member States.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Annex 3 entities apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The so-called Public Authorities Directives (see subchapter I.1, supra) apply both to the central/federal and sub-central levels. Therefore, rules are identical.

As for Annex 3 entities, they follow the rules of the Utilities Directive, which might slightly differ from the traditional Directives in some points. In particular, utilities have a free choice between open, restricted and negotiated procedures provided that a call for competition has been made through publication in the Official Journal. For Annex 1 and 2 entities, the use of the negotiated procedure, even with prior call for competition, is more restricted.

Another important difference is that unlike the traditional directives, the Utilities Directive does not lay down any qualitative selection criteria and thus allows contracting entities some discretion here. However, the criteria adopted must be objective and made available to all interested firms.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Notices above the relevant thresholds set out in the GPA and in the EC Directives must be published in the Official Journal of the European Communities (Supplement "S"). The Official Journal (Supplement "S") is published in paper version and, from January 1997, in CD-Rom. In addition, notices are included in an electronic database: Tenders Electronic Daily, known as TED.

TED is the on-line version of the printed "Supplement S to the Official Journal". Similarly to the Official Journal, TED is updated five times per week. It is produced by the Office for Official Publications of the European Communities, hosted by the European Commission Host Organisation (ECHO) and offered in many countries via Official Gateways. At present, in addition to the former connection procedures, a user-friendly graphical interface allows users to connect to the ECHO databases using a "Windows" environment ("Windows access to Central Host"). Watch-ECHO can be downloaded from the Internet (<http://www2.echo.lu/echo/en/menuecho.html>).

Furthermore, the Commission services are currently working on a pilot project named SIMAP (Information system for public procurement) which intends to create an EU-wide electronic public procurement network aiming to make the process more efficient, more reliable, less time-consuming, and ultimately more cost effective, both for procurers and suppliers. The Internet Homepage can be visited at: <http://simap.eu.int>.

IV.2 Specific Elements

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

There are no discriminatory provisions in the EC law against third country suppliers or products other than those contained in Directive 93/38 (utilities directive). Furthermore, to the extent that the GPA is part of the EC law, pursuant to Decision 94/800, all relations between contracting entities and GPA countries' suppliers are governed by this decision.

Article 36 of the so-called Utilities Directives allows contracting entities to reject a tender if the proportion of non-Community products contained exceeds 50 per cent of the total value of the products constituting the tender. In presence of two equivalent tenders, rejection is compulsory. They are considered to be equivalent if the price difference does not exceed 3 per cent between tenders containing Community or non-Community products as described above.

This article only applies to entities covered by Annex 3 to Appendix I of the Agreement. However, the provisions of this article are automatically disapplied in case that an Agreement ensures comparable and effective access for Community suppliers. This is particularly the case of the GPA. A communication clarifying this issue was published in the Official Journal C332 page 9, of 9.12.1995.

See also Council Decision N° 94/800/EC, of 22.12.1994 referred to in answer to question N° 1.

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

EC Directives provide for the publication of notices of proposed procurement. We can distinguish the traditional sectors from the utilities.

For the traditional sectors (entities listed in Annex 1 and 2 of the GPA), Contracting authorities shall make known, by means of a notice, their intention to award a contract. This notice shall be sent to the Office for Official Publications of the European Communities, which shall publish it not later than 12 days after its dispatch (5 days in accelerated procedures). Notices shall be drawn up in accordance with the models given in the Annexes to the relevant directives, and shall specify the information requested in those models. Notices are published in full in the Official Journal of the European Communities (supplement S) and in the TED data base in the original language, which alone is authentic. A summary of the important elements of each notice is published in the other official languages of the Community, the original text alone being authentic. At present, the official languages of the Community are: Danish, Dutch, English, Finnish, French, German, Greek, Italian, Portuguese, Spanish and Swedish.

In the utilities sectors (entities covered under Annex 3), a call for competition is published in full in the original language in the O.J. of the E.C. and in the TED data bank. A summary of the important elements of each notice is published in the other official languages of the Community, the original text alone being authentic. Notices are sent to the Office for Official Publications of the European Communities, which publishes them not later than 12 days after dispatch (5 days in accelerated procedures).

Calls for competition may adopt four different forms: a notice stating the intention to award a particular contract; a periodic indicative notice to which undertakings can express their interest (in that case, it must have been published not more than 12 months prior to the date on which the invitation to confirm the interest is sent, there is no further publication of a notice of a call for competition); a notice on the existence of a qualification system; or a notice of a call for competition in the case of design contests.

Moreover, electronic standard forms are currently being used for transmission of notices to the Office of Publications. However, the use of standard forms is not yet mandatory.

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

As regards the traditional sectors (Annexes 1 and 2), in addition to invitation to tender notices, pre-information notices are published. These are however purely for information and cannot be used as a call for competition. In works contracts, contracting authorities publish indicative notices containing the essential characteristics of the works contracts which they intend to award. This notice is published in full in all the official languages of the Community, the original text alone being authentic. In other services and in supplies contracts, contracting authorities shall make known, by means of an indicative notice to be published as soon as possible after the beginning of their budgetary year, the intended total procurement which they envisage awarding during the subsequent 12 months where the total estimated value is not less than ECU 750,000.

As regards utilities, (Annex 3 entities), see the answer to question 7.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

In the case of Annex 3 entities, contracting entities which so wish may establish and operate a system of qualification of suppliers, contractors and service providers. An informative notice is published in the Official Journal of the European Communities. The system operates on the basis of objective criteria and rules. Updating of criteria and rules is possible. Refusal of qualification or bringing the qualification to an end must be reasoned and applicants or services providers should be notified.

Where a qualification system exists and a Qualification Notice is used as the sole "call for competition", the selection of candidates for bidlists for specific contracts must derive from those suppliers or contractors qualified under the system.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

In the case of entities covered by Annexes 1 and 2 of the GPA, Contracting Authorities are entirely free to opt between open or restricted procedures. However, the option of negotiated procedures, with or without prior publication of a contract notice, is limited to particular situations:

- with prior publication of a contract notice:
 - in case of irregular tenders in response to an open or restricted procedure or in the case of tenders which are unacceptable under national provisions insofar as the original terms for the contract are not substantially altered (supplies, works, services);
 - when the works involved are carried out for the purpose of research, experiment, or development (works);
 - in exceptional cases, when the nature of the works/services or the risks attaching thereto do not permit prior overall pricing (works, services);
 - when the nature of the services to be procured is such that contract specifications cannot be established with sufficient precision to permit the award of the contract by using open or restricted procedures (services);
- without prior publication of a contract notice:
 - in the absence of tenders or appropriate tenders in response to an open or restricted procedure insofar as the original terms for the contract are not substantially altered (supplies, works, services);
 - when the products involved are manufactured for the purpose of research, experiment, study or development (supplies);
 - when for technical or artistic reasons, or for reasons connected with protection of exclusive rights, there is only one supplier or contractor (supplies, works, services);
 - when the contract follows a design contest and must be awarded to the successful candidate or one of the successful candidates (services);
 - when it is strictly necessary for reasons of extreme urgency brought about by events unforeseeable (supplies, works, services);
 - in case of additional deliveries by the original supplier, justified by the risk of technical incompatibility or disproportionate technical difficulties (supplies);
 - for additional works/services (up to a limit of 50 per cent of the amount of the main contract) becoming necessary for the carrying out of the work/for the performance of the service through unforeseen circumstances, if the non-separation is justified by technical or economic reasons (works, services);

- for new works/services consisting of the repetition of similar works/services entrusted to the contractor/service provider to which the same contracting authorities awarded an earlier contract, under certain conditions (works, services).

In the case of entities covered by Annex 3, Contracting entities may choose any of the procedures (open, restricted and negotiated) provided that a call for competition has been made (see answer to question 7). This prior call for competition can be avoided under some circumstances:

- in the absence of tenders or suitable tenders in response to procedure with a prior call for competition provided that the original contract conditions have not been substantially changed;
- when the contract is purely for the purpose of research, experiment, study or development, under certain conditions;
- when for technical or artistic reasons, or for reasons connected with protection of exclusive rights, there is only one supplier or contractor;
- when it is strictly necessary for reasons of extreme urgency brought about by events unforeseeable by the contracting entities;
- in case of additional deliveries by the original supplier, justified by the risk of technical incompatibility or disproportionate technical difficulties (supplies);
- for additional works/services becoming necessary for the carrying out of the work/for the performance of the service through unforeseen circumstances, if the non-separation is justified by technical or economic reasons (works, services);
- for new works consisting of the repetition of similar works entrusted to the contractor to which the same contracting authorities awarded an earlier contract, under certain conditions (works);
- for supplies quoted and purchased on a commodity market;
- for contracts to be awarded on the basis of a framework agreement (agreement the purpose of which is to establish the terms governing the contracts to be awarded during a given period);
- for bargain purchases (particularly advantageous opportunity available for a very short space of time at a price considerably lower than normal market prices);
- for purchases of goods under particularly advantageous conditions from either suppliers winding up their business activities or the liquidators for a bankruptcy (or similar);
- when the service contract follows a design contest and must be awarded to the successful candidate or one of the successful candidates (services).

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be “not less than X days”. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time-limits which have been established.

As for the entities covered by Annex 1 and 2 of the GPA, (the traditional sectors) time-limits are as follows:

- In open procedures, the deadline established by the authority for receipt of the tenders cannot be less than 52 calendar days from the date of dispatch of the notice for publication. This time-limit may be reduced (only for works and services) to 36 days if a prior information notice has been published.
- In restricted and negotiated procedures, the bid is preceded by a request from the contractor to be invited to participate in the tender. The time-limit for receipt of requests to participate fixed by the contracting authorities shall be no less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice. The time-limit for receipt of tenders may not be less than 40 days from the date of dispatch of the written invitation in the case of restricted procedures. This time-limit can be reduced to 26 days if a prior information notice has been published. In case of justified urgency, those time-limits may be reduced to not less than 15 days for the receipt of request, and not less than 10 days for the receipt of tenders.

As for the entities covered by Annex 3 of the GPA (utilities operating in some sectors) time-limits are as follows:

- In open procedures, the time-limit for the receipt of tenders is the same as for the traditional sectors: 52 days (36 if pre-information).
- In restricted and negotiated procedures, timing is different. The time-limit for receipt of requests to participate shall, as a general rule, be at least 5 weeks from the date of dispatch of the notice or invitation and shall in any case not be less 22 days (or 15 under certain conditions). The time-limit for receipt of tenders may be fixed by mutual agreement between the contracting entity and the selected candidates, provided that all tenderers are given equal time to prepare and submit tenders. If that kind of agreement is not reached, the contracting entity shall fix a time-limit which shall, as a general rule, be at least 3 weeks and shall in any case not be less than 10 days from the date of invitation to tender.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1 to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The language to be used in public procurement procedures is a matter to be decided by each member State. It must be highlighted that six member States have a WTO language as an official language (Belgium, France, Ireland, Luxembourg, Spain and the United Kingdom).

IV.3 Challenge Procedures - Article XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The rule is that any potential contractor who considers that he has been injured by an unlawful decision on the part of a contracting authority may seek review. There are two levels of remedies available: national procedures and EC level control.

(i) Regarding national remedies, the Community has adopted two directives (the so-called Remedies Directives, see supra chapter I.1) aiming to coordinate the laws, regulations and administrative provisions relating to the application of Community rules on the procurement procedures. According to the general aim of these directives, member States shall take the measures necessary to ensure that decisions taken by contracting entities may be reviewed effectively on the ground that such decisions have infringed Community law in the field of procurement or national rules implementing that law as regards contract award procedures falling within the scope of the Public Authorities Directives or the Utilities Directive. The objective is to ensure that everyone everywhere has the same rights concerning the review procedures.

These directives provide for the establishment in every member State of courts or other legally authorised bodies with real powers to settle the conflicts which might arise between contracting entities and firms, suppliers of services or individuals. This means that in every member State there is some legally authorised body able to resolve conflicts in the field of public procurement. Nevertheless, the nature of the jurisdiction may differ from one member State to another, as well as the remedies available. Review bodies of first instance might not be necessarily judicial in character, although their decision should always be reasoned. However, in such a case, their decision must be subject to judicial review or review by another body which is a court or tribunal within the meaning of article 177 of the Treaty, and independent of both the contracting entity and the review body. This independent body shall take its decisions following a procedure in which both sides are heard, and these decisions shall, by means determined by each member State, be legally binding.

Review procedures are available at least to any person having or having had an interest in obtaining a particular contract and who has been or risks being harmed by an alleged infringement.

Member States must ensure that the review bodies have a minimum number of powers.

- Review of contracting entities' action

In the case of the conflicts arising under the Public Authorities Directive (i.e. entities covered by Annexes 1 and 2 of the Agreement), member States shall ensure that the review bodies have the power to intervene directly in the contracting entities' procurement procedures. Those powers include, firstly, power to take, at the earliest opportunity and by way of interlocutory procedure, interim measures, including measures to suspend or to ensure the suspension of the procedure for the award of a contract or the implementation of any decision taken by the contracting entity. Secondly, power to set aside decisions taken unlawfully (see art. 2.1.a) and b) of the Public Remedies Directive).

In the case of conflicts arising under the Utilities Directive (i.e. entities covered by Annex 3 of the Agreement), member States are authorised to choose between the introduction of different powers for the review bodies which have equivalent effect (taking into account differences in the nature of member States' legal orders).

The first option includes the power to intervene directly in the contracting entities' procurement procedures such as by suspending them, or by setting aside decisions or discriminatory clauses in documents or publications (see art.2.1. a) and b) of the Remedies Utilities Directive).

The second option provides for the power to exert effective indirect pressure on the contracting entities in order to make them correct any infringement, and to prevent injury from occurring. In particular those measures can consist in making an order for the payment of a particular sum, like for instance periodic (or even daily) penalty payments (see art. 2.1.c) of the Remedies Utilities Directive).

Hence, in the case of the Utilities, member States can choose between the first solution or the second one. This choice can be made either for all contracting entities or for categories of entities defined on the basis of objective criteria. In any event, the choice must preserve the effectiveness of the measures laid down in order to prevent injury being caused to the interest concerned.

- Compensation of losses: claims for damages

According to article 2.1.c) of the Public Remedies Directive and article 2.2.d) of the Remedies Utilities Directive, the award of damages to persons injured by the infringement must always be possible. Therefore, third parties injured can seek damages as a consequence of the breach of the public procurement rules.

Directives oblige member States to provide for at least negative damages (damnum emergens), that is to say, the cost of preparing a bid or of participating in an award procedure. Where a claim is made for damages representing those negative costs, the person making such claim shall be required to prove an infringement of Community law in the field of procurement or national rules implementing that law and that he would have a real chance of winning the contract and that, as a consequence of that infringement, that chance was adversely affected. This does not mean that the person making the claim must prove that the contract would have been awarded to him in the absence of such infringement.

That is to say, one needs proof of an infringement, evidence of the damages and it has to be proved that a link of causality exists.

Damages can be claimed directly before the competent courts. However, where damages are claimed on the grounds that a decision has been taken unlawfully, member States may provide that the contested decision must be first set aside or declared illegal, if their system of internal law so requires.

As regards positive damages, i.e. lucrum cessans, the directives do not oblige member States to provide for the compensation of lost profits to the injured persons. However, nothing in the directives prevents member States from including such a possibility in their national rules. In that case, compensation for lost profits will be awarded according to the requirements set up in the national legislation.

As regards punitive damages being awarded to third parties and which would therefore have a deterrent effect, they are unknown in the European legal system. The directive does not contain any provision requiring member States to oblige contracting entities to grant punitive damages to injured persons.

The Utilities Remedies Directive provides for a special procedure known as attestation. Contracting entities are given the possibility of having recourse to an attestation system in which contract award procedures are periodically examined by independent bodies with a view of obtaining an attestation that, at that time, those procedures and practices are in conformity with Community law concerning the award of contracts and the national rules implementing the law.

If the Remedies directives have not been duly implemented, parties may bring a case against the member State in question before a national court of that State, invoking the ECJ case law which states that the member State could be liable for failure to implement directives, provided that some requirements are met (see ECJ judgments in cases Francovitch and Brasserie du Pecheur).

There is also a mixed procedure. Any national court can raise a preliminary question before the European Court of Justice in Luxembourg in order to obtain a judgment interpreting the E.C. law provision which might be applicable to the case. During the procedure before the ECJ, the Commission is allowed to intervene and express its views. After the ruling of the European Court of Justice, the national court "a quo" must rule in the case in question according to the interpretation given. See article 177 of the E.C. Treaty.

(ii) In what concerns EC review procedures, parties can lodge complaints with the EC Commission, possibly at the same time as a domestic legal action, with the latter not being a necessary preliminary to the lodging of such a complaint. A complaint can be treated in confidence and does not involve any expense.

The Commission examines those complaints, and when it considers that an infringement of Community provisions in the field of procurement has been committed, it can open the procedure established in articles 169 and 170 of the Treaty, which, after prior consultations between the Commission and the member State, can lead to the adoption of a decision by the European Court of Justice. There is a special procedure under article 3 of the Remedies Directive and article 8 of the Remedies Utilities directive in the case that the Commission considers that an infringement has been committed prior to a contract being concluded.

The Commission can also, under articles 186 of the E.C. Treaty and 83 of the Procedure Regulation of the Court, seek, in an interlocutory procedure before the Court of Justice, to obtain the suspension of the award procedure.

(iii) These directives are implemented at member State level. See infra for detailed information.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? In the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?
- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?
- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?
- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

IV.3.A Challenge procedures - Article XX: Austria

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The challenge procedure is exercised by:

- (1) the "Bundesvergabekontrollkommission" (hereinafter "Control Commission"); and
- (2) the "Bundesvergabeamt" (hereinafter "Federal Procurement Agency") in first and final instance.

The actual challenge procedure before the Federal Procurement Agency is initiated by an undertaking, which claims to have an interest in obtaining a particular public contract, subject to the Federal Procurement Act, and which seeks review of an unlawful decision of a contracting authority in the procurement procedure, provided that it has been or risks being harmed by the alleged infringement.

The Federal Procurement Agency is responsible for the execution of the challenge procedure which aims at setting aside unlawful decisions. Before the award of the contract, the Federal Procurement Agency has the competence:

- (1) to issue interim measures (see also point 14. (iv) below); and
- (2) to annul unlawful decisions of the contracting authority.

Following the award of the contract or the award procedure, the Federal Procurement Agency is responsible for stating if the contract has not been awarded to the economically most advantageous bidder in an unlawful manner.

The complaint to the Federal Procurement Agency is normally subject to the precondition that the claimant first attempted to reach an amicable settlement before the Control Commission, where the case has not already been settled amicably, and also that the claimant appeals within two weeks after the Control Commission has made a recommendation on the case.

Following the conclusion of the contract or the completion of the award procedure, the time-limit is six weeks commencing from the day the claimant learns of the award.

As regards a claim for damages on behalf of the neglected bidder, please refer to point 14(v) below.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than 10 days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

As regards the time-limit for a complaint before the Federal Procurement Agency, please refer to question 13 above. The following paragraphs provide information on the procedure before the Control Commission.

Before the award is made, the Control Commission is responsible for the settlement of disputes between candidates or tenderers and the contracting entity in relation to the award procedure upon request. After the dispute has become known, the request has to be filed expeditiously. There is no official time-limit.

The conciliation body of the Control Commission shall hear both parties of the dispute and shall investigate the facts of the case. Within a time-limit of two weeks, it must try to reach an amicable settlement. If this is not possible, the conciliation body has to make a recommendation on the application of the provision which gave cause to the dispute.

During the procedure before the Control Commission the contracting authority must not award the contract.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"? In the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

The Federal Procurement Agency is a public body granted with sovereign rights. It has the competence to deliver enforceable acts. Its members are free in their decisions and not bound by any directives or orders. Appeals are not allowed from the Federal Procurement Agency to any other administrative agency or the Administrative Court. The only recourse against a decision of the Federal Procurement Agency is a complaint to the Constitutional Court.

The Federal Procurement Agency consists of a chairman, a sufficient number of deputy chairmen and other members. The chairman and the deputy chairmen must hold positions as judges. The President of the Republic appoints them all upon the recommendation of the Federal Government for a period of five years.

The Federal Procurement Agency therefore fulfils the criteria of a tribunal within the meaning of Article six of the Human Rights Convention as well as the criteria of a court within the meaning of Article 177 Treaty of Rome.

The Control Commission, in contrast, is a mere arbitration body which has no competence to deliver enforceable acts. It is restricted to mediation and negotiation only. As regards its composition and the legal position of its members, the same rules apply for the Federal Procurement Agency.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Federal Procurement Act of 1997 and the regulations enacted upon it are applicable to the challenge procedures on federal level. Claims for damages have to be brought before civil courts and are governed by Civil Law.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

After the initiation of the challenge procedure before the Federal Procurement Agency, this body may, upon request, grant necessary and appropriate interim measures by way of an interlocutory procedure, to prevent the complainant against further injury of its interests. The body has to take into account the probable consequences for all interests likely to be affected, especially the public interest in continuing such a procedure.

The interim measures may include:

- (1) the interim suspension of the whole award procedure; or
 - (2) the interim suspension of decisions of the contracting authority as long the Agency has not decided on the merits.
- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

If the contracting authority has breached the provisions of the Federal Procurement Act culpably, a neglected tenderer or candidate may claim damages, provided that it could have a real chance of winning the contract, had the contracting authority complied with the law. A neglected tenderer may demand lost profit, bid preparation costs as well as all other costs caused by the participation in the award procedure. The claim for damages has to be filed at the ordinary civil courts.

Austrian Procurement Law does not provide any means for rescinding a concluded contract. However, the annulment of a concluded contract is possible in certain restricted circumstances under Austrian Civil Law.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The Federal Procurement Agency has to decide on an application for an interim measure within five days, at the latest. On an application for the annulment of decisions of the contracting authority, the time-limit is two months, provided that the contract has not been awarded. Furthermore, the Austrian Code on Administrative Procedure is applicable to the administrative procedure before the Federal Procurement Agency.

- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The complainant may be required to pay the expenses of the procedure before the Federal Procurement Agency according to the Austrian Code on Administrative Procedure. There is no fee for the complainant before the Control Commission.

IV.3.B Challenge procedures - Article XX: Belgium

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The Council of State (Conseil d'Etat) is the judicial body responsible for ruling, by means of orders, with respect to annulment proceedings against acts of the various administrative authorities.

As regards government contracts in particular, the Council of State may annul any unilateral and detachable acts associated with their conclusion and execution.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than ten days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

To lodge an appeal for annulment of an administrative act with the Council of State, the applicant must provide evidence of damage or legitimate interest. The application to intervene must be submitted within a maximum time-limit of 60 days following the date on which the applicant learned of the administrative act in question.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"?

The Council of State is an administrative tribunal.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The coordinated laws of 12 January 1973 on the Council of State.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Requests for the suspension of an administrative act may be referred to the Council of State, which may order suspension of execution to safeguard the interests of the parties (summary administrative jurisdiction procedure).

Suspension of execution may only be ordered if serious grounds are put forward to justify the annulment of the challenged act and provided the immediate execution of the act could cause an applicant serious damage which is difficult to repair.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

When a complaint has been lodged of violation of the Agreement in the course of public procurement procedures coming within the scope of application of the Agreement, the Council of State annuls the challenged decision.

Requests for compensation of loss come under civil law and fall within the jurisdiction of the civil courts.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The decision to suspend execution as described in point (iv) above is an emergency decision and taken as rapidly as possible. The final decision is taken within the time-limit required to examine each case with due respect for the rights of the Parties.

- (vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The costs of initiating a challenge procedure with the Council of State are minimal, amounting to 7,000 Belgian francs in 1997. Lawyers' fees are charged to the complainant.

IV.3.D Challenge procedures - Article XX: Germany

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

In the Federal Republic of Germany there are two separate bodies which are responsible for challenge procedures:

(a) The challenge procedure before the initial review bodies - "die Vergabeprüfstellen" - (Procurement Inspection Agencies) may be initiated ex officio or ex parte by a bidder. There is no time-limit to launch a complaint. There is no restriction of access to the challenge procedure for the participants. The proceedings can take place in public. Participants can be heard by the review body before a decision is reached. Participants can be represented by a lawyer. Opinions or decisions are given in writing with a statement describing the basis for the opinion or decision. A presentation of witnesses is possible. Documents have to be disclosed to the review body if requested.

The "Vergabeprüfstelle" may force the awarding authority to set aside unlawful actions or decisions or to set lawful actions or decisions. In particular, the "Vergabeprüfstelle" is authorised to suspend awarding procedures. In its consideration the body has to take into account the probable consequences for all interests likely to be affected, especially the public interest in continuing such a procedure. There is no fee for the complainant before this body.

(b) The secondary review bodies responsible for challenge procedures are the "Vergabeüberwachungsausschüsse" (Procurement Monitoring Commissions) which are courts in accordance with EC law. On a federal level they are attached to the "Bundeskartellamt" (Federal Antitrust Authority), on the state level as a rule to the "Landeskartellämter" (Regional Antitrust Authorities).

The function of the "Vergabeüberwachungsausschüsse" is to review the decisions of the "Vergabeprüfstellen". This review procedure can be initiated by the complainant of the procedure before the “Vergabepflichtstelle” within four weeks after a decision has been taken. All participants of the first procedure must be heard by the review body. The body can either legitimize the decision of the “Vergabepflichtstelle” or declare it unlawful. In the latter case, the “Vergabepflichtstelle” is instructed by the “Vergabeüberwachungsausschuß” to re-examine the case and decide upon it according to its own interpretation of law.

The complainant may be required to pay the expenses of the procedure.

The president of the “Bundeskartellamt” is responsible for the appointment of the members of the “Vergabeüberwachungsausschuß” on the federal level who are independent and only subject to the law. The chairman and one of the assessors must be officials, the chairman and one of the assessors must hold position as judges.

If the “Vergabeüberwachungsausschuß” considers that a decision on the interpretation of Community law is necessary to enable it to give judgement, it must bring the matter before the European Court of Justice.

The legal basis for the establishment of the “Vergabepflichtstellen” and the “Vergabeüberwachungsausschüsse” is Art. 57 b and Art. 57 c of the “Haushaltsgrundsätze-gesetz” (Budgetary Principles Law) and the “Nachprüfungsverordnung” (review directive).

Independently of the review decision, bidders may claim damages before ordinary courts; this is not subject to a time-limit.

In order to improve the rights of aggrieved bidders, the Federal Government of Germany has decided to give them access to ordinary courts. The legal framework is currently being amended.

IV.3.DK Challenge procedures - Article XX: Denmark

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

For answer, refer to the enclosed article on the challenge procedures in Denmark, published in the EU Public Contract Law N° 1/1996.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is “not less than 10 days”. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

There are not time-limits.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a “court” or an “impartial and independent review body”?

The Danish Appeal Board for Public Procurement is, at the least, ‘an impartial and independent review body’. It is not clear, however whether the review body possesses all the characteristics required to be considered as a ‘court’ in the sense of Article 177 of the Treaty.

The Composition of the appeal Board is the following: A High Court judge acts as chairman, assisted by two deputy chairmen also holding position as judges. A number of experts serve as ‘specialist members’ of the Board in addition to the judges. Chairman, deputy chairmen and experts are all appointed by the Minister for Industry and Trade and serve for 4 years. They may be re-appointed upon expiration of their 4-year term.

The decisions of the Appeal Board are subject to judicial review. Within a period of 8 weeks from the date on which the decision of the Board has been communicated to the parties of a dispute, this decision can be brought before the ordinary courts.

To bring a complaint before the board is, according to Danish law, an option. Alternatively, a complaint can be brought before an ordinary court in the first instance. Also in such cases, a decision can be brought before a higher court.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

‘Applicable law’ is EC law on public procurement or Danish regulations implementing EC law in that field (which amounts to the same) plus relevant EC Treaty provisions (in cases where a public contract, e.g. because of minor value, is not subject to the provisions of the EC procurement directives).

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The review body has the powers to suspend contract award procedures or require the contracting authority/entity to comply with applicable law (in other words to legalise its actions).

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The review body can annul unlawful decisions on which the award of a contract is based or impose the latter of the two sanctions mentioned under (iv) above.

Compensation falls outside the competence of the Board and has to be claimed separately from a bid challenge before an ordinary court (except, probably, in cases where decisions taken by a contracting authority/entity are challenged directly before an ordinary court_-and not the review body)..

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

There are no legally fixed time periods for the stages of the challenge process. These are fixed by the chairman of the review body, taking into account the need for a rapid settlement of disputes in accordance with the objectives of the 'remedies' directive and the GPA and, of course, the need for a particularly rapid reaction from the Appeal Board in cases where imposition of interim measures is requested.

- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

It is formally required that a fee of DKK 4000 is paid together with the submission of a complaint before the Appeal Board. This fee will be paid back to the complainant in cases where the Board, in whole or in part, rules in his favour. There is no requirement as to representation before the Board through an expert, e.g. a solicitor. However, in cases where the Board rules in favour of a complainant, the is entitled to claim the expenses (in addition to the fee) he might have had to cover legal or other expert assistance in connection with the complaint.

IV.3.E Challenge procedures - Article XX: Spain

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The notification of the agreements must contain a precise reference to the challenge procedures including: the type of remedy available, the body responsible and the deadline for filing complaints, with the warning that the deadline runs from the day on which the notification is received.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than ten days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

Thirty days or two months according to the type of remedy.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"?

According to the type of remedy, the administrative body hierarchically above the body responsible for the challenged act, or a jurisdictional court.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

Law 30/1992 of 16 November on the legal regime of the public administrations and on the common administrative procedure, and the Law on Administrative Jurisdiction of 27 December 1956.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The body responsible for settling the complaint is authorized to act ex officio or at the request of a party to suspend the challenged act.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The ruling must cover all of the questions raised during the challenge procedure, declaring them either admissible or inadmissible, and if admissible, accepting or rejecting them.

Compensation for loss or damages suffered may be decided during the same proceedings or in separate proceedings where there are good grounds.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

In the case of administrative challenges (Law on the legal regime of the public administrations and on the common administrative procedures) a ruling must be pronounced within a period of three months. If an explicit decision is not made during that time-period, the challenge is to be understood to have been rejected, without prejudice to the administration's obligation to reach a settlement.

The time-limits for judicial proceedings are governed by the Law on Administrative Challenge, and the settlement of challenges depends on the issues under consideration.

- (vii) What is the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Administrative challenges are free of charge. Judicial challenges are also free of charge except in cases where the challenge is considered to have been made in bad faith.

IV.3.EL Challenge procedures - Article XX: Greece

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Greek law provides for challenge proceedings in public procurement cases. The proceedings are indeed in writing and are open to all aggrieved parties. Very recently Greece has also adopted legislation to implement the Remedies Directive, i.e., directive 89/665/EEC. No implementing measures for Directive 92/13/EEC (the Remedies Utilities Directive) have been adopted. Greece have to implement the latter by 1.1.1998.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is “not less than 10 days”. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

A complaint is subject to the jurisdiction of the administrative or civil courts, depending on the nature of the awarding authority. If the complainant seeks the annulment of an administrative act, such as an award decision, the action should be filed to the Supreme administrative court of Greece within a time-limit of sixty days from the date on which the contested act is published or notified.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a “court” or an “impartial and independent review body”?

The bodies responsible for challenge proceedings are courts.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

Greek law and Community law.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

A complainant may apply to court for an interim order, which may result in the suspension of the procurement process, the conservation of documents etc. If successful, the complainant will have to introduce a full court action within thirty days from the order.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The awarding decision might be annulled. Damages may also be awarded.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

Under the new law, which I understand will enter into force in November this year, the complainant has to introduce an objection with the awarding authority within 5 days from taking notice of the contested act. The decision on the objection must be rendered within 10 days. Interim proceedings to a court will have to be introduced within 10 days from the decision of the awarding authority. If successful, the complainant will have to introduce a full court action within thirty days from the order.

- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The costs will depend on the procedure and the value of the project. In both administrative and civil proceedings, the judge will usually order the losing party to pay the legal costs of the successful party. However the amount covered is very low and does not cover the actual costs of a procedure.

In as far as there is an agreement between the contracting service and a contractor/supplier, a claim may be filed pursuant to Article 74, Book 6 of the Civil Code.

In the event of any failure to comply with an agreement, a claim may be filed by the contracting service or the party to whom the contract was awarded.

- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Other costs include the costs of legal aid, the costs of providing evidence, such as indemnification of witnesses (Article 208 of the Rv) and remuneration of experts (Articles 223 and 225 of the Rv). The Legal Aid for Indigent Persons Act provides for the possibility of cost-free legal action.

IV.3.P Challenge procedures - Article XX: Portugal

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Public procurement challenges are governed by the Law on the Procedure of Administrative Tribunals (Lei de Processo dos Tribunais Administrativos) approved by Decree Law (Decreto-Lei) N° 267/85 of 16 July 1985 with the amendments introduced by Law N° 12/86 of 21 May 1986.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to lodge a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than ten days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

The first paragraph of Article 64 of Decree Law N° 55/95 of 29 March provides for a special time-limit of five days for the submission of a hierarchical remedy with respect to the discussion of a claim. Apart from this special time-limit, the usual time-limit for a hierarchical remedy challenging the legality of administrative acts is 30 days.

As regards contentious remedies in respect of administrative acts, the complainant has two months (four months for Macau residents or residents abroad) and the Government Procurator one year to initiate the procedure (Article 28 of Decree Law 267/85 of 16 July), and administrative law establishes the rule concerning the possibility of challenging at all times acts that are void or non-existent.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"?

While the body responsible for challenge procedures is above all the body hierarchically above the one responsible for the act, contentious remedies are examined by the Administrative Tribunals.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenged body will examine complaints?

The applicable law is the Law on the Procedure of the Administrative Tribunals (Ley de Processo dos Tribunais Administrativos).

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

There are no special rapid interim measures beyond those set forth in Article 84 of the Code of Administrative Procedure regarding the competence of the body responsible for the final decision. The interested parties may request suspension of execution of the administrative act during the contentious stage (Articles 76 and 55 of the Law on the Procedure of Administrative Tribunals and Decree Law N° 267/85 of 16 July). If the cumulative conditions of Article 76, paragraphs 1(a) and 1(c) are met, the result is a suspension of the procurement proceedings pending a decision by the tribunal.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenged body order?

In general, breaches of the Agreement can be corrected by cancelling the administrative act awarding the contract and repeating the proceedings, or by granting compensation for the damage sustained in accordance with Decree N° 48051 of 21 November 1967 governing the tortious liability of the State with respect to public management acts.

- vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

It is impossible to give any precise reply concerning the overall time-period for the contentious stage. However, challenge procedures are often efficient.

- vii) What is the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Common operational costs of the tribunals, which vary according to the value of the remedy.

IV.3.S Challenge procedures - Article XX: Sweden

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

The remedies provided for in Chapter 7 of the Swedish Law on Public Procurement (LOU) in its current form are provisional measures and annulment proceedings as well as actions for damages. A supplier in the broad sense of the term claiming to have suffered injury or to be threatened with injury due to a violation of the provisions of the LOU may file a complaint with the Administrative Tribunal (Länsrätt), which determines whether the challenged public procurement procedure has been conducted in accordance with the said Law. The Administrative Tribunal may either take provisional measures or annul the procedure at any time until the public procurement contract has been concluded.

Once the contract has been concluded, the supplier may still submit a claim for damages to an ordinary court (allmän domstol). Indeed, the LOU stipulates that a contracting authority that has violated the rules established by the LOU must provide the supplier in question with compensation for the damage sustained.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is "not less than ten days". What are the limits in domestic legislation?

As regards provisional measures and annulment proceedings, the supplier may file a complaint with the Administrative Tribunal until the contract has been awarded.

A claim for damages may be filed with an ordinary court within a period of one year following the date on which the contract was concluded.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a "court" or an "impartial and independent review body"?

The Administrative Tribunal has jurisdiction over provisional measures and annulment proceedings. The common courts have jurisdiction for awarding damages to parties injured through a violation of the law.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

Law on Public Procurement (1992:1528), amended and republished as Law (1993:1468) which entered into force on 1 January 1994, and further amended by Law (1994:614) which entered into force on 1 July 1994, Law (1995:704) of 8 June 1995 which entered into force on 1 July 1995, and by Law (1996:433). A further amendment is expected to enter into force on 1 January 1998.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The administrative tribunal may order the immediate suspension of the public procurement procedure pending a definitive decision on the substance of the case. It may, however, refrain from taking such a decision if the damage or inconvenience deriving from such decision can be considered to exceed the damage suffered by the supplier.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?
- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.
- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

(v)-(vii) The Swedish Public Procurement Office refers to the document attached hereto which deals, inter alia, with the question of remedies in Sweden.

IV.3.SF Challenge procedures - Article XX: Finland

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Award of damages. A claim for damages in case of an award procedure contrary to the Agreement or the implementing legislation shall be made in the court of law according the normal procedural rules of civil process law. One who has occasioned harm to a contractor by a procedure contrary to the Agreement or the implementing legislation shall be obliged to pay damages for the harm caused. Where a claim is made for damages representing the costs of participating in an award procedure, the candidate or tenderer shall, in order to be awarded damages, be required only to prove an incorrect procedure and that he would have had a real chance of winning the contract if the procedure had been correct.

Other remedies. The Competition Council may, at the request of the person to whom the proceedings apply:

- wholly or partly set aside a decision of a contracting party
- forbid the contracting entity to apply a point in a document relating to the procurement or otherwise to pursue an incorrect procedure, or
- require the contracting entity to correct its incorrect procedure.

The request shall be made in writing. A request concerning which proceedings have been instituted after the contract has been concluded shall not be accepted for consideration. The claimant shall, before submitting a claim to the Competition Council, inform the contracting entity in writing of his intention to bring the matter before the Competition Council. The Competition Council may, in order to emphasize the importance of complying with the prohibition mentioned above at point 2) or with the obligation referred to above at point 3, impose a fine on the contracting entity.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

- (i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is “not less than 10 days”. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

There is no time-limit to launch a complaint in the Competition Council. It must be noted, however, that the Competition Council does not accept a complaint for consideration after the conclusion of the contract in question. In cases where the contract has already been concluded, the only remedy available is a claim for the award of damages before a court of law.

- (ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a “court” or an “impartial and independent review body”?

The body responsible for the challenge procedures is the Competition Council, which is an impartial and independent review body. It has a chairman, a vice-chairman and seven members. The matter concerning the composition of the Council is prepared for discussion by the cabinet and referred for decision to the President of the Republic of Finland. The chairman and the vice-chairman of the Council shall have a degree in law and they shall have a good knowledge of the responsibilities of a judge. The members shall be persons who have a good knowledge of different aspects of economic life.

The decisions of the Competition Council are subject to judicial review before the Supreme Administrative Court.

- (iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Competition Council will examine the complaints by reference to the Public Procurement Act (1502/92, amend. 1523/94), Order on the Procurement of Supplies, Services and Works in excess of the Threshold Value (243/95) or Order on the Procurement of Supplies, Services and Works by Entities Operating in the Water, Energy, Transport and Telecommunications Sectors (567/94, amend. 244/95). The Council may also apply directly the applicable provisions of the EC Treaty, applicable EC directives or the Agreement.

- (iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

After a claim has been brought before it, the Competition Council may, as an interim measure, forbid or suspend the implementation of a decision or otherwise order the procurement procedure to be suspended for the period during which the matter is being dealt with in the Competition Council. The prohibition to apply a point in a document relating to the procurement or otherwise to pursue an incorrect procedure (mentioned above in question 13) and the obligation to correct incorrect procedure (referred to above in question 13) may also be imposed as an interim measure.

- (v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The remedies for correction of the Agreement provided by the Competition Council are referred to under question 13.

- (vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

In urgent cases, the order for interim measures can be obtained from the Competition Council already on the same day when the proceedings have been instituted.

The time periods needed for adoption of the final decision depend on the various aspects of an individual case. In general, the Competition Council has given its final decisions within approximately 2-6 months from the initiation of the proceedings.

- (vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

There is no information available on the usual costs of a challenge procedure. The Competition Council does not charge any fee of the challenge procedure, but there may be some other costs such as the fee charged by the lawyers the parties to a dispute may want to use etc. There is, however, no legal obligation to use a member of bar or any other type of a legal counsellor in the proceedings.

It is also possible that the Competition Council orders the losing side of the dispute to pay the process costs of the winning side. This may naturally lead to situations where the total costs of the proceeding may be considerably high.

IV.3.UK Challenge procedures - Article XX: United Kingdom

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

See EC answer.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is “not less than 10 days”. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

Complaints are required to be brought to the attention of the contracting authority/entity. Proceedings have to be initiated as rapidly as possible and, unless the courts grant leave, within three months of the grounds arising;

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a “court” or an “impartial and independent review body”?

The UK review bodies are the High Courts in England, Wales and Northern Ireland and the Court of Session in Scotland.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The applicable law by reference to which the Courts will examine complaints is likely to be the UK Regulations which implement the EC_rules and the proposed Regulations for clarifying the rights of GPA_providers where the GPA applies. In the meantime the courts can be expected to rely on their inherent jurisdiction to provide remedies for breach of the GPA, by reference to the GPA itself and the existing remedies for EC providers.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities? Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The UK courts have the necessary powers to award interim measures to correct breaches of the GPA, including suspension of an incomplete contract award procedure.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The UK courts have powers to correct breaches by ordering the setting aside of a decision or action, or amendment of a document, by awarding damages or by both of these except that under the UK_non-implementation of the EC Compliance and Remedies Directives damages are to be the only remedy once a contract has been entered into.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

It is unlikely that there would be any significant delay in an application for interim measures but a final decision may take somewhat longer to obtain, depending on the facts of the case.

(vii) What are the usual cost to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The costs are those of legal representation.

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Switzerland

The attached communication has been received from the Permanent Mission of Switzerland in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. SUMMARY OF THE SWISS LEGISLATION ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

Switzerland's international obligations in the area of public procurement have been transposed into national legislation through a federal law on government procurement and a federal ordinance on government procurement covering the entities on the national level and the entities operating in the water, energy and transportation sector owned or controlled by federal entities. Both have entered into force on 1 January 1996. On the cantonal level, an agreement has been concluded between the Swiss cantons covering the entities on the subfederal level and the entities operating in the water, energy and transportation sector which are owned or controlled by cantonal entities.

-Federal Law on Government Procurement of 16 December 1994 (SR¹ 172.056.1)

-Federal Ordinance on Government Procurement of 11 December 1995 (SR 172.065.11)

-Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement of 25 November 1994 (SR 172.056.4)

(a) Federal Law on Government Procurement of 16 December 1994

Scope: Procurement of goods (i.e. supplies), services and construction services mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 4 and Annex 5 of the GPA by:

Federal agencies mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 1 of the GPA with a value above the following thresholds²: supplies: Sw F 263,000; services: Sw F 263,000; construction services: Sw F 10,070,000.

Exemptions: The list of exemptions coincides with the exemptions according to Article XXIII of the GPA.

Content: The law provides for the implementation of the provisions of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) on the federal level. In line with these provisions, it guarantees non-discriminatory access to public procurement markets for suppliers established in Switzerland and in the signatories of the GPA or in other countries, as far as they grant reciprocity. Procurement above the thresholds has to be published and procured in an open or selective procedure. The award is given to the economically most advantageous offer, specified by objective criteria which must already be included in the publication. It furthermore provides for the possibility to challenge a procurement before an independent body for every relevant part of the procurement procedure. A tenderer whose offer has been rejected may claim damages, if the rejection has breached the regulations.

(b) Federal Ordinance on Government Procurement of 11 December 1995

¹Reference to the Swiss systematic law collection

²The thresholds have been adapted according to the Decision of the GPA Committee (document GPA/1 of 5 March 1996) and therefore amount for 1997 to: Sw F 248,950 for supplies and services on national level and Sw F 766,000 for supplies and services by entities in the sectors water, energy and transportation and Sw F 9,575,000 for construction services for all covered entities.

Scope: On the one hand, the ordinance gives some details on the provisions contained in the federal law. On the other hand, the ordinance regulates the procurement of goods, services and construction services by the federal agencies mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 1 of the GPA not attaining the thresholds. It also regulates the procurement of goods, services and construction services by Swiss Telecom, the Swiss Federal Railways as well as the procurement by entities in the military sector.

Content: The ordinance aims at full competition for the procurement of goods, services and construction services by setting clear rules on publications, opening and treatment of offers.

(c) Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement of 25 November 1994

Scope: Public procurement of goods, services mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 4 and construction services mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 5 of the GPA by: (a) cantonal entities mentioned in Appendix I, Annex 2 of the GPA and public enterprises owned or controlled by the cantons; (b) communities and other corporations under public law; (c) private or public entities which are active in the field of supply of water, energy and transport or in the telecommunications sector and which are controlled by cantonal or local agencies mentioned under (a) and (b); (d) other organizations covered by GPA or by other international agreements; (e) any procurement that is subsidized by 50% or more by the Swiss Federal Government or by entities mentioned under (a). Thresholds³: Sw F 403,000 for goods (supplies) and services; Sw F 10,070,000 for construction services; Sw F 806,000 for procurement of goods and services in the field of supply of water, energy and transport, and telecommunication.

Exemptions: The same exemptions apply as in Article XXIII of the GPA and in the Federal Law on Government Procurement.

Content: The agreement implements the provisions of the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA) on the subfederal level. In line with these provisions, it guarantees non-discriminatory access to public procurement markets, through non-discriminatory tendering procedures, by setting clear rules on publications, opening and treatment of offers. It furthermore provides for the possibility to challenge the award of a procurement before an independent cantonal body.

2. OTHER REGULATIONS RELATED TO GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

(a)Law on National Budget of 6 October 1989 (SR 611.0)

(b)Ordinance on National Budget of 11 June 1990 (SR 611.01)

Scope: Principles for managing the budget such as legality, urgency, efficiency and economy.

(c)Federal Law (SR 725.11) of 8 March 1960 and Ordinance on National Highways of 18 December 1995

Scope: Principles for government procurement are laid down. Furthermore the cantonal legislation is applicable. Although the cantons are competent in this domain, they need the approval of the Swiss Federal Highways Office (which is supervising the construction of national highways) before a contract is awarded.

(d)Law on the Establishment of a Swiss Common Market of 6 October 1995

Scope: Persons, whether national or foreign, domiciled in Switzerland, shall have, in pursuit of their commercial activities, equal access to the market all over the Swiss territory. In particular, the law aims at improving professional mobility within Switzerland, strengthening the competitiveness of the Swiss economy, supporting cantons in their efforts to harmonize conditions for market access. Concerning public procurement, Article 5 states the principle of non-discrimination and the obligation of public tendering of procurement of a •certain significance•. The law provides for a challenge procedure against any restrictions to market access.

4. ANSWERS TO THE CHECKLIST

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1) Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The Agreement has been transposed into national/subfederal law by the Federal Law on Government Procurement and the Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement.

Although Switzerland follows the monistic theory with respect to the relation of national and international law, implementation of the Agreement by federal and inter-cantonal instruments was necessary (e.g. to introduce the challenge procedure).

2) In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Yes. However, according to the Swiss constitution, any inter-cantonal agreement has to be approved by the federal government in order to ensure that the agreement does not violate federal law.

3) In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

These are either covered by national or cantonal legislation.

4) Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

The implementing legislation for sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities falling under sub-central level legislation, has to be adopted by all 26 cantons.

In substance and with respect to the GPA, there are only minor differences in the implementing legislation (e.g. the time-limit for complaints is 20 days on federal and 10 days on subfederal level).

5) To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Invitation to submit offers and information on contract awards for supplies above the thresholds on central government level is published in the database TED (Tender Electronic Daily) of the EC. Otherwise information technology is not yet much used in the process of government procurement. This is likely to change in the future: Switzerland participates in the EU project SIMAP for electronic tendering and there are plans to edit the •Swiss Official Trade Gazette• or at least the part relating to government procurement publications electronically.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6) Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

-Federal Law on Government Procurement: Article 1, paragraph 2.

-Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement: Article 1, paragraph 2, lit. b.

7) Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

For open and selective tendering, a tender notice has to be published. The regulations on national and sub-central level describe in detail the information to be provided such as name and address of the procuring entity, the type of procedure (open or selective), place of delivery, content of contract, date of execution or delivery, place and time-limit for the offer, amount of securities (if required), all technical and economic requirements, award criteria, if no specific documentation is being handed out and further information.

8) Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Swiss implementing legislation does also provide for this opportunity: according to Article 18, paragraph 2 of the Federal Law on Government Procurement, Annex 3 entities owned or controlled by federal entities and the automobile services of PTT can publish notices simultaneously with a qualification system. The Inter-cantonal Agreement also foresees this possibility for Annex 2 entities and Annex 3 entities owned or controlled by cantonal entities.

9) In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

Entities are allowed to make use of permanent lists of suppliers. Suppliers and service providers must at any time have the possibility to ask for inclusion in the list. The respective entity has to examine the request within due time. If the procuring entity refuses to accept a supplier on the list, it has to deliver a contestable decision. It is possible to challenge this decision before the Federal Appeals Commission or the cantonal administrative courts independent body. Suppliers and service providers which are not yet on the list have to be included in the procurement procedure, if the procurement is not being delayed by their inclusion in the list. If the list is not limited to a period of three years, the list and the conditions to be fulfilled by suppliers with a view to their inscription on those lists and the methods according to which each of those conditions are verified by the entity concerned have to be published annually.

10) Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

The Federal Law on Government Procurement foresees the possibility of negotiations (Article 20) under the conditions that in the tender notice suppliers have been informed about possible negotiation procedures or if none of the offers appears to be the economically most advantageous.

The Inter-cantonal Agreement on Public Procurement does not foresee this possibility (Article 11 lit. c).

11) Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be •not less than X days•. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

Time-limits have been established in the domestic legislation as set out in the GPA (Article 19 Ordinance on Government Procurement for central government procurement and paragraphs 17 and 18 of the Procurement Directives to the Inter-cantonal Agreement).

12) To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The Federal Law on Government Procurement does not foresee any limitation of languages allowed for tenders. It is the practice to accept tenders to be submitted in one of the official Swiss languages, which are German, French (WTO language) and Italian. For certain very technical tenders also English has been accepted.

Paragraph 21 of the Procurement Directives to the Inter-cantonal Agreement lays down the obligation to submit tenders in the language of the procedure.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13) Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Under the coverage of the Law on Government Procurement, suppliers having an interest in a nullification or modification of a decision of a covered entity may appeal against alleged breaches. A special independent judicial authority (•Federal Appeals Commission•) has been set up which decides definitively on the case. The appeal does not automatically have suspensive effect. If asked for by the complainant, suspensive effect can be given to the appeal. But this is only possible as long as the contract has not yet been awarded. Time-limit to hand in appeals is 20 days. The Commission for appeals can either decide itself or revert the case to the respective entity with instructions. If the respective entity has already concluded a contract with another supplier, the Commission can only state whether the law has been violated.

Only damages (negative interest) can be claimed. The claim has to be handed in with the respective entity. Here the Federal Appeals Commission decides definitively also in this case.

Under the coverage of the Inter-cantonal Agreement, appeal can be made against decisions of sub-central entities or Annex 3 entities falling under the Inter-cantonal Agreement before a cantonal administrative court or independent review body according to cantonal law (each of the 26 cantons has to define in its cantonal law the independent review body). The time-limit is 10 days. The appeal has no automatic suspensive effect, but such effect can be granted if required and justified. The independent cantonal authority can decide on the matter itself or revert the case with or without instructions. If a contract has already been concluded, compensation in the amount of the negative interest can be claimed.

14) To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is •not less than 10 days•. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

See under 13 above.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a •court• or an •impartial and independent review body•? If the latter:

An independent review body (•Federal Appeals Commission•) according to the law on government procurement for challenge procedures involving central government entities or Annex 3 entities falling under the law on government procurement and an independent review body or an administrative court according to cantonal law.

- How are its members selected?

•Federal Appeals Commission•: members are appointed by the Federal Council (Swiss Government) for a period of four years.

Cantonal courts or review bodies: members of administrative courts are generally appointed by the cantonal parliament, members of an independent review body sometimes by the cantonal government.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

These decisions are not subject to judicial review but they have procedures as described in Article XX GPA paragraph 6.

-If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

For procurement under the Federal Law on Government Procurement: Federal Law on Government Procurement and federal law on the administrative procedure (systematic collection of Swiss legislation number: 172.021).

For procurement under cantonal law: Inter-cantonal Agreement, implementing cantonal law on government procurement, Law on the Establishment of a Swiss Common Market and cantonal legislation on administrative procedure.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

-Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The supplier who has the right to appeal may ask for suspension of the procurement process if the contract with another supplier has not yet been concluded. In such a case, the interest of the complainant has to outweigh the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay.

For procurement under cantonal law, some cantonal procedural laws provide for automatic suspensive effect which can be withdrawn by the court.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The court or independent review body may decide itself in the case or revert it to the respective entity with instructions. Compensation for loss or damages suffered covers only the negative interest, that means that the supplier should get compensation for his expenses, not compensation for the contract he has not been awarded.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

Information on time-periods for the stages of the challenge process is difficult to obtain. There are no fixed time-limits for the different stages. Interim measures can be obtained in a very short period (if necessary within one or two days).

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Costs have to be borne by the unsuccessful party in general. The successful party bears no cost and can even get compensation for the costs.

Monitoring of the enforcement of the GPA

Commission for the implementation and monitoring of the international obligations of Switzerland in the area of government procurement

In order to monitor the compliance with international obligations, the Federal Council (Swiss Government) has established an independent authority, whose services are available for suppliers and service providers from countries members to the GPA, if they face systemic difficulties with the way the Swiss authorities implement the GPA.

The contract officials shall not impose any special terms or conditions upon the citizens of a member country of the Government Procurement Agreement or upon the products or services produced from those countries.

1.4 Decision on the Selected Tenderer

In a competitive tendering, the successful tenderer shall be:

- a person who is deemed fully capable of fulfilling the terms of the contract and offers the lowest bid;
- a person who offers the most favourable bid for the State in conformity with the evaluation criteria specified in the public notice or the tender documentation;
- a person whose bid conforms closest to the criteria if the evaluation criteria are determined by the Presidential Decree considering the nature and scale of contracts.

1.5 Principles of General Competition in Government Procurement

- The contract official shall conduct a public procurement according to the competition principle. However, if necessary, taking into consideration the purpose, nature, scale, etc. of the contract, he may nominate participants or restrict the qualification of the participants.

1.6 Restrictions on Tendering Participation Eligibility for an Improper Business Person

A person who prevents fair competition or proper fulfilment of the contract, or a person who is deemed unqualified to participate in the tendering may be denied participation for a specified period.

Procedure for this restriction:

1.7 The International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee

Challenge procedure

- Those who claim to have been disadvantaged in the implementation of the provisions on the scope of the government procurement contract, eligibility for participation, public notice or the decision on the successful tenderer may make an objection to the central agency concerned.
- Anyone dissatisfied with the ensuing measures by the agency may request a review from the International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee established in the Ministry of Finance and Economy.

Effect of the mediation

- The Committee shall undertake an investigation and provide mediation. If no objection is raised within fifteen days regarding the result of the mediation, it shall have the same effect as a judicial conciliation.

2. Summary of the Enforcement Decree of the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party

2.1 Principles of Contracts

- In the conclusion of contracts, a contract official shall not impose any special condition which unreasonably restricts the contractual benefit of the other party, as prescribed by the related provisions.

2.2 Estimated Value of a Contract and Standard Price

- The estimated value of a contract is a criterion for determining the value of contracts for purposes of implementing the GPA. It is based upon the budget amount for a procurement and calculated according to the provisions of the GPA. It shall be disclosed in a public notice.
- The Standard Price (presumed price) is a means to determine the best bidding price. It is determined by the illustrative transaction price, the cost price or the appraised price. It shall not be disclosed in advance.

2.3 Method of Competition & Qualification of Tendering

- Competition is conducted through competitive tendering in which there are more than two effective bidders.
- The bidder should own or be leasing the facilities required for manufacturing or supplying the contract object.
- When any approval or licence is required pursuant to the provisions of other laws, it should be obtained.

2.4 Public Notice & Site Presentation

- A public notice on a domestic tendering will be given ten days before the tendering date. (The related provisions for an international tendering are prescribed by the Special Enforcement Decree.)
- In the case of a construction work tendering, the public notice will be given seven days before the site presentation date.
- The minimum time periods between the site presentation date and the tendering date are:
 - When the estimated price is less than 1 billion won
⇒ 10 days
 - When the estimated price is 1 billion won or more, and less than the notified amount

- Decision method in a domestic tendering

A successful tenderer is a bidder with the lowest price below the standard price, provided that the bidding price is not less than the amount of 90/100 of the standard price.

In the tender for purchasing goods, the successful tenderer is the lowest price bidder regardless of the proviso above.

2.6 Single Tendering

Following are the cases in which a single tendering can be applied:

- in the case of a situation where an Act of God or national security is concerned;
- in the case of a contract with the current construction company to ensure future identification of the construction contractor responsible for any possible defects;
- in the case of a contract to procure goods related to patents or in the case where the supplier is only one person;
- in the case of a work whose estimated price is under 50 million won, or goods and services whose estimated prices are under 20 million won;

3.1 Scope of the Special Enforcement Decree

The Special Enforcement Decree will be applied to all international tendering prescribed by the GPA and other provisions.

For an international tendering which is not covered by the GPA, there is no obligation for observing the provisions of the GPA. However, provisions of the Special Enforcement Decree shall be applied correspondingly.

3.2 Principles of Contracts for a Specific Procurement

-Fair competition and non-discrimination principles shall be observed in all international tendering.

-Any procurement requirement shall not be divided with the intention of avoiding the application of GPA.

-Entities shall not impose offsets on suppliers from other GPA members in an international tendering.

3.3 Tendering Procedure

There are three types of tendering in the international tendering procedure: open tendering, selective tendering and limited tendering (single tendering).

3.4 Language in an International Tendering

-The basic language is Korean. When necessary, however, foreign languages including WTO official languages can be used.

-In a public notice, main items for a tendering shall be written in one of the WTO official languages.

3.5 Qualification of Suppliers in Open Tendering and a Supplier's List

-Qualifications for a bidder, such as contract performance record, technical performance ability, financial capacity, etc., can be provided to confirm a supplier's ability to fulfil a contract.

-To simplify the qualification procedures, entities can avail themselves of a permanent supplier's list.

3.6 Public Notice on Intended Procurement and Decision on the Successful Tenderer

-Time limits for a tendering shall not be less than 40 days from the date of the public notice.

-The public notice shall contain details related to the tendering according to the provisions of the GPA.

- The Committee can order interim measures which include suspension of tendering procedures, etc.
- Mediation by the Committee can be provided for the correction of breaches of the GPA or for the compensation of losses or damages suffered.
- The mediation has the same effect as a judicial conciliation when there is no objection.

3.8 Implementing International Business Practices

When necessary, in light of the nature of international trade, international business practices can be used for currency, deposits of contract payments, inspection, adjustment for inflation, etc.

4. Summary of Other Regulations Related to Government Procurement

4.1 The Act on Government Procurement Business (AGPB)

Character of the AGPB

- The AGPB contains provisions for the central government procurement system implemented by the Office of Supply of the Republic of Korea (OSROK).

Coverage of the AGPB

- The procurement by State and local government entities of goods worth more than 50 million won and construction works worth more than 2 billion won shall be conducted through OSROK.
- Government invested institutions, if necessary, can commit the procurement business to the OSROK.

Centralization of government procurement

- Basically, each government authority is responsible for procuring goods, services and construction services for its own use. However, goods and works of which the estimated value exceeds a given threshold value should be procured and supplied through the Office of Supply of the Republic of Korea on behalf of the other end-user institution (end-user).
- End-users are classified into two categories: obligatory and voluntary. The former consists of central and local government agencies, which are required to purchase their needed goods and works above a given threshold value through OSROK. The latter consists of government-funded or government-sponsored agencies, which have the option to procure goods, services and works on their own or through OSROK.

- Even obligatory end-users, however, are allowed to purchase goods and conclude construction contracts for themselves in cases of urgent procurement needs, small purchases below a given threshold value or procurement for national defence or security.

OSROK procurement procedures

- Each central and local government agency will forecast its needs for supplies and construction services during the course of a year, determine the purchase request plan with the preparation of budgeted funds, and submit it to OSROK before the beginning of the next fiscal year.
- Upon receipt of the purchase request plans from the end-users, OSROK shall draw up a comprehensive Acquisition Program considering the end-users procurement plan for the coming year as well as the procurement level of the previous year. OSROK will then procure and supply in a cost-effective and timely manner.

4.2 Local Financing Act

Character

- The local government procurement system is prescribed by the Local Financing Act and its Presidential Decree, etc.
- The provisions of the Act and its Presidential Decree regulate specialties for local government procurement. However, the main contents of these provisions are quoted from the ARCSP. Therefore, local government entities operate under the same basic procurement system as the central government.

Main differences in provisions from the ARCSP

- In case of local government procurement for a construction work less than 500 million won, a regional restriction can be imposed as a precondition for the bid. For example, according to the provisions of the Local Finance Act or its Enforcement Decree, entities can restrict participants' eligibility to persons doing business within its jurisdiction when the estimated price is less than 5 billion won.

According to the provisions by the ARCSP and its Enforcement Decree, etc., the restriction can be imposed only on those construction works worth less than 3 billion won.

4.3 The Government-Invested Enterprise Management Law (GIEML)

- Procurement business by government-invested institutions is prescribed by the Government-Invested Enterprise Management Law and Administrative Regulations by the Ministry of Finance & Economy.
- The difference between GIEML and ARCSP is that the scope of entities covered by each law is different and GIEML has a special provision regarding single tendering. However, the main contents of these provisions are quoted from the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party. Therefore, government-invested entities operate under the same basic procurement system as the central government.

III. ANSWERS TO THE CHECKLISTS

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

It has been transposed into domestic laws and regulations such as the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (•ARCSP•), the Local Financing Act and the Government-Invested Enterprise Management Law.

The Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (•ARCSP•) is the basic regulation on procurement by central government institutions. It prescribes details concerning contracts to which the state is a party, including procurement proceedings and contract administration. It contains details related to government procurement contracts through international competitive bidding. It prescribes provisions related to National Treatment, Non-discrimination, and the Transparency of Government Procurement.

The Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP provides details delegated by the ARCSP and those necessary for the implementation of domestic tendering.

The Special Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP for a Specific Government Procurement provides details delegated by the ARCSP and those necessary for the implementation of international tendering.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Entities below the federal or central state level have their own procurement system such as the Local Financing Act. However, this Act generally follows the provisions of the ARCSP.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Procurement by other entities such as government-invested enterprises is controlled by the Government-Invested Enterprise Management Law. This Law also generally follows the provisions of the ARCSP.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

There are no significant differences but there are some exceptions such as regional restrictions and conditions for single tendering. Local governments can restrict participants' eligibility to persons doing business within their jurisdictions, when the estimated price of the work is less than 5 billion won. The restriction can be imposed on construction works worth less than 3 billion won by the central government.

5. To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

We are running a database system offering information on tendering opportunities.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

ARCSP Article 5 of its Special Enforcement Decree (SED) Article 4

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

The provisions for a public notice reflect the provisions of the GPA. These are almost the same as the provisions of the GPA. Basically public notice for open or selective tenderings should be given no less than 40 days before the tender date. In some cases, for a selective tendering, the time-limit for a tender is extended to more than 65 days.

A public notice shall contain every item prescribed by the GPA such as the place, date and time for tendering and its opening, qualification of the bidder, contact points, etc. (SED Art. 11, 12).

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

A notice of planned procurement can be used by any entity according to Article IX:3 of the GPA (SED Art. 13). The entities may notify in the gazette the plan for procurement of goods, construction works and services to be supplied under specific procurement contracts during each fiscal year. The notice on procurement plans shall contain the statements set forth in the related provision of the GPA.

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

If necessary, entities can use the permanent lists of suppliers. Qualification of suppliers can be determined by entities, taking into consideration construction capacity, skills or management status (SED Art. 10).

It is not necessary for a contract official to change the requirements for the supplier's list on a contract-by-contract basis. It is the same as the current classification system for suppliers. The requirements for the supplier's list are fixed.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Negotiations are allowed during the tendering procedure. If necessary, taking into consideration the nature of the contract, urgency and national security, the head of each central agency or its public officials may enter into a contract after receiving proposals from bidders and negotiating technical specifications, quality, etc.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be not less than X days. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time-limits which have been established.

The time-limits for tendering shall be more than 40 days after a public notice. According to the provisions of the GPA, some exceptions are prescribed as below.

In the case of an emergency notice: more than 10 days after a public notice.

In the case of a planned procurement notice: more than 24 days after a public notice.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The basic language is Korean in the tendering procedures. When necessary, however, foreign languages, including WTO official languages, can be used (SED Art. 8).

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Anyone who claims to have been disadvantaged due to breaches of the GPA by an entity's measures in the course of international tendering may make an objection and seek revocation or correction of such acts from the International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee.

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is not less than 10 days. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

A supplier or a contractor shall submit a complaint within 15 days from occurrence of the act which is the cause of the objection or within 10 days from acquiring knowledge of such an act.

The head of the relevant procuring entity shall, within 10 days from the receipt of the complaint, examine and take necessary measures such as correction and give a prompt notice of the decision to the supplier or the contractor submitting the complaint.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a court or an impartial and independent review body? If the latter:

In order to examine and mediate the request for a review, a committee is established in the Ministry of Finance and Economy.

- How are its members selected?

The chairman of the Committee is the Vice Minister of Finance and Economy. The Committee has 15 members who are professors and barristers designated by the Minister of Finance and Economy and public officials designated by the heads of major procurement entities.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

The mediation has the same effect as a judicial conciliation when no objection is raised. If there are any objections, the case can be sent to the court.

- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

We make the provisions for the various challenge procedures reflect the provisions of the GPA, such as holding hearings before a decision, conducting an open mediation process, providing decisions in writing, etc.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The ARCSP contains general provisions on the challenge procedures. The case can be sent to the related institutions for a special consultation. In the process of the Committee's mediation, procedures such as delivery, notice, etc. shall follow the provisions of the Act for the Civil Suit.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Suspension of tendering proceedings or awarding of contracts may be granted until the arbitration (mediation) process in the Committee is completed.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The Committee can make a mediation offer including cancellation and correction of breaches and compensation for losses or damages. There are limits to the compensation. It is limited to costs for tender preparation or protest.

(vi) Give any available information on the time-periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The supplier or contractor who has an objection to the measure by the entity concerned can request a review by the Committee for International Dispute Mediation within 15 days from receipt of the notice of decision.

Interim measures by the Committee shall be taken within seven days from the date of receipt of the opinion of a procurement entity.

The Committee, unless there are any other specific reasons, shall review and arbitrate the appeal filed within 50 days from the date of its receipt.

The mediation shall be final unless both parties (the applicant and the head of a central agency concerned) have an objection to it within 15 days from completion of the mediation. It shall have the same effect as an out-of-court settlement.

Legal channels for complaints or appeals are open to any supplier. Appeals can be raised in a civil suit.

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Translation, stenography, appreciation or testing cost can be billed to the appellant.

If there is a prior arrangement between both parties, the cost of challenge procedures is determined by the arrangement. Therefore, there can be no cost in some cases.

Committee on Government Procurement

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Canada

The attached communication has been received from Canada in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

SUMMARY OF LEGISLATION

1. Basic Legislation Giving Effect to the Agreement

Bill C-57, An Act to Implement the Agreement establishing the World Trade Organization (the WTO Implementation Act), entered into force on 1 January 1995. The WTO Implementation Act accomplished all that was necessary, by way of legislation, to ensure that Canada's obligations under the Agreement on Government Procurement (AGP) can be met. Section 3 provides that the purpose of the WTO Implementation Act is to implement the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization, including the agreements set out in Annexes 1A, 1B, 1C, 2 and 3 thereof and the agreements set out in Annex 4 thereof that have been accepted by Canada (collectively, the WTO Agreement). Section 4 provides that the WTO Implementation Act is binding on the Government of Canada.

Part I of the WTO Implementation Act contains general provisions applicable to implementation of the WTO Agreement. Section 8 provides that the WTO Agreement is approved. Sections 9 to 13 empower the Federal Cabinet to take various kinds of action in furtherance of administering Canada's activities under the WTO Agreement.

2. Additional Legislation Giving Effect to the Agreement

Part II of the WTO Implementation Act also provides for related and consequential amendments to other federal legislation required to give effect to the WTO Agreements, including the AGP.

Section 116 of the WTO Implementation Act provides for amendments to the Financial Administration Act that permit the Federal Cabinet to give a directive to any parent crown corporation for the purpose of implementing the WTO Agreement. This enables the Federal Cabinet to require the government enterprises listed in Canada's Annex 3 of Appendix I of the AGP to comply with the requirements of the AGP.

Sections 40 to 42 and 44 to 46 of the WTO Act provide for a number of minor amendments to the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act. More extensive amendments of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations were undertaken in order to empower the Canadian International Trade Tribunal (the •Tribunal•) to conduct an inquiry into a complaint regarding any aspect of the procurement process in respect of a contract for the procurement of goods or services, or any combination of goods and services, described in Article I of the AGP. Prior to these amendments, the Tribunal had jurisdiction to conduct an inquiry for any such contract described in Article 1001 of the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) or in Article 502 of the Agreement on Internal Trade (AIT).

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal Rules govern the proceedings, practice and procedures of the Tribunal in dealing with procurement complaints. The rules already provided for procurement complaints under the NAFTA and the AIT when the AGP entered into force and did not require amendment.

3. Effect of the Legislative Changes

The combined effect of the WTO Implementation Act and the amendments to the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations is:

- (i) to require all government entities and enterprises listed in Canada's Annex 1 and Annex 3 of Appendix I of the AGP to abide by the provisions of the AGP; and
- (ii) to empower the Tribunal to conduct an inquiry into any complaint that a covered government entity or enterprise has failed to abide by the provisions of the AGP and to recommend a remedy for any complaint that it finds to be valid, including awarding a contract or payment of compensation, as appropriate.

Government entities that are subject to the AGP are expected to carry out their procurement activities in accordance with the provisions of the AGP, as well as the NAFTA and the AIT. Accordingly, the Government of Canada uses the Open Bidding Service (OBS), an internationally accessible electronic database, and publishes a bulletin called Government Business Opportunities which contains most of the opportunities listed on the OBS. Each notice contains a field for •Agreement Type• which identifies all applicable trade agreements. Tendering procedures and awarding of contracts are also carried out in accordance with the requirements of any applicable trade agreements. Domestic suppliers and foreign suppliers alike may file a complaint with the Tribunal if they believe that a government entity has failed to comply with the requirements of any applicable trade agreement.

4. Copies of Relevant Legislation

Copies have been provided to the WTO Secretariat of:¹

- (i) the preamble, sections 1 to 13, and sections 40 to 45 of the World Trade Organization Implementation Act, S.C. 1994, C. 57;
- (ii) sections 1 to 3, 13, 16, 17, 30.1, 30.11 to 30.19, 31 to 37, 39, 40 and 43 to 48 of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act, R.S.C. 1985, C. 47;
- (iii) Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations (unofficial consolidation); and
- (iv) sections 1 to 29 and 93 to 108 of the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Rules, SOR/91-409, SOR/93-601.

CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1) Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

Bill C-57, An Act to Implement the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization, brought the AGP into force for Canada on 1 January 1996. Certain amendments to the Financial Administration Act, the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act and the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations were required to implement the AGP into Canadian law.

2) In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

n.a.

3) In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

n.a.

4) Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

n.a.

5) To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

The Government of Canada uses the Open Bidding Service (OBS), an internationally accessible electronic database. The Government also publishes a bulletin called Government Business Opportunities (GBO) which contains most of the opportunities listed on the OBS. Most bidding opportunities for goods and services valued at over CAN $25,000 are advertised on the OBS, as well as construction, maintenance, architecture, engineering and leasing opportunities over CAN $60,000, communications professional services valued at over CAN $50,000 and printing requirements valued at over CAN $10,000. All procurement covered by the WTO Agreement is advertised on the OBS and in the GBO. Each notice contains a field for •Agreement Type• which identifies all applicable trade agreements, including the AGP, for that requirement. Canada has submitted a full explanation of the use of information technology in procurement to the WTO.²

²GPA/W/24/Add.2

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6) Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

The WTO Implementation Act does not contain specific provisions that reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III. Rather, it approves the Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization, including the agreements set out in Annexes 1A, 1B, 1C, 2 and 3 thereof and the agreements set out in Annex 4 thereof that have been accepted by Canada (i.e., the AGP, among others). It also provides for related and consequential amendments to other federal legislation required to give effect to the various agreements, including the AGP.

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal Act (CITT Act) and the Canadian International Trade Tribunal Procurement Inquiry Regulations (CITT Regulations) were amended to empower the Canadian International Trade Tribunal (Tribunal) to conduct an inquiry into a complaint into any aspect of the procurement process in respect of a contract for the procurement of goods or services, or any combination of goods and services, described in Article I of the AGP. Prior to these amendments, the Tribunal had jurisdiction to conduct an inquiry for any such contract described in Article 1001 of the NAFTA or in Article 502 of the AIT.

Section 30.14 (2) of the CITT Act provides:

(2) At the conclusion of an inquiry, the Tribunal shall determine whether the complaint is valid on the basis of whether the procedures and other requirements prescribed in respect of the designated contract, or the class of contracts to which it belongs, have been or are being observed.

Section 11 of the CITT Regulations provides:

11. Where the Tribunal conducts an inquiry into a complaint, it shall determine whether the procurement was conducted in accordance with the requirements set out in whichever one of the NAFTA, the Agreement on Internal Trade or the Agreement on Government Procurement applies.

Thus, alleged failure to accord national treatment or non-discrimination as required by Article III of the Agreement would be a matter for the Tribunal to consider in determining whether a complaint is valid.

7) Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

In accordance with Article IX:2 of the Agreement, all of the entities covered by the Agreement are permitted to publish an invitation to participate in the form of a notice of proposed procurement.

8) Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

n.a.

9) In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

In the case of selective tendering procedures, the procuring entity decides whether to use open or selective tendering procedures depending on the nature of the requirement.

10) Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

All of the entities covered by the Agreement are permitted to conduct negotiations on procurements that are covered by the Agreement. The negotiations must be carried out according to the provisions set out in Article XIV of the Agreement.

11) Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be •not less than X days•. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

Consistent with our international agreements, the period for the receipt of tenders varies from 7 to 40 days from the date of publication, depending upon the relevant legislation or policy.

Time limits for delivery are established based on the requirement and must be consistent with the provisions set out in Article XI of the Agreement.

12) To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

Tenders for AGP-covered procurement may be submitted in English or French, Canada's two official languages.

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13) Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

A copy of the publication Procurement Review Process - A Descriptive Guide, January 1996, has been provided to the WTO. This guide describes Canada's challenge procedures.

14) To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is •not less than 10 days•. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

A complaint must be filed within 10 working days after the day on which the basis of the complaint became known or reasonably should have become known to the potential supplier. A potential supplier who has made an objection regarding a procurement to the relevant government institution, and is denied relief by that government institution, may file a complaint with the Tribunal within 10 working days after the day on which the potential supplier has actual or constructive knowledge of the denial of relief, provided that the objection was made within 10 working days after the day that the basis for the objection became known or reasonably should have become known.

The Tribunal can extend the time limit to a maximum of 30 days if it determines that the failure to file the complaint in time was attributable to a cause beyond the control of the potential supplier or that the complaint concerns an aspect of the procurement process of a systemic nature.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a •court• or an •impartial and independent review body•? If the latter:

The Canadian International Trade Tribunal is responsible for determining the validity of procurement complaints. It is a quasi-judicial tribunal and, as regards certain matters, including the attendance and examination of witnesses, the production of documents and the enforcement of its orders, has the powers of a superior court of record. The Tribunal is an impartial and independent review body for the purpose of determining the validity of procurement complaints.

- How are its members selected?

The Tribunal is comprised of a Chairman, two Vice-Chairmen, up to six other permanent members and up to five temporary members, all of whom are appointed by the Federal Cabinet. Permanent appointments are for a five-year term. The Chairman may assign one member of the Tribunal to deal with a procurement complaint. A member so assigned has all of the Tribunal's powers, duties and functions in relation to the complaint.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

Yes.

-If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

n.a.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Tribunal determines the validity of procurement complaints by reference to the standards set out in the AGP, the NAFTA and the AIT. See section 11 of the Regulations, reproduced as part of Canada's response to question 6.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

Any party to a procurement complaint proceeding may request that the Tribunal consider the feasibility of using the •express option• procedure which is designed to bring about the resolution of a complaint within 45 days instead of the usual 90-day time-frame.

*-Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process?
On what conditions?*

The Tribunal may order the government institution responsible for the procurement to postpone the awarding of the contract until the Tribunal determines the validity of the complaint. The Tribunal shall rescind such an order if, within seven working days of the making of the order, the government institution certifies in writing that the procurement is urgent or that a delay in awarding the contract would be contrary to the public interest. The Tribunal has no power to suspend a contract that has already been awarded.

(v)How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

Where the Tribunal determines that a complaint is valid, it may recommend such remedy as it considers appropriate, including any one or more of the following:

- (a)that a new solicitation for the contract be issued;
- (b)that the bids be re-evaluated;
- (c)that the contract be terminated;
- (d)that the contract be awarded to the complainant; or
- (e)that the complainant be compensated by an amount specified by the Tribunal.

The government institution involved in the procurement would be required to implement the Tribunal's recommendations to the greatest extent possible. If the government institution does not intend to fully implement the Tribunal's recommendations, it must notify the Tribunal of the reasons for not doing so.

There is no prescribed limitation on the kinds of losses or the total amount that the Tribunal can recommend as compensation. The Tribunal tends to rely on common law principles applicable to assessment of damages. The Tribunal may award the complainant the reasonable costs of responding to a bid solicitation, independently of any amount that it recommends as compensation.

(vi)Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

See Appendix 1 and Appendix 2 of the publication Procurement Review Process - A Descriptive Guide.

(vii)What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

There is no fee for filing a complaint with the Tribunal and parties may file materials and appear before the Tribunal without being represented by a lawyer. The complainant would have to bear any legal expenses that it does incur which it may recover (in whole or in part) under an award of costs granted in the discretion of the Tribunal. Similarly, a complainant may be liable to pay an award of costs in favour of the relevant government institution and any intervening party if the Tribunal dismisses the complaint during the course of the proceedings or ultimately determines that the complaint is invalid.

-In the conclusion of contracts, a contract official shall not impose any special condition which unreasonably restricts the contractual benefit of the other party, which is prescribed by the related provisions.

2. Estimated Value of Contract and Standard Price

-Estimated value of contract is a criterion opened in a public notice. It is a basic tool for determining the value of contracts for purposes of implementing the GPA. It is based upon the budget amount for a procurement and calculated according to the provisions of the GPA.

-Standard Price is a means to determine a best bidding price. It is determined by the illustrative transactional price, the cost price or the appraised price. It shall not be informed.

3. Method of Competition & Qualification of Tendering

-The competition is conducted by means of a competitive tendering in which more than two effective bidders participate.

-The bidder should be owning or leasing the facilities required for manufacturing or supplying of the contract object.

-When any approval or licence is required pursuant to the provisions of the laws, it should be qualified.

4. Public Notice & Site Presentation

In the tender for purchasing goods, the successful tenderer is the lowest price bidder.

6. Single Tendering

Following are the cases to which single tendering can be applied:

- in case of an Act of God or national security,
- in case of a contract with the current construction company due to difficulties of assigning liabilities for defects that might happen in relation to future construction works,

3. Tendering Procedure

Following are tendering procedures for an international tendering: open tendering, selective tendering and limited tendering (single tendering).

-The mediation has the same effect as a judicial conciliation when it has no objection.

8. Implementing the International Business Practices

When necessary, in light of nature of international trade, international business practices can be applied to determine currency, deposit of contract payment, inspection or adjustment of inflation, etc.

2.SUMMARY OF OTHER REGULATIONS RELATED TO THE GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

1. The Act on the Government Procurement Business

Character of the Act

-The Act contains the provisions for the central government procurement system implemented by the Office of Supply (OSROK).

Applied Institution

-The State and Local government entities shall commit the procurements for the goods more than 50 million won and the construction works more than 2 billion won to the OSROK.

-Government invested institutions, if necessary, can commit the procurement business to the OSROK.

Centralization of the government procurement

- Basically, each government authority is responsible for procuring goods, services and construction services for its own use. However, goods and works exceeding a given threshold value, which a specialized agency can procure more efficiently, should be procured and supplied through the Office of Supply of the Republic of Korea to central and local government agencies (so-called end-users).
- The OSROK's end-users are classified into two categories: obligatory and voluntary. The former consists of central and local government agencies, which are required to purchase their needed goods and works above a given threshold value through the OSROK. The latter consists of government-funded or government-sponsored agencies, which have options to procure goods, services and works for themselves or through the OSROK.
- Even the obligatory end-users, however, are allowed to purchase goods and conclude construction contracts for themselves in cases of urgent procurement needs, small purchases below a given threshold value or procurement for national defence or security.

System to draw up government procurement

- Each central and local government agency will forecast its need for supplies and construction services during the course of a year, determine the purchase request plan with the preparation of the budgeted funds, and submit it to the OSROK before the beginning of the next fiscal year.
- Upon receipt of the purchase plans from the end-users, the OSROK shall draw up a comprehensive Acquisition Program considering the end-users' procurement plan for the coming year as well as the procurement level of the previous year, which will then procure and supply in a cost-effective and timely manner.

2. Local Financing Act

Character

- The local government procurement system is prescribed by the Local Financing Act and its Presidential Decree, etc.
- The provisions of the Act and its Presidential Decree regulate specialties for the local government procurement. However, main contents of these provisions are quoted from the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party.
- In conclusion, local government entities operate the same procurement system as the central government.

Main different provisions from the ARCSP

- In case of local government procurement, the estimated price for the regional restriction is different from that of the state.

According to the provisions by the Local Finance Act or its Enforcement Decree, entities can restrict participants' eligibility to only the person doing business within its jurisdiction when the estimated price is less than 5 billion won.

According to the provisions by the ARCSP and its Enforcement Decree etc., the restriction can be imposed to the construction work only less than 3 billion won.

3. The Government Invested Enterprise Management Law

-Procurement business of the government invested institution is prescribed by the government invested Enterprise Management Law and Administrative Regulation by the Ministry of Finance & Economy.

-These regulations include some specialties for the entities applied and exception in the single tendering from the provisions of the ARCSP. However, main contents of these provisions are quoted from the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party.

-In conclusion, government invested entities operate the same procurement system as the central government.

4. ANSWER TO THE CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

1. Has the agreement been transposed into national law?

It has been transposed into domestic laws and regulations such as the Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (•ARCSP•), the Local Financing Act and the Government Invested Enterprise Management Law.

The Act Relating to Contracts to which the State is a Party (•ARCSP•) is the basic regulation on the procurement by the central government institution. It prescribes details concerning contracts to which the state is a party, including procurement proceedings and contract administrations. It contains details related to government procurement contracts through an international competitive bidding. It prescribes provisions related to National Treatment, Non-discrimination, and the Transparency of Government Procurement.

The Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP provides details delegated by the ARCSP and those necessary for the implementation of a domestic tendering.

The Special Enforcement Decree of the ARCSP for a Specific Government Procurement provides details delegated by the ARCSP and those necessary for the implementation of an international tendering.

2. In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

Entities below the federal or central state level have their own procurement system such as Local Financing Act. But the Act generally follows provisions of ARCSP.

3. In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Other entities such as government invested enterprises are controlled by the Government Invested Enterprise Management Law. But the Law also generally follows provisions of ARCSP.

4. Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

There are no significant differences except regional restriction and conditions for a single tendering. For example, a local government can restrict participants' eligibility to persons doing business within its jurisdiction, when the estimated price of the work is less than 5 billion won. However, the restriction can be imposed by a central government only to the construction work of which the estimated price is less than 3 billion won.

5.To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

We are running a database system offering information of tendering opportunities.

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

6. Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement?

ARCSP Article 5 and its Special Enforcement Decree (SED) Article 4

7. Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Provisions for the public notice are provided reflecting the provisions of the GPA. Those are almost same provisions of the GPA. Basically public notice for open or selective tendering should be done not less than 40 days before the tender date. In some cases for a selective tendering, time limit for a tender will be extended to more than 65 days.

A public notice shall contain every item prescribed by the GPA such as place, date and time for tendering and its opening, qualification of the bidder and contact points etc. (SED Art. 11, 12).

8. Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or notice regarding qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

Besides a public notice, other provisions for a notice of the planned procurement are prescribed according to the Article IX:3 of the GPA (SED Art. 13).

9. In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

If necessary, entities can use permanent supplier's lists. Qualifications for registration at supplier's lists can be determined by entities, considering experiences, skills or business conditions of entities (SED Art. 10).

It is not necessary for a contract official to change the requirements for supplier's list on a contract-by-contract basis. It is same as the current classification system for suppliers. The requirements for the supplier's list are fixed.

10. Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

Negotiation can be allowed during the tendering procedure. If it is deemed necessary, taking into consideration the nature of contract, the urgency, national security, the head of each central agency or the public officials may enter into the contract after receiving the proposals from bidders suppliers and negotiating technical specification or qualities, etc.

11. Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be not less than X days. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The time-limits for tendering shall be more than 40 days after a public notice. In compliance with the provisions of the GPA, some exceptions are prescribed as below:

In case of an emergency notice: more than 10 days after a public notice.

In case of a planned procurement notice: more than 24 days after a public notice.

12. To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The basic language is Korean in the tendering procedure. However, when necessary, a foreign language including WTO official languages can be used (SED Art. 8).

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13. Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and making them generally available. Please provide this information.

Anyone who has been disadvantaged due to the breaches of the GPA occurred by an entity's measure in the course of international tendering may make an objection for revocation or correction of such acts to the International Contract Dispute Mediation Committee (SED Art. 28).

14. To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is not less than 10 days. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

A supplier or contractor shall submit a complaint within 15 days after the occurrence of the act which is the cause of the objection or 10 days after acquiring knowledge of such an act.

The head of the relevant procuring entity shall, within 10 days of the receipt of the complaint, examine and take necessary measures such as correction and give a prompt notice of the decision to the supplier or the contractor submitting the complaint.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a court or an impartial and independent review body? If the latter:

In order to examine and mediate the request for a review, a committee is established in the Ministry of Finance and Economy.

- How are its members selected?

The chairman of the Committee is Vice Minister of Finance and Economy. The Committee has 15 members who are professors, barristers designated by the Minister of Finance and Economy or public officials designated by the heads of major procurement entities.

- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

The mediation has the same effect as a judicial conciliation when there is no objection. If there are any objections, the case can be sent to the court.

- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

We have the provisions for various challenge procedures reflecting the provisions of the GPA such as hearing before a decision, open mediation process, decision by writing, etc.

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

ARCSP has general provisions for the review of the challenge procedures, reviewing, examining and investigating. The case can be sent to the related institutions for a special appreciating. During the process, the provisions for the procedures such as delivery or notice etc. shall follow the provisions of the Act for the Civil Suit.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

Suspension of tendering proceedings or awarding of contracts may be granted until the arbitration (mediation) process in the Committee is completed.

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

The Committee can make a mediation offer including cancelation and correction of the breaches and compensation for loss or damages. There are limits to the compensation. It will be limited to the expense for a preparation for the tendering and mediation.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

A supplier or contractor who has an objection to the measure by the entity concerned can request a review of the Committee for International Dispute Mediation within 15 days of the receipt of the notice of decision.

Interim measures by the Committee shall be taken within seven days of the receipt of the opinion of a procurement entity.

The Committee, unless there are any other specific reasons, shall review and arbitrate the appeal filed within 50 days of its receipt.

The mediation shall be final unless the applicant for appeal or the head of a procuring entity concerned raises any objection to it within 15 days of the completion of mediation. It shall have the same effect as an out-of-court settlement.

Legal channels for complaints or appeals are open to any suppliers. Appeals can be raised to a civil suit.

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Translation, stenography, appreciation or testing cost can be billed to the appellant.

If there is a prior arrangement between both parties, the cost of challenge procedures can be imposed by the arrangement. Therefore, there can be no cost in some cases.

Committee on Government Procurement

NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Communication from Norway

The attached communication has been received from Norway in accordance with the Committee Decision of 4 June 1996 relating to the procedures for the Notification of National Implementing Legislation (GPA/1/Add.1).

1. SUMMARY OF THE NORWEGIAN LEGISLATION ON PUBLIC PROCUREMENT¹

Norway's international obligations in the area of public procurement have been transposed into national legislation through one law and four regulations, hereinafter •the regulations•, transposing both the European Economic Area (EEA) Directives and the WTO Agreement on Government Procurement (GPA). These are:

- Lov om offentlige anskaffelser mv• of 27 November 1992 (The Public Procurement Act)
- Forskrift om tildeling av kontrakter om offentlige varekjøp• of 4 December 1992 (The public supplies Regulation, SPR)
- Forskrift om tildeling av kontrakter om offentlige tjenestekjøp• of 1 July 1994 (The public services Regulation, SR)
- Forskrift om tildeling av offentlige bygge- og anleggskontrakter• of 4 December 1994 (The public works Regulation, WR)
- Forskrift om innkjøpsregler for oppdragsgivere innen vann- og energiforsyning, transport og telekommunikasjon• of 16 December 1994 (The Regulation of procurement procedures of entities operating in water, energy, transport and telecommunications sectors, UR).

The Regulations on supplies, services and works contracts cover entities in the •Public Sector•. The Regulation on procurement procedures of entities operating in the water-, energy-, transport- and telecommunications sectors is called •the Utilities Sector• Regulation.

Since the GPA rules on public procurement to a large extent coincide with the EEA rules, only minor amendments were made in the law and the regulations in 1996 to bring the Norwegian legislation in accordance with the GPA.

THE BASIC PRINCIPLES

1. The detailed rules of the regulations apply to procurements with an expected total contract value above certain threshold values.

The threshold values after the entry into force of the GPA are:

- NOK 1,100,000 ex VAT for central government entities• supplies and service procurements. This threshold value is brought about by the GPA;

¹The following publications (in Norwegian) are available for consultation in the Intellectual Property and Investment Division (office 3057): the Public Procurement Act (Lov om offentlige anskaffelser m.v. - Ajourført med endringer, senest ved lov av 15. mars 1996 nr. 15); the Public Supplies Regulation (Forskrift om tildeling av kontrakter om offentlige varekjøp -Fastsatt ved kgl.res. av 4. desember 1992 med endringer, sist ved kgl res av 13. september 1996); the Public Services Regulation (Forskrift om tildeling av kontrakter om offentlige tjenestekjøp - Fastsatt ved kgl.res. av 1. juli 1994 med endringer, sist ved kgl res av 13. september 1996); the Public Works Regulation (Forskrift om tildeling av offentlige bygge- og anleggskontrakter -Fastsatt ved kgl.res. 4. desember 1992 med endringer, sist ved kgl res av 13. september 1996); and the Regulation of Procurement Procedures of Entities Operating in the Water, Energy, Transport and Telecommunications Sectors (Forskrift om innkjøpsregler for oppdragsgivere innen vann- og energiforsyning, transport og telekommunikasjon (forsyningssektorene) -Fastsatt ved kgl.res. av 16. desember 1994 med endringer, sist ved kgl res av 13. september 1996)

- NOK 1,650,000 ex VAT for other Public sector entities• supplies and service contracts;
- NOK 41,500,000 ex VAT for all covered entities• works projects;
- NOK 3,300,000 ex VAT for utilities entities• supplies and service contracts other than in the telecommunications sector;
- NOK 4,950,000 ex VAT for supplies and service contracts awarded by telecom utilities.

There are detailed rules concerning the calculation of estimated contract values regarding these thresholds. These have been explained in document GPA/W/12/Add.6.

2. No discrimination on the grounds of nationality of suppliers and service providers from GPA Parties is allowed when conducting public procurement.

In addition, there is a principle of equal treatment of suppliers, even where only national suppliers and service providers are involved in the competition for a specific contract.

3. International publicity is warranted by publicizing Contract Notices, Contract Award Notices and Periodic Indicative Notices etc. in the Official Journal of the EC (OJEC) and in the database Tenders Electronic Daily (TED).

4. International competition is assured by tender procedures; negotiated procedures are only allowed in exceptional situations. There are more flexible rules regarding notices and the use of negotiated procedures in the Utilities sector.

5. There is obligatory use of objective, non-discriminatory criteria in both the

- selection of candidates and for
- the award of contracts.

The selection criteria to be used and the documentation that can be asked for are regulated in detail by the Regulations.

The award criteria must in principle be of direct economic relevance to the procuring entity. Criteria such as local employment conditions, national content and local, national tax revenue or general environmental aspects may not be considered. Aesthetic and functional aspects may however be duly taken into account.

6. Any firm that participates in a public procurement procedure may bring an action against the contracting entity before the local Court of Justice concerning alleged breaches of the rules. In addition there is a challenge procedure available for suppliers and service providers through the EFTA Surveillance Authority.

APPLICABILITY OF THE REGULATIONS

Several conditions have to be fulfilled if a procurement is to be covered by the regulations:

1. The procurer must be a (central, regional, local) government authority or a •body governed by public law• in the Public sector, or, only in the Utilities sector, a public undertaking or a private undertaking enjoying special rights.

2. In the Utilities sector, it is also necessary to establish that the procurement is connected to one or more of the covered activities in the sectors of

- provision of water, electricity, gas or heat,
 - the exploration and exploitation of oil, gas and coal fields,
 - the provision of air, land and sea transport terminal facilities,
 - the provision of public transport networks or
 - the provision of public telecommunication services.
3. The procurement must be a commercial contract, not e.g. •in-house•.
 4. In the Public sector, it has to be decided which of the three regulations applies.
 5. Exemptions have to be checked, such as
 - many research and development service contracts;
 - contracts awarded by international organizations such as the UN or in connection with common bilateral projects etc.;
 - when a service or works procurement consists of several lots, individual lots below a value ECU 80,000/1 mill. respectively accounting for up to 20% of the total project cost can be exempted.

In the Utilities sector, there are several additional exemption rules.

PROCUREMENT PROCEDURES TO BE USED

1. Tender procedures

In the Public sector, the principle is that tender procedures with a prior Tender Notice have to be used.

The contracting authority can choose freely between open and selective tender procedures.

In open tender procedures, which consist of one round, any undertaking established in a country party to the EEA Agreement or the GPA can participate. The qualitative selection of candidates and the selection of the winning tenderer (two separate evaluations) are done one directly after the other.

In selective tender procedures, which consist of a •selection round• and a separate •tender round•, any firm can request to be invited to tender, but only the candidates selected by the contracting authority on the basis of their general qualification for the type of contract to be performed, are sent the tender documents and asked to bid.

2. Negotiated procedure

The negotiated procedure, also consisting of a selection round and an •offer/ negotiation round•. Here, the contracting authority can negotiate freely with the qualified suppliers on the basis of their offers. It can only be used in exceptional cases in the Public sector.

In certain situations, the contracting authority can use the negotiated procedure with prior notice, especially when procuring services and works.

In exceptional situations defined narrowly by the regulations the negotiated procedure without prior notice can be made use of, for instance in emergency situations or when supplies are procured only for research and development purposes.

However, the other rules of the regulations do still apply in such cases, e.g. the obligation to publish a contract award notice, and the principle of equal treatment.

3. The Utilities sector

In the Utilities sector, both tender procedures and the negotiated procedure with a prior call for competition can always be used. Furthermore, the list of exceptional situations which allow the use of the negotiated procedure without prior call for competition is much longer, covering e.g. supplies procured at a commodity exchange.

In addition, procuring entities can operate qualification systems which only are made known in one single annual notice. A procurement falling into a category the entity operates a qualification system for will not be individually announced. Selective tender procedures or negotiated procedures are used within the qualification systems.

4. Design contests

When procuring services, procuring entities in the Public and Utilities sector can organize design contests (with prior notices) and can negotiate with the winner/winners of the design contest in order to arrive at a final agreement.

5. Minimum time limits

The regulations state certain minimum time limits to be respected by the procuring entities. They can be reduced in cases of justified haste or when the entity has published a so-called Periodic Indicative Notice about its procurement plans in the following year. The time limits are calculated from the day the notice is sent by the procuring entity. It takes up to 12 days to publish them in the Official Journal.

Tenders are only to be accepted when they arrive at the procuring entities' office within the set deadline. This means that the amount of time available to tenderers is less ample than it might seem to be.

The time limits must not be used in order to discriminate against foreign suppliers. This means that it can be necessary to give tenderers more time when the object of the contract is very complicated or very large.

RULES ON THE USE OF TECHNICAL SPECIFICATIONS

It is not compulsory to use technical specifications.

If specifications are used, the principle is that European technical specifications or their national identical copies have to be used. There are, however, a number of exceptions.

Individual brand names can only be used when there is absolutely no other method of describing the required commodities, and must be followed by the words 'or equivalent'.

The GPA has introduced an explicit rule on the use of professional advice in the preparation of technical specifications for a specific procurement. Such advice may not be accepted from firms which may have a commercial interest in the procurement itself if this would preclude competition.

RULES ON TRANSPARENCY - JUSTIFICATION

Procuring entities have to prepare and keep reports covering certain information for every procurement, which the EFTA Surveillance Authority can ask for in the course of monitoring or infraction procedures.

The procuring entity is obliged to justify its award decision vis-à-vis any unsuccessful tenderer who so demands in writing, within 15 days. It must give reasons both for why the unsuccessful tenderer was not chosen, and as to the relevant advantages of the winning tender, but not disclose any public or commercial secrets.

PROTECTION OF COMMERCIAL SECRETS

Any tenderer has the right vis-à-vis the procuring entity that commercial secrets, contained in the information he gives in the course of a tender procedure, be kept secret from other competitors. The interests of transparency and protection of commercial secrets have to be weighed against each other by the procuring entity on an individual basis in each case.

REVIEW PROCEDURES AND SANCTIONS

Any firm that participates in public procurement procedures can complain about alleged breaches of the rules. The supplier is first of all encouraged to take up the matter with the entity concerned directly. If this does not give any results, the formal procedure is to bring an action against the contracting entity before the competent national Court of Justice.

In the Public sector, the review procedures open for three types of sanctions if the supplier is established in an EEA/GPA country:

- Rapid interim measures (court injunctions) temporarily suspending procurement procedures during the challenge procedure.

However, the national review bodies can weigh the interest of the complainant in securing the contract against the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay, and deny injunctions where the public interest outweighs the supplier's interest.

After a contract has been awarded, the national remedies procedures do not open for injunctions.

- The setting aside/nullification of acts and decisions taken by the procuring entity in breach of the regulations. This type of sanction does not allow the re-opening of procurement procedures after the contract has been awarded.
- The award of damages to the offended supplier or suppliers. The damages will not necessarily be limited to •negative interest• (the costs and losses incurred by participating in the award procedure). It is also possible to demand damages for the lost profit, or at least a part of it (positive interest).

In the Utilities sector, the same applies with the following special elements:

- Instead of allowing for rapid interim measures that stop an ongoing procurement procedure, Norway has chosen to open for imposing on the procuring entity a conditional fine •high enough to dissuade• the entity from committing or continuing the act which is claimed to be in breach of the rules.

•In order for damages to be adjudged, the complaining supplier only has to prove that he •would have had a real chance• of being awarded the contract, had the discrimination not occurred. No greater burden of proof must be laid on the complainant. In the Utilities sector, the Norwegian Act on Public Procurement only allows for damages for bid costs (negative interest) to be awarded to offended undertakings.

4. ANSWERS TO CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. General elements

1) Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?

The Agreement has been transposed into national law. It does not apply directly.

2) In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?

No.

3) In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?

Annex 3 entities apply the legislation laid down by the Government.

4) Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?

There are no differences.

5) To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

Every contract above the relevant thresholds in the Regulations has to be published in the database Tenders Electronic Daily (TED) according to the EEA Agreement. Otherwise, information technology is not much used in government procurement. This will however increase in the future due to several projects in the field of information technology such as the SIMAP, PROPLAN, EDIRAM and DOFFIN projects. The latter projects have been described in the documents GPA/IC/W/7/Add.6/Suppl.1 and GPA/W/24/Add.1.

II. Specific elements

6) Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.

• 5A in each of the Regulations on the Public sector and • 13 nr 1 in the Utilities Regulation.

7) Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

According to the Regulations the tender notice has to follow certain models. The tender notice shall give details of the project, say where and when the tenders shall be delivered and call for tenderers or suppliers who wish to be considered to make tenders (SPR • 19, 20, SR • 19, 20, WR • 21, 22, UR • 26, 27).²

²SPR • The Supplies Regulation, SR • The Service Regulation, WR • The Works Regulation, UR • The Utility Regulation

8) Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.

The Norwegian legislation does not provide for this opportunity at sub-central level, just in the Utilities sector (• 18 No 1c in the Utilities Regulation).

9) In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?

Only in the Utilities sector it is allowed to use a permanent list of suppliers, UR • 34. In the Public sector the suppliers have to be selected on a contract-to-contract basis.

10) Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?

All categories of entities may use the negotiated procedure under certain conditions. These are:

- (a) - In the case of irregular tenders in response to an open or restricted tender procedure or in the case of tenders which are unacceptable under national provisions in so far that the original terms for the contract are not substantially altered (SPR • 10 No 2, SR • 10 No 2a, WR • 10 No 2a)
- when the nature of the works/services or the risks attaching thereto do not permit overall pricing (only work and services, SR • 10 No 2b, WR • 10 No 2c)
- when the art of the service makes it difficult to make the necessary specifications for an open or a restricted procedure (only services, SR • 10 No 2c)
- when the works are only for research and development purposes (only work, WR • 10 No 2b)
- instead of a tender procedure, UR • 17 No 1.

In these cases a tender notice shall be published.

(b) Negotiated procedure without a prior tender notice can be used in the following cases:

- In the absence of tenders or appropriate tenders (SPR • 10 No 3a, SR • 10 No 3a, WR • 10 No 3a, UR • 17 No 2a)
- when for technical or artistic reasons, or for reasons connected with protections of exclusive rights there is only one supplier (SPR • 10 No 3c, SR • 10 No 3c, WR • 10 No 3b, UR • 17 No 2c)
- when it is strictly necessary and for reasons of extreme urgency brought up by reasons unforeseen for the procurer, the time limits for open, restricted or negotiated procedure cannot be kept (SPR • 10 No 3d, SR • 10 No 3d, WR • 10 No 3c, UR • 17 No 2d)

- when the products involved are manufactured purely for the purpose of research, experiment, study or development (only goods, SPR • 10 No 3b, UR • 17 No 2b)
- for additional deliveries by the original supplier under certain conditions (only goods, SPR • 10 No 3e, UR • 17 No 2e)
- when the service contract concerned is part of the follow-up of a design contest under certain conditions (only services, SR • 10 No 3c, UR • 17 No 2l)
- for additional works/services not included in the project initially considered or in the contract first concluded under certain conditions (only works and services, SR • 10 No 3e, WR • 10 No 3d, UR • 17 No 2f)
- for new work consisting of a repetition of similar works entrusted to the undertaking to which the same procurer awarded a similar contract under certain conditions (only works and services, SR • 10 No 3f, WR • 10 No 3e, UR • 17 No 2g)
- for supplies quoted and purchased on a commodity market (only the Utility sector, UR • 17 No 2h)
- for contracts to be awarded on the basis of a framework agreement under certain conditions (only the Utility sector, UR • 17 No 2j)
- for bargain purchases under certain conditions (only the Utility sector, UR • 17 No 2j)
- for purchases of goods under particularly advantageous conditions under certain conditions (only the Utility sector, UR • 17 No 2k).

11) Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be not less than X days. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.

The Norwegian legislation has established time limits as set out in the EEA and GPA Agreements. These include 12 days for sending the notices and publishing them through the publication Office in Luxembourg. The time limits hence are:

- (a) In open procedures the time limit for receipt of tenders shall not be less than 52 days from the date of dispatch of the notice (SPR • 15 No 1, SR • 16 No 1, WR • 16 No 1, UR • 24 No 1).
- (b) The time limit in open procedures may be reduced to 36 days where the procurer has published an indicative notice making known the contracts it intends to award (only work and services, SR • 16 No 1, WR • 16 No 1, UR • 24 No 1).
- (c) In restricted procedures and negotiated procedures the time limit for receipt of requests to participate shall be not less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice (SPR • 17 No 1, SR • 17 No 1, WR • 17 No 1).

In the Utility sector the time limit shall as a general rule not be less than 37 days from the date of dispatch of the notice, but under no circumstances less than 22 days or 15 days under certain conditions (UR • 24 No 2).

- (d) The time limit in restricted procedures and negotiated procedure may be reduced to 26 days where the procurers have published an indicative notice making known the contracts they intend to award (only work and services, SR • 17 No 4, WR • 17 No 3)

12) To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

The entities are allowed to permit tenders to be submitted in any languages, including the official languages of WTO (SPR • 33, SR • 42, WR • 39, UR • 43).

Among the large Norwegian public procurers about 75% permit tenders to be submitted in other languages than Norwegian. Most common is to permit tenders to be submitted in Swedish, Danish and English.

III. Challenge procedures - Article XX

13) Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

Any firm that participates in public procurement procedures may complain about alleged breaches of the rules. The supplier is first of all encouraged to take up the matter with the entity concerned directly. If this does not give any results, the formal procedure is to bring an action against the contracting entity before the competent national Court of Justice (the county court). All of the normal national legislation on civil court procedures applies.

In the Public sector, the review procedures open for three types of sanctions (PPA • 3, 4 and 5³):

-Rapid interim measures (court injunctions) temporarily suspending procurement procedures during the challenge procedure.

However, the national review bodies can weigh the interest of the complainant in securing the contract against the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay, and deny injunctions where the public interest outweighs the suppliers' interest.

After a contract has been awarded, the national remedies procedures do not open for injunctions.

-Nullification of acts and decisions taken by the procuring entity in breach of the regulations. This type of sanction does not allow re-opening of procurement procedures after the contract has been awarded.

-Award of damages to the offended supplier or suppliers. The damages will not necessarily be limited to •negative interest• (the costs and losses incurred by participating in the award procedure). It is also possible to demand the positive interest or at least a part of it in damages (lost profit).

In the Utilities sector, the same applies with the following special elements:

-Instead of rapid interim measures that stop an ongoing procurement procedure, the procuring entity may get a conditional fine high enough to dissuade the entity from committing or continuing the act which is claimed to be in breach of the rules.

³PPA • the Public Procurement Act

-In order for damages to be adjudged, the complaining supplier has to prove that he would have had a real chance of being awarded the contract, had the discrimination not occurred.

14) To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is •not less than 10 days•. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

There are no special time limits in the area of public procurement.

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a •court• or an •impartial and independent review body•? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?

-If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

A complaint about formal faults in a tendering procedure may be brought before a national Court of Justice (PPA • 3).

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

The Public Procurement Act, the Law Courts Act and the Civil Dispute Act.

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

-Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

The supplier can ask for rapid interim measures (court injunctions) temporarily suspending the procurement procedure if the interests of the complainant outweigh the public interest in the procurement being executed without delay before the conclusion of the contract, PPA • 4 (not the Utility sector).

Before the conclusion of the contract, the court may also annul decisions taken during the procurement process, PPA • 3 (not the Utility sector).

In the Utilities sector the Court may instead fine the procuring entity with a conditional fine high enough to dissuade the entity from committing or continuing the act which is claimed to be a breach of the rules (PPA • 4).

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

No such system is established, but the court may award damages to the offended supplier if there have been infringements of the Act/Regulations.

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

The time periods for the stages of the challenge process will depend on the different cases, but a court injunction is possible to get almost immediately (1-2 days).

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

The costs to conduct a challenge procedure vary. The legal fee is NOK 2,970 (the Legal Fee Act • 8), but in addition to that come the costs of getting legal counsel.

It is possible to get legal fee and legal aid free of charge, but only under special conditions. In most cases the complainant must cover the expenses to conduct a challenge procedure.

DECISIONS ON PROCEDURAL MATTERS UNDER THE AGREEMENT ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994)

Addendum

PROCEDURES FOR THE NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Decision of the Committee of 4 June 1996

1. Parties shall submit the complete texts of their basic legislation (laws and regulations) on government procurement in the original language to the Secretariat where these texts will be open for inspection by Parties. These would include the basic legal instruments pursuant to which effect is given to the provisions of the Agreement. Each Party shall provide a summary of that legislation in a WTO language.
2. In addition, each Party shall describe in a WTO language what other legislation giving effect to the Agreement on Government Procurement exists. This need not take the form of a listing of individual texts but should include sufficient information on the nature of legislation relevant to each category of entities to facilitate another Party requesting a text of interest to it.
3. Each Party shall supply, in response to a request from another Party, a copy of any law, regulation, final judicial decision, administrative ruling or other measure relevant to the Agreement. Each Party shall notify the Committee of the coordinates of a contact point established for that purpose. Through its contact point, a Party from which a text has been requested, shall use its best endeavours to assist the requesting Party with any translation into a WTO language necessary.
4. Each Party shall provide responses to the attached checklist of issues.
5. The notifications shall be made as soon as possible, but in no case later than 31 December 1996.

ATTACHMENT
CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

- 1) Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?
- 2) In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?
- 3) In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?
- 4) Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?
- 5) To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

- 6) Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.
- 7) Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.
- 8) Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.
- 9) In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?
- 10) Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?
- 11) Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be •not less than X days•. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.
- 12) To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13) Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

14) To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is not less than 10 days. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a court or an impartial and independent review body? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

 - Accession to the Agreement on Government Procurement (1994) (Annex 2);
 - Modalities for Notifying Threshold Figures in National Currencies (Annex 3);
- Interim Procedure on the Circulation of Documents of the Committee on Government Procurement (1994), Pending a Definite Procedure (Annex 4); and
- Interim Procedure on the Derestriction of Documents of the Committee on Government Procurement (1994), Pending a Definitive Procedure (Annex 5).

ANNEX 1

PARTICIPATION OF OBSERVERS IN THE COMMITTEE
ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994)

Decision

1. Members of the World Trade Organization which are not Parties to the Agreement may follow the proceedings of the Committee on Government Procurement in an observer capacity.
2. Governments which are not Members of the World Trade Organization, but are in the process of, or have expressed the intent of, accepting or acceding to the WTO Agreement and which are also interested in initiating negotiations for accession to the Agreement on Government Procurement (1994) and have an interest in following the proceedings of the Committee on Government Procurement in an observer capacity, should communicate a request to the Director-General of the World Trade Organization indicating their desire to have observer status in the Committee on Government Procurement. The Committee shall decide on each request.
3. The Committee shall decide on the conditions of observership, including with respect to the provision of information by observers. Observers may participate in the discussions but decisions shall be taken only by Parties.
4. The Committee on Government Procurement may deliberate on confidential matters in special restricted sessions.
5. The Committee may invite, as appropriate, international organizations to participate in sessions of the Committee on Government Procurement in an observer capacity. In addition, requests from international organizations to participate in sessions of the Committee on Government Procurement, in an observer capacity, shall be considered on a case-by-case basis by the Committee. In such considerations, the criteria and conditions for observer status for intergovernmental organizations in the WTO shall be taken into account.
6. This Decision is without prejudice to the provisions of paragraph 2 of Article XVII of the Agreement.

ANNEX 2

ACCESSION TO THE AGREEMENT ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT
(1994)

Decision

1. In accordance with paragraph 2 of Article XXIV of the Agreement on Government Procurement (1994), any government which is a Member of the WTO may accede to this Agreement on terms to be agreed between that government and the Parties.
2. To this effect, a government interested in accession shall communicate its interest to the Director-General of the WTO and, through him, to the Committee on Government Procurement and shall submit relevant information including an offer by way of appropriate Appendices containing lists of entities and services which would be covered by the Agreement, as well as lists of relevant publications, having regard to the provisions of the Agreement, in particular Article I and, where appropriate, Article V.
3. The government interested in accession shall hold consultations with the Parties to the Agreement on the terms for its accession to the Agreement.
4. With a view to facilitating accession, the Committee on Government Procurement shall establish a working party if the applicant government, or any Party to the Agreement, so requests. The working party should examine: (i) the coverage offer made by the applicant government; and (ii) relevant information pertaining to export opportunities in the markets of the Parties, taking into account the existing and potential export capabilities of the applicant government and export opportunities for the Parties in the market of the applicant government.
5. Upon a decision by the Committee on Government Procurement agreeing to the terms of accession including the lists of entities and services as well as of relevant publications of the applicant government, the applicant government shall deposit with the Director-General of the WTO an instrument of accession which states the terms so agreed. The applicant government's lists of entities, services and publications in their authentic WTO language(s) shall be appended to the Agreement.

ANNEX 3

MODALITIES FOR NOTIFYING THRESHOLD FIGURES IN NATIONAL CURRENCIES

Decision

General

Each Party will calculate and convert for itself the value of the thresholds contained in its Appendix I into its own national currency, it being understood that these calculations will be based on the conversion rates published by the IMF in its monthly •International Financial Statistics• (for the EC, the Member States• currency equivalents of the ECU for determining the value of public contracts are calculated and published by the EC Commission). Parties will notify without delay to the Committee the method and result of their calculation, for possible examination and challenge in the Committee.

Basis for calculation¹

The conversion rates will be the average of the daily values of the respective national currency in terms of the SDR over the two-year period preceding 1 October or 1 November of the year prior to the thresholds in national currency becoming effective which will be from 1 January. For Israel and Japan the conversion rate will be established in the same way as above but the relevant date for the calculation will be 1 January (rather than 1 October or 1 November) and the newly-established conversion rate will take effect on 1 April.

Period of validity of national thresholds

Thresholds expressed in national currencies will be fixed for two years, i.e. calendar years for all Parties except Israel and Japan, where the fiscal year (1 April-31 March) will be used.

Safeguard mechanism

If a major change in a national currency vis-à-vis the SDR during a year were to create a significant problem with regard to the application of the Agreement, the matter will be considered in the Committee.

¹It is understood that the EC calculates its thresholds based on a unilateral reduction of 13 per cent in the thresholds applicable to the EC (pursuant to the relevant decision by the Committee under the Tokyo Code of 20 May 1987, in furtherance of the panel decision on Value-Added Tax and Threshold (GPR/21, GPA/IC/W/2, pages 3 and 4).

ANNEX 4

INTERIM PROCEDURE ON THE CIRCULATION OF DOCUMENTS OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994), PENDING A DEFINITIVE PROCEDURE

Decision

Formal documents shall be circulated to members of the Committee and to observers and shall be available, on request, to Members of the WTO. In certain cases, the circulation of sensitive documents shall be determined on an ad hoc basis.

ANNEX 5

INTERIM PROCEDURE ON THE DERESTRICTION OF DOCUMENTS OF
THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994), PENDING A DEFINITIVE PROCEDURE

Decision

The Committee decides that documents pertaining to its work and that of its subsidiary bodies shall be derestricted in accordance with the following procedure:

- (a) the Secretariat will prepare a list of such documents proposed for derestriction, which will include decisions, Secretariat background notes, and working papers that do not include details of individual country positions or proposals;
- (b) this list will be circulated to all participants;
- (c) documents on the list will be derestricted 60 days after their circulation unless a participant has requested that a document remain restricted;
- (d) the Secretariat will issue a list after the date fixed for derestriction, specifying the documents derestricted.

PROCEDURES FOR THE CIRCULATION AND DERESTRICTION OF DOCUMENTS OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

Decision of 8 October 2002

The Committee on Government Procurement,

Having regard to the Decision on Procedures for the Circulation and Derestriiction of WTO Documents of 14 May 2002 (WT/L/452) and Article XXI of the Agreement on Government Procurement and Article II:3 of the Marrakesh Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization,

Considering that there is a need to improve the current Procedures for the Circulation and Derestriiction of documents of the Committee on Government Procurement and align them with those of the WTO in WT/L/452,

Emphasizing the importance of greater transparency in the functioning of the Committee on Government Procurement,

Decides as follows:

1. All official documents of the Committee on Government Procurement and of any subsidiary body established by it¹ shall be unrestricted.
2. Notwithstanding the provisions of paragraph 1,
 - (a) any Party may submit a document as restricted, which shall be automatically derestricted after its first consideration by the relevant body or 60 days after the date of circulation, whichever is earlier, unless requested otherwise by that Party.² In the latter case, the document may remain restricted for further periods of 30 days, subject to renewed requests by that Party within each 30-day period. The Secretariat shall remind Parties of such deadlines, and derestrict the document upon receipt of a written instruction. Any document may be derestricted at any time during the restriction period at the request of the Parties concerned.
 - (b) The Committee and any subsidiary body established by it when requesting a document to be prepared by the Secretariat shall decide whether it shall be issued as restricted or unrestricted. Such documents which are issued as restricted shall automatically be derestricted 60 days after the date of circulation, unless requested otherwise by a Party.

¹ For the purposes of this Decision, an official document shall be any document submitted by a Party or prepared by the Secretariat to be issued in any one of the following WTO document series: GPA-series.

² However, any document that contains only information that is publicly available or information that is required to be published under the provisions of Article XIX:1 of the Agreement on Government Procurement shall be unrestricted.

In the latter case, the document shall remain restricted for one additional period of 30 days after which it shall be derestricted;

- (c) minutes of meetings (including records, reports and notes) shall be restricted and shall be automatically derestricted 45 days after the date of circulation³;
- (d) documents relating to rectifications or modifications of Appendices I through IV pursuant to Article XXIV:6 of the Agreement on Government Procurement shall be restricted and automatically derestricted upon certification of such changes in the Appendices;
- (e) documents relating to any accession shall be restricted and shall be automatically derestricted upon the Committee decision on the accession of the WTO Member concerned.

3. Translation of official GPA documents in all three official WTO languages (English, French and Spanish) shall be completed expeditiously. Once translated in all three official WTO languages, all official GPA documents that are not restricted shall be made available via the WTO web-site to facilitate their dissemination to the public at large.⁴

4. The Decision of the Committee on Government Procurement of 19 March 1997 on the Circulation and Derestriction of the Documents of the Committee on Government Procurement, as contained in GPA/1/Add.2, shall be abrogated as of the date of adoption of the present decision, but will remain in effect for documents circulated prior to that date.

5. In the light of the experience gained from the operation of these procedures and changes in any other relevant procedures under the WTO, the Committee on Government Procurement will, at an appropriate time, review and if necessary modify the procedures.

³ It is understood that, normally, minutes (including records, reports and notes) of meetings shall be circulated within three weeks after a meeting of the Committee and not later than the notice convening the following meeting of the Committee.

⁴ Notwithstanding paragraph 3, any document that contains information that is publicly available or information required to be published under Article XIX:1 of the Agreement on Government Procurement shall continue to be made available via the WTO web-site immediately in the original WTO language in which it is written.

DECISIONS ON PROCEDURAL MATTERS UNDER THE AGREEMENT
ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994)

Addendum

CIRCULATION AND DERESTRICTION OF DOCUMENTS OF THE
COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT¹

Decision of 24 February 1997^{2,3}

The Committee on Government Procurement decides to adopt the following procedures with respect to the circulation⁴ and derestriction of documents:

- 1) Formal documents shall be circulated to members of the Committee, to observers and to other Members of the WTO. In certain cases, the circulation of sensitive documents shall be determined on an ad hoc basis. The formal documents shall also be made available to Members of the WTO through the WTO Document Dissemination Facility via the Internet.
- 2) Documents circulated after the entry into force of the Agreement on Government Procurement in any GPA/- document series shall be circulated as unrestricted with the exception of documents specified in the attached Appendix, which shall be circulated as restricted and subject to derestriction, or consideration thereof, as provided. Notwithstanding the exceptions specified in the Appendix, any document that contains only information that is publicly available or information that is required to be published under the Agreement on Government Procurement shall be circulated on an unrestricted basis.

¹The Decision does not cover documents outside of a formal document series, such as a submission to a dispute settlement panel, or an interim report of a dispute settlement panel submitted to the parties thereto.

²The Decision replaces the Decisions on interim procedures, dated 27 February 1996, on the circulation and derestriction of documents contained in GPA/1, Annexes 4 and 5 respectively.

³In adopting these procedures, the Committee took note that Parties attached particular importance to the restricted nature of documents so designated, and that individual governments should proceed accordingly in their handling of such documents.

⁴The terms •circulation• and •circulated• when used in this Decision shall be understood to refer to the distribution by the Secretariat of documents to all Parties to the Agreement and to other WTO Members.

- 3) Notwithstanding the exceptions to paragraph 2 set forth in the Appendix,
- (a) any Party may, at the time it submits any document for circulation, indicate to the Secretariat that the document be issued as unrestricted, and
- (b) any restricted document circulated after the date of entry into force of the Agreement may be considered for derestriction at any time by the Committee or may be considered for derestriction at the request of any Party.
- 4) Requests for consideration for derestriction shall be made in writing and shall be directed to the Chairman of the Committee. Such requests shall be circulated to all Parties and placed on the agenda of a forthcoming meeting of the Committee for consideration. However, in order to preserve the efficiency of the work of the Committee, the Party concerned may indicate to the Secretariat that it circulate to Parties a notice advising them of the documents proposed for derestriction and the date proposed for derestriction, which shall normally be sixty days after the date the notice is circulated. These documents shall be derestricted on the date set forth in the notice unless, prior to that date, a Party notifies the Secretariat in writing of its objection to the derestriction of a document, or any portion of a document.
- 5) The Secretariat shall prepare and circulate a list of documents eligible for consideration for derestriction, indicating the proposed date of derestriction, which shall normally be sixty days after the circulation of the list. These documents shall be derestricted on the date set forth in the notice unless, prior to that date, a Party notifies the Secretariat in writing of its objection to the derestriction of a document, or any portion of a document.
- 6) If a document⁵ considered for derestriction is not derestricted because of an objection by any Party, and remains restricted at the end of the first year following the year in which an objection was raised, the document shall be considered for derestriction at that time.
- 7) The Secretariat will circulate periodically (e.g. every six months) a list of newly derestricted documents, as well as a list of all documents remaining restricted.
- 8) In the light of the experience gained from the operation of these procedures and changes in any other relevant procedures under the WTO, the Committee will review, and if necessary modify, the procedures two years after their adoption.

⁵These procedures shall apply mutatis mutandis to the consideration for derestriction of a portion of a document that remains restricted as a result of an objection made pursuant to paragraph 4.

APPENDIX

(a) Working documents in all GPA/- document series (i.e. draft documents such as agendas, decisions, proposals, applications for accession, Secretariat background notes as well as other working papers issued as •GPA/W/-• documents), including documents in the GPA/SPEC/- series.

Such documents shall be derestricted upon the adoption of the report or of the decision pertaining to their subject matter, or considered for derestriction six months after the date of their circulation⁶, whichever is earlier. All background notes by the Secretariat, however, shall be considered for derestriction six months after the date of their circulation.

(b) Documents relating to rectifications or modifications of Appendices to the Agreement pursuant to Article XXIV: 6 of the Agreement.

Such documents shall be derestricted upon completion of the Article XXIV:6 process through the certification of the changes.

(c) Minutes of meetings of the Committee and its subsidiary bodies.

Such documents shall be considered for derestriction six months after the date of their circulation.

(d) Documents relating to working parties or other subsidiary bodies established by the Committee including working parties on accessions.

Such documents shall be derestricted upon the adoption of the report of the working party. Prior to the adoption of the report, any such documents shall be considered for derestriction at the end of the first year following the year in which they were circulated.

(e) Documents submitted to the Secretariat by a Party for circulation if, at the time the Party submits the document, the Party indicates to the Secretariat that the document should be issued as restricted.

Such documents shall be considered for derestriction at the end of each six-month period.⁷

⁶The •date of circulation• means the date printed on the front page of a document indicating when it has been made available to Parties• delegations.

⁷Documents circulated during the period January through June would be considered for derestriction directly after the end of that period. Documents circulated during the period July through December would be considered for derestriction directly after the end of that period.

(f) Reports of panels which are circulated in accordance with the provisions of the Understanding on Rules and Procedures Governing the Settlement of Disputes.⁸

Such reports shall be circulated to all Parties to the Agreement on Government Procurement and other WTO Members as restricted documents and derestricted no later than the tenth day thereafter if, prior to the date of circulation, a party to the dispute that forms the basis of a report submits to the Chairman of the Dispute Settlement Body a written request for delayed derestriction. A report circulated as a restricted document shall indicate the date upon which it will be derestricted.⁹

⁸This provision will be subject to review at the time of review of the Dispute Settlement Understanding, and will be discontinued if there is no consensus on the matter.

⁹The following standard cover note will be placed on panel reports: •The report of the Panel on [name of dispute] is being circulated to all Parties to the Agreement on Government Procurement and other WTO Members, pursuant to the DSU. The report is being circulated as an unrestricted document from [date] pursuant to the procedures for the Circulation and Derestriction of Documents of the Committee on Government Procurement [document number]. Parties to the Agreement on Government Procurement are reminded that in accordance with the DSU only parties to the dispute may appeal a panel report, an appeal shall be limited to issues of law covered in the panel report and legal interpretations developed by the panel, and that there shall be no ex parte communications with the panel or Appellate Body concerning matters under consideration by the panel or Appellate Body. •

Addendum

PROCEDURES FOR THE NOTIFICATION OF NATIONAL IMPLEMENTING LEGISLATION

Decision of the Committee of 4 June 1996

1. Parties shall submit the complete texts of their basic legislation (laws and regulations) on government procurement in the original language to the Secretariat where these texts will be open for inspection by Parties. These would include the basic legal instruments pursuant to which effect is given to the provisions of the Agreement. Each Party shall provide a summary of that legislation in a WTO language.
2. In addition, each Party shall describe in a WTO language what other legislation giving effect to the Agreement on Government Procurement exists. This need not take the form of a listing of individual texts but should include sufficient information on the nature of legislation relevant to each category of entities to facilitate another Party requesting a text of interest to it.
3. Each Party shall supply, in response to a request from another Party, a copy of any law, regulation, final judicial decision, administrative ruling or other measure relevant to the Agreement. Each Party shall notify the Committee of the coordinates of a contact point established for that purpose. Through its contact point, a Party from which a text has been requested, shall use its best endeavours to assist the requesting Party with any translation into a WTO language necessary.
4. Each Party shall provide responses to the attached checklist of issues.
5. The notifications shall be made as soon as possible, but in no case later than 31 December 1996.

CHECKLIST OF ISSUES

I. GENERAL ELEMENTS

- 1) Has the Agreement been transposed into national law and/or does it apply directly?
- 2) In the case that entities below the federal or central state level are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous from federal or central state level government in the implementation of the Agreement?
- 3) In the case that Annex 3 entities are covered: are these categories of entities autonomous in the implementation of the Agreement or do they apply the legislation provided by the federal/central or sub-central level?
- 4) Which main differences (if any) exist between the implementing laws at the federal or central level, the sub-central level and for Annex 3 entities?
- 5) To what extent is information technology used in the process of government procurement?

II. SPECIFIC ELEMENTS

- 6) Identify the specific provisions in your legislation which reflect the national treatment and non-discrimination commitments of Article III of the Agreement.
- 7) Article IX:2 of the Agreement foresees that the invitation to participate may take the form of a notice of proposed procurement. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.
- 8) Article IX:3 of the Agreement foresees that entities at the sub-central level as well as Annex 3 entities may use a notice of planned procurement or a notice regarding a qualification system as an invitation to participate. If your implementing legislation provides for this opportunity, give details.
- 9) In the case of selective tendering procedures: to what extent are entities allowed to use permanent lists of suppliers or is there a requirement for lists of suppliers to be selected on a contract-by-contract basis?
- 10) Article XIV of the Agreement allows for negotiation under certain conditions. Are entities allowed to proceed to negotiations? If so, which categories and what are the conditions imposed?
- 11) Article XI contains the time-limits for tendering and delivery. Time-limits shall normally be •not less than X days•. Does the domestic legislation reflect the various minimum time-limits as set out in the Agreement? If not, give information on any longer time limits which have been established.
- 12) To what extent does the implementing legislation allow entities, in pursuance of Article XII:1, to permit tenders to be submitted in several languages (one of which has to be a language of the WTO)? To what extent do entities use this flexibility?

III. CHALLENGE PROCEDURES - ARTICLE XX

13) Paragraph 3 of Article XX requires each Party to provide its challenge procedures in writing and make them generally available. Please provide this information.

14) To the extent that this information does not fully respond to the following points, please provide the supplementary information necessary to do so.

(i) The time-limit to launch a complaint contained in the Agreement is not less than 10 days. What are the limits in domestic legislation?

(ii) What body is responsible for the challenge procedures? Is this a court or an impartial and independent review body? If the latter:

- How are its members selected?
- Are its decisions subject to judicial review?
- If not, how are the requirements of paragraph 6 of Article XX taken into account?

(iii) What is the applicable law by reference to which the challenge body will examine complaints?

(iv) Which rapid interim measures are provided to correct breaches of the Agreement and to preserve commercial opportunities?

- Do these measures include the possibility to suspend the procurement process? On what conditions?

(v) How do challenge procedures provide for correction of the Agreement? What types of compensation for loss or damages suffered can the challenge body order?

(vi) Give any available information on the time periods for the stages of the challenge process, including to obtain interim measures and a final decision.

(vii) What are the usual costs to conduct a challenge procedure? Are there possibilities foreseen to do so free of charge?

Committee on Government Procurement

DECISION PURSUANT TO ARTICLE XXIV:6(a) OF THE AGREEMENT ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

Decision of 21 December 2005

The Committee on Government Procurement,

Having regard to the provisions of paragraph 6(a) of Article XXIV of the Agreement on Government Procurement;

Noting that, pursuant to the Committee's Decision of 16 December 2004 as set forth in document GPA/83, Israel committed in its Note to Appendix I to reduce by 1 January 2006 its offsets to 20 per cent of the value of a contract;

Having considered Israel's submission in document GPA/W/294, dated 18 July 2005, and having regard to the statements made by Israel emphasizing the importance of offsets to its economy as a development tool;

Having considered Israel's proposal in document GPA/MOD/ISR/5, dated 12 December 2005, to further modify its Note to Appendix I, based on Article XXIV:6(a);

Noting that Israel has offered compensatory adjustments in the above-referenced proposal, pursuant to Article XXIV:6(a), and that the Parties have accepted those adjustments;

Noting the long-standing views of several Parties that offsets are only transitional measures and that Israel must eliminate its offsets; and

Noting the intention of Israel to engage in consultations with the Parties, in the framework of the negotiations on the revision of the Agreement on Government Procurement under Article XXIV:7, with a view to agreeing on a revised Note, including a schedule to reduce its use of offsets,

Hereby decides as follows:

Article I

Paragraph 1(c) of Israel's Note to Appendix I shall be modified to read as follows:

"Offsets in any form may be required up to 35 per cent of the contract going down to 30 per cent after five years, 28 per cent after ten years and 20 per cent after 13 years, beginning from the date Israel implements the Agreement."

Article II

Paragraph 2(a) of Israel's Note to Appendix I shall be modified to read as follows:

"At the end of each period mentioned in paragraph 1(c), Israel will submit a report concerning the implementation of this Note."

Article III

Israel's Annex 4 shall be replaced by the text attached hereto.

Article IV

Israel's Annexes 1, 2, 3 and 5, referring to the thresholds for construction services, shall be modified to read as follows:

"Threshold: 8,500,000 SDR; during the period beginning from 1 January 2006 until 31 December 2008 the threshold shall be set at 5,000,000 SDR."

Article V

Israel's Note to Appendix I, as modified by this Decision, shall remain in force until the entry into force in Israel of the revision of the Agreement on Government Procurement presently being negotiated under Article XXIV:7 of the Government Procurement Agreement.

Committee on Government Procurement

MODALITIES FOR THE NEGOTIATIONS ON EXTENSION OF COVERAGE AND ELIMINATION OF DISCRIMINATORY MEASURES AND PRACTICES

Decision of 21 July 2005

Addendum

The Committee on Government Procurement,

Noting that the preparation of initial offers as called for by the Committee's Decision on Modalities for the Negotiations on Extension of Coverage and Elimination of Discriminatory Measures and Practices (GPA/79) requires extensive research and internal consultation and, therefore, is taking longer than initially foreseen;

Reaffirming the importance it attaches to the successful completion of these negotiations;

Decides that:

- (i) each Party shall table its initial offer prior to the October meeting of the Committee (week of 10 October 2005) but not later than the Hong Kong Ministerial Conference (13-18 December 2005); and
 - (ii) the negotiations on extension of coverage and elimination of discriminatory measures as well as other aspects of the Article XXIV:7 negotiations aim to be concluded by the end of 2006.

Committee on Government Procurement

DECISION PURSUANT TO ARTICLE XXIV:6(a) OF THE AGREEMENT ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

Decision of 16 December 2004

The Committee on Government Procurement,

Having regard to the provisions of paragraph 6(a) of Article XXIV of the Agreement on Government Procurement;

Noting that Israel committed in its Note to Appendix 1 to reduce by 1 January 2005 its offsets to 20 per cent of the value of a contract and to submit a report concerning its implementation of that commitment;

Having considered Israel's proposal in document GPA/MOD/ISR/1, dated 19 November 2004, on the basis of Article XXIV:6(a), to modify its Note to Appendix I, with a view to extending by five years the period provided to Israel to reduce its offset to 20 per cent;

Noting that, on an exceptional basis, other Parties are waiving any rights to compensatory adjustments that they may have, pursuant to Article XXIV:6(a), as a result of the modifications set out below,

Hereby decides on an exceptional basis as follows:

Article I

Paragraph 1(c) of Israel's Note to Appendix I shall be modified to read as follows:

Offsets in any form may be required up to 35 per cent of the contract going down to 30 per cent after five years and 20 per cent after ten years, beginning from the date Israel implements the Agreement.

Article II

Paragraph 2(a) of Israel's Note to Appendix I shall be modified to read as follows:

At the end of each period of five years Israel will submit a report concerning the implementation of this Note.

Committee on Government Procurement

MODALITIES FOR THE NEGOTIATIONS ON EXTENSION OF COVERAGE AND ELIMINATION OF DISCRIMINATORY MEASURES AND PRACTICES

Decision of 16 July 2004

The Committee agrees on the following modalities for the negotiations on the extension of coverage and elimination of discriminatory measures and practices:

Objectives

In accordance with Article XXIV:7(b) and (c), the negotiations on these matters shall aim at:

- (i) the greatest possible extension of coverage among all Parties on the basis of mutual reciprocity, having regard to the provisions relating to developing countries; and
- (ii) the elimination of discriminatory measures and practices which distort open procurement.

The Parties recognize the interdependence between these two objectives, as well as the need to maximize clarity with regard to coverage and any remaining discriminatory measures and practices.

Matters to be negotiated in the Committee as a whole

The Committee as a whole will address the provisions in the draft revised text of the Agreement referred to as "market access issues", as well as issues relating to the presentation and structure of the appendices to the Agreement, including:

- whether there should be further harmonization of thresholds;
- whether there should be a uniform level of coverage of the entities covered by the Agreement;
- whether Annex 1 should follow a positive or negative list approach;
- whether there should be greater harmonization of the way entities are described, in particular whether Annexes 2 and 3 should be structured on the basis of categories of entities, for example as defined in the legislation of individual Parties or in terms of lists of individual entities;
- whether, in regard to services coverage in Annexes 4 and 5, further commonality of presentation is desirable and feasible, taking into account coverage and presentation under the GATS;

- whether the General Notes in the Annexes can be simplified and made more easily understandable;
- other issues that may be raised by delegations.

The Committee shall initiate work on the above issues in autumn 2004. Participants are invited to submit initial proposals relating to these matters by 31 August 2004.

Matters to be largely negotiated bilaterally

Negotiations on the extension of coverage of each Party's Appendix I as well as on the elimination of discriminatory measures and practices in such Appendices will be largely pursued bilaterally but subject to monitoring by the Committee as a whole.

These negotiations shall be pursued as follows:

- (i) by 30 November 2004, each Party shall table in writing its initial requests to any other Party and each Party shall aim to table its initial offer by 1 March 2005 but not later than 1 May 2005;
- (ii) provision would then be made for rounds of bilateral negotiations, leading to the presentation of revised and improved offers by the end of October 2005. These rounds of bilateral negotiations will normally be arranged to take place back-to-back with meetings of the Committee.

The basis for these negotiations shall be the existing coverage of Parties as reflected in their respective Appendix I, subject to any rectifications and modifications notified pursuant to Article XXIV:6 of the GPA. Parties concerned will make every effort to resolve pending notifications.

Parties agree on the need to ensure collective monitoring of the above bilateral negotiating process. To this end:

- (i) the Secretariat shall circulate as restricted documents to all other Parties initial official requests and offers as well as subsequent official revisions; and
- (ii) regular stocktaking and review of the bilateral process will take place in the Committee.

Any observer government which has submitted an offer with a view to participating in the revised Agreement may participate in this aspect of the negotiations and receive copies of requests and offers circulated by the Secretariat.

Conclusion of the negotiations

Parties agree that the negotiations on extension of coverage and elimination of discriminatory measures as well as other aspects of the Article XXIV:7 negotiations aim to be concluded by the beginning of 2006.

Committee on Government Procurement

DECISION PURSUANT TO ARTICLE XXIV:6(a) OF THE AGREEMENT ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

Decision of 23 April 2004

The Committee on Government Procurement,

Noting that, with effect from 1 May 2004, the Czech Republic, Estonia, Cyprus, Latvia, Lithuania, Hungary, Malta, Poland, Slovenia and Slovakia will join the European Communities;

Recognizing that from that date these ten countries will, as member States of the European Communities, form part of the European Communities for the purposes of the Agreement and be bound by the Agreement;

Considering that the European Communities has notified, pursuant to Article XXIV:6(a) of the Agreement, modifications to the Appendices, consequent upon these countries joining the European Communities, in order to add lists of entities for each of these ten countries;

Recognizing that these modifications and the enlargement of the European Communities will extend the coverage of the Agreement to ten new countries and result in an expansion of reciprocal procurement opportunities under the Agreement;

Noting that the European Communities indicated that some minor corrections to these modifications are necessary;

Noting the statement of the European Communities further clarifying the content of the modifications;

Having regard to Article XXIV:6(a) and agreeing that the conditions specified therein are satisfied;

Hereby decides as follows:

Article I

The modifications proposed by the European Communities in document GPA/MOD/EEC/1 are approved with the following additions, corrections and clarifications:

1. The addition of the following two entities to Annex 1 for Poland:
 - (a) Polskie Centrum Badań i Certyfikacji (Polish Centre for Testing and Certification); and
 - (b) Agencja Mienia Wojskowego (Agency for Military Property).

The following footnote will be added to Agencja Mienia Wojskowego (Agency for Military Property): "Non-warlike materials contained in Part (3) of this Annex".

2. The deletion of "(non-exhaustive)" from Annex 1 for both the Czech Republic and Slovakia.
3. The correction of the translation of Entity No. 29 (Seimo kontrolierių įstaiga) in Annex 1 for Lithuania, by deleting "State Audit Office" and inserting "Ombudsman Office of the Seimas".

Article 2

This decision will become effective on 1 May 2004.

OF DOCUMENTS OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

The Committee on Government Procurement,

Having regard to the Decision on Procedures for the Circulation and Derestriiction of WTO Documents of 14 May 2002 (WT/L/452) and Article XXI of the Agreement on Government Procurement and Article II:3 of the Marrakesh Agreement Establishing the World Trade Organization,

3. Translation of official GPA documents in all three official WTO languages (English, French and Spanish) shall be completed expeditiously. Once translated in all three official WTO languages, all official GPA documents that are not restricted shall be made available via the WTO web-site to facilitate their dissemination to the public at large.⁴

4. The Decision of the Committee on Government Procurement of 19 March 1997 on the Circulation and Derestriction of the Documents of the Committee on Government Procurement, as contained in GPA/1/Add.2, shall be abrogated as of the date of adoption of the present decision, but will remain in effect for documents circulated prior to that date.

⁴ Notwithstanding paragraph 3, any document that contains information that is publicly available or information required to be published under Article XIX:1 of the Agreement on Government Procurement shall continue to be made available via the WTO web-site immediately in the original WTO language in which it is written.

Committee on Government Procurement

DECISIONS ON PROCEDURAL MATTERS UNDER THE AGREEMENT
ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994)

Addendum

CIRCULATION AND DERESTRICTION OF DOCUMENTS OF THE
COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT¹

Decision of 24 February 1997^{2,3}

The Committee on Government Procurement decides to adopt the following procedures with respect to the circulation⁴ and derestriction of documents:

- 1) Formal documents shall be circulated to members of the Committee, to observers and to other Members of the WTO. In certain cases, the circulation of sensitive documents shall be determined on an ad hoc basis. The formal documents shall also be made available to Members of the WTO through the WTO Document Dissemination Facility via the Internet.
- 2) Documents circulated after the entry into force of the Agreement on Government Procurement in any GPA/- document series shall be circulated as unrestricted with the exception of documents specified in the attached Appendix, which shall be circulated as restricted and subject to derestriction, or consideration thereof, as provided. Notwithstanding the exceptions specified in the Appendix, any document that contains only information that is publicly available or information that is required to be published under the Agreement on Government Procurement shall be circulated on an unrestricted basis.

¹The Decision does not cover documents outside of a formal document series, such as a submission to a dispute settlement panel, or an interim report of a dispute settlement panel submitted to the parties thereto.

²The Decision replaces the Decisions on interim procedures, dated 27 February 1996, on the circulation and derestriction of documents contained in GPA/1, Annexes 4 and 5 respectively.

³In adopting these procedures, the Committee took note that Parties attached particular importance to the restricted nature of documents so designated, and that individual governments should proceed accordingly in their handling of such documents.

⁴The terms •circulation• and •circulated• when used in this Decision shall be understood to refer to the distribution by the Secretariat of documents to all Parties to the Agreement and to other WTO Members.

- 3) Notwithstanding the exceptions to paragraph 2 set forth in the Appendix,
- (a) any Party may, at the time it submits any document for circulation, indicate to the Secretariat that the document be issued as unrestricted, and
- (b) any restricted document circulated after the date of entry into force of the Agreement may be considered for derestriction at any time by the Committee or may be considered for derestriction at the request of any Party.
- 4) Requests for consideration for derestriction shall be made in writing and shall be directed to the Chairman of the Committee. Such requests shall be circulated to all Parties and placed on the agenda of a forthcoming meeting of the Committee for consideration. However, in order to preserve the efficiency of the work of the Committee, the Party concerned may indicate to the Secretariat that it circulate to Parties a notice advising them of the documents proposed for derestriction and the date proposed for derestriction, which shall normally be sixty days after the date the notice is circulated. These documents shall be derestricted on the date set forth in the notice unless, prior to that date, a Party notifies the Secretariat in writing of its objection to the derestriction of a document, or any portion of a document.
- 5) The Secretariat shall prepare and circulate a list of documents eligible for consideration for derestriction, indicating the proposed date of derestriction, which shall normally be sixty days after the circulation of the list. These documents shall be derestricted on the date set forth in the notice unless, prior to that date, a Party notifies the Secretariat in writing of its objection to the derestriction of a document, or any portion of a document.
- 6) If a document⁵ considered for derestriction is not derestricted because of an objection by any Party, and remains restricted at the end of the first year following the year in which an objection was raised, the document shall be considered for derestriction at that time.
- 7) The Secretariat will circulate periodically (e.g. every six months) a list of newly derestricted documents, as well as a list of all documents remaining restricted.
- 8) In the light of the experience gained from the operation of these procedures and changes in any other relevant procedures under the WTO, the Committee will review, and if necessary modify, the procedures two years after their adoption.

⁵These procedures shall apply mutatis mutandis to the consideration for derestriction of a portion of a document that remains restricted as a result of an objection made pursuant to paragraph 4.

APPENDIX

(a) Working documents in all GPA/- document series (i.e. draft documents such as agendas, decisions, proposals, applications for accession, Secretariat background notes as well as other working papers issued as •GPA/W/-• documents), including documents in the GPA/SPEC/- series.

Such documents shall be derestricted upon the adoption of the report or of the decision pertaining to their subject matter, or considered for derestriction six months after the date of their circulation⁶, whichever is earlier. All background notes by the Secretariat, however, shall be considered for derestriction six months after the date of their circulation.

(b) Documents relating to rectifications or modifications of Appendices to the Agreement pursuant to Article XXIV: 6 of the Agreement.

Such documents shall be derestricted upon completion of the Article XXIV:6 process through the certification of the changes.

(c) Minutes of meetings of the Committee and its subsidiary bodies.

Such documents shall be considered for derestriction six months after the date of their circulation.

(d) Documents relating to working parties or other subsidiary bodies established by the Committee including working parties on accessions.

Such documents shall be derestricted upon the adoption of the report of the working party. Prior to the adoption of the report, any such documents shall be considered for derestriction at the end of the first year following the year in which they were circulated.

(e) Documents submitted to the Secretariat by a Party for circulation if, at the time the Party submits the document, the Party indicates to the Secretariat that the document should be issued as restricted.

Such documents shall be considered for derestriction at the end of each six-month period.⁷

⁶The •date of circulation• means the date printed on the front page of a document indicating when it has been made available to Parties• delegations.

⁷Documents circulated during the period January through June would be considered for derestriction directly after the end of that period. Documents circulated during the period July through December would be considered for derestriction directly after the end of that period.

(f) Reports of panels which are circulated in accordance with the provisions of the Understanding on Rules and Procedures Governing the Settlement of Disputes.⁸

Such reports shall be circulated to all Parties to the Agreement on Government Procurement and other WTO Members as restricted documents and derestricted no later than the tenth day thereafter if, prior to the date of circulation, a party to the dispute that forms the basis of a report submits to the Chairman of the Dispute Settlement Body a written request for delayed derestriction. A report circulated as a restricted document shall indicate the date upon which it will be derestricted.⁹

Decision of the Committee of 4 June 1996

1. Parties shall submit the complete texts of their basic legislation (laws and regulations) on government procurement in the original language to the Secretariat where these texts will be open for inspection by Parties. 3. Each Party shall supply, in response to a request from another Party, a copy of any law, regulation, final judicial decision, administrative ruling or other measure relevant to the Agreement. Each Party shall notify the Committee of the coordinates of a contact point established for that purpose. Through its contact point, a Party from which a text has been requested, shall use its best endeavours to assist the requesting Party with any translation into a WTO language necessary.
4. Each Party shall provide responses to the attached checklist of issues.

ANNEX 3

MODALITIES FOR NOTIFYING THRESHOLD FIGURES IN NATIONAL CURRENCIES

Decision

General

Each Party will calculate and convert for itself the value of the thresholds contained in its Appendix I into its own national currency, it being understood that these calculations will be based on the conversion rates published by the IMF in its monthly •International Financial Statistics• (for the EC, the Member States• currency equivalents of the ECU for determining the value of public contracts are calculated and published by the EC Commission). Parties will notify without delay to the Committee the method and result of their calculation, for possible examination and challenge in the Committee.

Basis for calculation¹

The conversion rates will be the average of the daily values of the respective national currency in terms of the SDR over the two-year period preceding 1 October or 1 November of the year prior to the thresholds in national currency becoming effective which will be from 1 January. For Israel and Japan the conversion rate will be established in the same way as above but the relevant date for the calculation will be 1 January (rather than 1 October or 1 November) and the newly-established conversion rate will take effect on 1 April.

Period of validity of national thresholds

Thresholds expressed in national currencies will be fixed for two years, i.e. calendar years for all Parties except Israel and Japan, where the fiscal year (1 April-31 March) will be used.

Safeguard mechanism

If a major change in a national currency vis-à-vis the SDR during a year were to create a significant problem with regard to the application of the Agreement, the matter will be considered in the Committee.

¹It is understood that the EC calculates its thresholds based on a unilateral reduction of 13 per cent in the thresholds applicable to the EC (pursuant to the relevant decision by the Committee under the Tokyo Code of 20 May 1987, in furtherance of the panel decision on Value-Added Tax and Threshold (GPR/21, GPA/IC/W/2, pages 3 and 4).

ANNEX 4

INTERIM PROCEDURE ON THE CIRCULATION OF DOCUMENTS OF THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994), PENDING A DEFINITIVE PROCEDURE

Decision

Formal documents shall be circulated to members of the Committee and to observers and shall be available, on request, to Members of the WTO. In certain cases, the circulation of sensitive documents shall be determined on an ad hoc basis.

ANNEX 5

INTERIM PROCEDURE ON THE DERESTRICTION OF DOCUMENTS OF
THE COMMITTEE ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT (1994), PENDING A DEFINITIVE PROCEDURE

Decision

Observers

3) The Interim Committee adopted the following decision on observer status in the Interim Committee:

- Observer status may be granted to any government which notifies the Interim Committee of its interest to acquaint itself with the new Agreement on Government Procurement and its activities with a view to considering possible accession to the Agreement. The Interim Committee would take a decision on each request. Requests for observership from international organizations would be considered on a case-by-case basis. (GPA/IC/M/1, dated 10 August 1994, paragraph 4)

4) The following governments were given observer status: Chinese Taipei, the Kingdom of the Netherlands with respect to Aruba, Liechtenstein, Colombia, Argentina, Turkey, Panama, Singapore, Romania and Iceland.

Officers

Chairman: Mr. Harald Ernst (Switzerland)

Vice-Chairman: Mr. Peter Young (United Kingdom)

B. MEETINGS OF THE INTERIM COMMITTEE

5) The Interim Committee held six meetings: on 29 June and 15 November 1994 and on 4 April, 19-20 June, 25 October and 7 December 1995.

C. MODIFICATIONS TO THE APPENDICES TO THE AGREEMENT PRIOR TO ITS ENTRY INTO FORCE

6) The Interim Committee adopted a decision on the Administration of Rectifications of a Purely Formal Nature to Appendices I to IV Prior to the Entry into Force of the Agreement (Decision of 29 June 1994, contained in document GPA/IC/M/1, Annex 2). Pursuant to this decision, the United States notified the Interim Committee of a rectification to its Appendix II regarding State Publications, with effect as of 23 December 1994 (GPA/IC/W/10, dated 23 November 1994). In accordance with the terms of this notification, the United States submitted a list of State Publications. Norway notified the Interim Committee of a rectification to its Appendix I, Annex 1, with effect as of 15 December 1994 (GPA/IC/W/8, dated 15 November 1994).

7) The Interim Committee adopted a decision on the Administration of Modifications to the Appendices to the Agreement on Government Procurement (1994) Prior to its Entry into Force, Other Than Rectifications of a Purely Formal Nature or Those Resulting From Negotiations Aimed at Expanding Coverage (Decision of 15 November 1994, contained in document GPA/IC/M/2, Annex 2, dated 26 January 1995). No action has been taken by the Interim Committee pursuant to this Decision.

8) The Interim Committee also took action on the basis of the Decision of 17 January 1994 of the Informal Working Group on Negotiations, entitled •Modifications of the Annexes to Appendix I to the Agreement on Government Procurement Before Its Entry Into Force on 1 January 1996•. (GPA/IC/3, dated 28 October 1994, reproduces this decision.) In the light of the notification to the Interim Committee of the bilateral agreement which was reached between the European Communities and the United States in April of 1994 in a document entitled •Bilateral Agreement between the EC and the US: Modifications to Appendix I•, dated 15 June 1994 and the time available for its consideration, the Interim Committee accepted at its meeting of 7 December 1995 that the European Communities and the United States had met the procedural requirements necessary for the incorporation of modifications to the United States and the European Communities• lists in Appendix I, resulting from this bilateral agreement.

D. ACCESSION NEGOTIATIONS PRIOR TO THE ENTRY INTO FORCE OF THE AGREEMENT

9) The Interim Committee adopted a Decision on Accession Negotiations Prior to the Entry into Force of the Agreement (GPA/IC/M/1, Annex 1).

10) The action taken by the Interim Committee pursuant to this decision is described below.

- Application for accession by Chinese Taipei

11) The Government of Chinese Taipei applied for accession to the Agreement on Government Procurement (1994) in a communication dated 24 June 1994. Its draft initial offer was circulated in document GPA/IC/SPEC/1, dated 17 March 1995. A report on these negotiations will be communicated to the Committee on Government Procurement under the new Agreement in document GPA/IC/5.

- Application for accession by Liechtenstein

12) At the Interim Committee's April meeting, Liechtenstein applied for accession to the Agreement on Government Procurement (1994) in a communication reproduced in document GPA/IC/W/13, dated 11 January 1995, which also contains its offer. A report on these negotiations will be communicated to the Committee on Government Procurement under the new Agreement in document GPA/IC/6.

- Application for accession by the Kingdom of the Netherlands with respect to Aruba

13) The Kingdom of the Netherlands with respect to Aruba applied for accession to the Agreement on Government Procurement in a communication reproduced in document GPA/IC/W/14, dated 8 February 1995, which also contains a draft offer. A report on these negotiations will be communicated to the Committee on Government Procurement under the new Agreement in document GPA/IC/7.

- Application for accession by Singapore

14) Singapore applied for accession to the new Agreement on Government Procurement in a communication reproduced in document GPA/IC/W/33, dated 15 November 1995. The Government of Singapore submitted an initial offer on 6 December 1995, which has been circulated in document GPA/IC/SPEC/2. The Members of the Interim Committee recommend that the Committee under the new Agreement carry forward the accession process.

E. RECOMMENDATIONS FOR PROCEDURAL DECISIONS BY THE COMMITTEE TO BE ESTABLISHED UNDER THE AGREEMENT ON GOVERNMENT PROCUREMENT

15) The Interim Committee has adopted the following recommendations for procedural decisions under the new Agreement (GPA/IC/W/31, dated 30 October 1995):

- Participation of Observers in the Committee on Government Procurement
- Accession to the Agreement on Government Procurement
- Modalities for Notifying Threshold Figures in National Currencies

16) Discussions on procedures for notifying national implementing legislation were discussed at the December 1995 meeting of the Interim Committee and it is recommended that this discussion be pursued by the Committee. The Interim Committee has not recommended any decision on procedures for the derestriction and circulation of documents since it considered that account should be taken of the outcome of the general consideration of this matter in the WTO framework, which has not yet been completed.

F. ESTABLISHMENT OF A PRACTICAL GUIDE TO THE NEW AGREEMENT

17) In preparation for the implementation of the future responsibilities of the Committee on Government Procurement, the members of the Interim Committee exchanged views on the desirability and the structure and presentation of a practical guide to the new Agreement on Government Procurement. The record of this discussion is contained in the Minutes of the Interim Committee (GPA/IC/M/1, paragraphs 43-46; GPA/IC/M/2, paragraphs 39-51; GPA/IC/M/3, paragraphs 58-61; GPA/IC/M/4, paragraphs 35-36; GPA/IC/M/5, paragraphs 59-65; GPA/IC/M/6. Delegations were of the view that, for the moment, it was appropriate to postpone active consideration of the establishment of a practical guide in the true sense of the word in view of its linkages with various other outstanding issues, such as the procedures for notifying national implementing legislation and information technology. Distinct from the issue of the establishment of a true practical guide, delegations decided that there was merit in exploring possibilities of establishing a loose-leaf system to periodically update the Schedules in the Agreement. The Secretariat has been asked to prepare for the first meeting of the Committee a note outlining how such a loose-leaf system might work.

G. INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

18) In preparation for the implementation of the future responsibilities of the Committee on Government Procurement in regard to the provisions in the Agreement on information technology, the Interim Committee gathered information about the use of information technology in government procurement in the various Signatories, both by way of discussions and papers as well as through a practical demonstration. This information can be found in documents GPA/IC/W/7 and Addenda 1 through 10, which contain the information received from delegations in reply to a questionnaire, (document GPA/IC/W/4/Rev.1 contains this questionnaire), as well as in the Minutes of the Interim Committee meetings (GPA/IC/M/1, paragraphs 38-41; GPA/IC/M/2, paragraphs 31-38; GPA/IC/M/3, paragraphs 40-57; GPA/IC/M/4, paragraphs 37-57; GPA/IC/M/5, paragraphs 66-80; GPA/IC/M/6. Moreover, at a practical demonstration organized by the Interim Committee, delegations circulated various documents containing information on their systems, using information technology. A number of policy issues have been raised concerning, on the one hand, issues both of access to procurement opportunities and electronic tendering and, on the other hand, questions both of cooperation between and coordination of national systems and of possible modifications to the Agreement itself. A first list of these issues was produced in document GPA/IC/W/18. At the December 1995 meeting of the Interim Committee, the United States circulated a proposal on electronic commerce (GPA/IC/W/36) suggesting that the Parties to the Agreement undertake a review of the Agreement in the light of recent technological advances in electronic commerce and identifying a number of areas in the Agreement as appropriate for closer examination.

H. STATISTICAL REPORTING

19) In preparation for the implementation of the future responsibilities of the Committee on Government Procurement in regard to the provisions in the Agreement on statistical reporting (Article XIX:5), the Interim Committee established a Working Group on Statistical Reporting with the following terms of reference:

- to propose to the Interim Committee guidelines for meeting the statistical reporting requirements of Article XIX:5, in particular in respect of the adoption of uniform classification systems and methods to be used for providing statistics on the country of origin of products and services.
- the Working Group was open to all interested members of the Interim Committee.

20) The Working Group communicated its report to the Interim Committee in document GPA/IC/8.

Government procurement: traditionally a gap in the trading system

Regulations relating to the procurement of goods and services by a government (through its departments and agencies) for its own use, are outside the scope of the main WTO rules for goods and services. Below are excerpts of the basic legal texts setting out these exemptions.
